NEXT WEEK

WHEN we sent James Street out to Hollywood a few weeks back to do a series on Hollywood for you, we had no idea of the effect the movie capital would have upon the quiet young man from Connecticut. It was only recently that we happened onto the letters he wrote home, and because they are such grand human documents about the most cided to pass them on to you via these pages. Commencing next week, we give you these intensely human and intimate reactions under the title, "A Connecticut Yankee

Aside from this revealing letter, next week's issue is one crammed with good reading. Baby Quintanilla, who started a new infant-fad with her performance in "Forty Little Mothers," is delightfully profiled. There's a grand story by Francis Chase, Jr., of the rise of Joan Fontaine to her part in "Rebecca."

Is Divorce an Evil?

Is divorce an evil? Should teen-age children pet or neck? Is the family the last bulwark against the disintegration of civilization? What's wrong with modern wives? When should young married couples have their first child? These are all-important problems to modern American families—including the Barbours of "One Man's Family."

J. Anthony Smythe

who, in the opinion of many listeners, have solved most of them quite beautifully. Next week Hollywood writer Kay Proctor seeks the answer to their achievement in a story called "Father Barbour's Code for Living." In many ways Father Barbour is a stuffy old goat and an opinionated old coot besides. That Carlton E. Morse, author of the serial, readily admits, but he insists that there would be a lot more happiness and a lot less heart-break if more families followed the code which Kay Proctor tells you about next week. Her story will give interesting side-lights on the Barbours themselves. But it will do more than that. It will offer perplexed fathers and mothers a plan for living which may solve many of the problems which beset a parent of the twentieth century.

THIS WEEK

SINCE the first days of radio, people with ideas have been meeting with the answers "no" and "it can't be done." This week we present a story telling how scores of idea men and women have proved it just doesn't work to say "no" in radio. One of them is Bea Wain, songstress of the "Hit Parade." You'll get a bang out of her experience and

Dan Golenpaul's and David Sarnoff's. Read "A Thousand Times No!" (p. 42). In this week's issue also you'll find oodles of quiz games. There's a story of "So You Think You Know Music" (p. 50), with questions missed by famous musicians.

Wain

Try your skill at the questions they missed. There's a "Hollywood Crazy Quiz" (p. 4) too, which will surprise and amuse you no end. Then, if you wish to try your skill professionally, look on the opposite page for a "Lillian Russell Contest"—and remember our Lillian Russell story in last week's issue will help you.

The Girl on the Cover

Paulette Goddard was known for a long time as the protegee of Charles Chaplin and, perhaps, his wife. In a series of dynamic screen portrayals, more recently, Paulette has demonstrated that she is an actress of real promise and one who is bound for the top rung of fame's ladder. At the same time, it has been revealed that

Miss Goddard is really Mrs. Charles Chaplin. At the age of fourteen Paulette was responsible for providing a living for herself and her mother. At eighteen, she was knocking at Hollywood's gates. It was while working on

Paulette Goddard

"The Kid From Spain," with Eddie Cantor, that she met Chaplin. Chaplin has done much to further her career and she will appear opposite him in "The Great Dictator." From an important part in "The Women," she went to "The Cat and the Canary," with Bob Hope. Because of her success in this hysteriocomic part, she was again cast with Hope in Paramount's "The Ghost Breakers," the next Goddard film to be released. She is now working in Cecil B. De Mille's "North West Mounted Police."

Brother Orchid

Little Caesar becomes a monk . . .

THIS FIRST SCOOP PICTURE of Edward G. Robinson as Brother Orchid in the Warner Bros. film of the same name shows him as the gangster who sought refuge behind cloistered walls, where he eventually found regeneration. Actually no orchid is seen in the picture. Although ranunculus, delphinium and calendula were in bloom at the time, director Lloyd Bacon elected to use artificial zinnias to avoid having his actors stumble over the unpronounceable names of real flowers which bloom in the Hollywood spring

In previous issues, James Street has given his impressions of Carole Lombard and Clark Gable, has described their home and the manner in which they live. In this, the final installment of "Two Happy People," he explains why their marriage is a solid one, reveals the intimate little things each has brought to what may be considered one of the most glamorous, and sensibly happy, unions in Hollywood.—Editor.

LARK GABLE'S favorite topic of conversation is Carole Lombard and her favorite topic is Gable. And that's why we feel justified in calling this man and his wife two happy people.

If they are not happy, then they are better performers at home than on the screen. In Hollywood, where gossiping is a profession and scandal-mongering is a craft, the Gables have been spared the darts that usually are hurled at the folks who live in the goldfish bowls of Graustark.

Before their marriage? Well, that's another story, and let the dead past bury its dead. The important thing is that the crown prince and the court jester of the fantastic realm, where the caste system makes India seem democratic, are leading happy, normal lives and are proving that it can happen here.

The wise boys who are connected with the propaganda agencies of Graustark will lay odds-on against the happy marriage of two stars. One of the stars must take a back seat, they insist, or else their professional jealousies will clash.

The Gables are old enough, smart enough and experienced enough in marital adventures to know that professional jealousy is the biggest barrier to their happiness.

Without doubt, Miss Lombard is determined to keep pace with her husband in stardom. Miss Lombard apparently has no intention of leaving the screen and settling down with a dish-cloth in one hand and a diaperpin in the other. However, she is trying, and apparently successfully, to make her life—that is, her personal life—fit into the Gable pattern.

Clark Gable is very much the master of the manor, and Carole Lombard is the wife who sees to his needs, bosses him just a bit without letting him know that he is being bossed, and is his sidekick at play.

Mrs. Gable is one of the smartest women I've ever met. She is no childbride, and now that she has what she wants she seems determined to keep it. If her husband wants to do something —say, play a game that she doesn't know—she will learn the game. She is not taking any chances on anybody else hunting and riding with her husband.

And Gable loves it that way. They really have fun together. Some folks say that all the capers they cut together are acts, publicity baits thrown out for the suckers. That is absurd. Of course, they act even when they are not before the camera. It is only natural. It is impossible for natural actors to stop acting the minute the whistle blows. Does a banker cease being a banker at 3:00 p.m.? Does a writer cease being a writer when his story is finished? Acting is a profession with the Gables and they live their work all of the time. That's why it's impossible for Miss Lombard to retire and devote all of her time to wifing. You might as well ask Jim Farley to quit politics.

She is proud of her success and her ability. Gable says he's going to quit when he is assured of ten thousand a year for life. Perhaps she will retire when he does. But I have the feeling that these people will be on the screen as long as the public wants them. Energetic, ambitious folks like the Gables simply do not work and fight to get to the top and then retire gracefully and go to their little blue heaven where the vines twine around the door and, hand in hand, walk down the twilight trail together. It's very romantic, but it seldom happens.

In public, Mrs. Gable talks about her husband; not boastfully, but naturally. She'll often say, "The old man thinks so and so." Or "Mr. G. had a lot of fun yesterday building some thingamajig in his workshop."

Mr. Gable never fails to mention his wife during a conversation. He will say, "Mrs. G. sold six dozen eggs yesterday." Or "Carole is doing pretty

HE NEVER fails to rise when she enters the room, and he often compliments her on her clothes and the way she does her hair. He's a smart husband. If they are in a crowd, he always manages to toss a modest little compliment her way. Carole Lombard may be glamour from her lightning tongue to her beautiful feet, but she's all woman, and women glow when their husbands compliment them.

Don't get the idea that Mrs. Gable plays second fiddle to her husband. She is an individualist and their marriage is a partnership.

They are not social lights in Hollywood, where society is a scrambled institution and so clannish that it makes New York's Four Hundred (or is that four thousand?) look like a gang of clam-diggers. Neither are the Gables the most popular couple in Hollywood. Nor the best dressed. They are not the "best" or "most" anything, and are content to sit at their farm, where life unfolds itself interestingly, and watch the parade and brass bands GABLE usually wears work-clothes around his place, fatigue trousers and boots. His wife wears slacks. His idea of dressing up is to put on gray slacks, white linen shirt, tweed coat and a tie, always of a solid color. He likes solid-colored socks, too, and he wears supporters, for he hates to see socks flopping around a man's ankles. He always wears one ring-a ruby that his wife gave him. He dislikes dressing for dinner but usually does to please wife.

When he comes in from the fields, dirty from plowing, Mrs. Gable often meets him on their back porch.

"Don't forget to wipe your feet," she'll say.

"All right, all right."

She will follow him into the house, and if he starts for the table she will tap him gently on the shoulder and point toward the bathroom. Mr. Gable always grins, but he goes and washes and slips on some clean clothes.

They both are healthy eaters. Mrs. Gable plans the meals and they balance perfectly. She is a bit partial to fowl and he likes steaks.

They usually have coffee in their living-room, and then they settle back for a quiet evening at home. They will talk over the day's work, things they did and people they saw. Then they'll play backgammon or each will grab a book. They both are avid newspaper readers, and they really read newspapers. They both pore over the foreign news and domestic political news. Then they will discuss what they have read and will not always agree. That's a healthy sign, too. Each stimulates the other's brain. Mr. Gable also likes the sport pages, and Mrs. Gable often tears out of the paper a recipe or something. Sometimes she tears a page that her husband wants to read, and then the same thing happens in their family that happens in yours and mine. They have few really close friends. These include Andy Devine, the Tuffy Goffs (Abner of "Lum and Abner"), Walter Langs, and the Charles Walterses. Please note that, with the exception of Devine, none of their close friends is an actor. Goff is in radio. Walters is a lawyer. Lang is a director, whose wife, Fieldsie, once was Miss Lombard's secretary.

Reports persist that the Gables are going to have a baby. Mr. Gable did not discuss it. However, if a baby were expected at their house, Gable probably would say so. He is the kind of fellow who would give out cigars and buy drinks if his wife bore him a child. Mrs. Gable said simply that if she were going to have a baby she would be very proud and would an-nounce it instead of hiding it. One gathers the impression that they would like to have a baby. Gable is a great story-teller. He likes to hold a highball in his left hand, a cigarette in his right, and weave himself a yarn, embroidering it just enough to keep it interesting. Mrs. Gable-wise woman-never interrupts. It is rather difficult for her to be quiet and still very long, but when the old man is telling a tale she listens as though she has never heard it before.

Mrs. Gable is a good story-teller, too, but she doesn't weave her stories; she pieces them together. And she acts them out. She gesticulates, walks the floor. Most of her stories are about persons-persons she admires and persons she does not admire. And her tongue can be caustic.

They both are practical jokers and play jokes on each other.

You should never think, because Gable is a big outdoorsman now, that he has always been one. He worked on a farm while he was a boy, but is just now learning to appreciate the land. And those jobs in the oil fields, timber camps, etc., simply were fill-ins between show jobs.

Mr. Gable is a gentleman farmer. He farms because he enjoys it. As much as I admire the man, I doubt if he could make a living farming, and I also believe that Mrs. Gable would not do so well as a real farmer's wife. There's a great deal of difference in telling a person how to cook beans and in cooking them.

Studio publicity may insist that Clark Gable is a farmer by heritage. If Mr. Gable had to earn his bread and meat running an Ohio farm, I do not believe he would eat as well as he does now. And so far as being an outdoorsman is concerned, Mr. Gable learned to shoot-that is, shoot wellcomparatively recently. I do not mean that as a criticism, but it simply is a statement of fact.

Hollywood, which despite all of its smartness is still a bit naive and a country town dressed in its Sunday best, has made a great deal over the fact that the Gables are supposed to call each other Ma and Pa. Some folks think that "Ma" and "Pa" sound democratic. Perhaps Mr. Gable calls Mrs. Gable "Ma" and she calls him "Pa" for the benefit of publicity. But I never heard it. They might call each other Ma and Pa in kidding, but the Ma-and-Pa legend really is just that and nothing more.

One story goes that Mrs. Gable re-cently telephoned her husband and a servant answered. The servant is reported to have shouted to the master of the manor, "Hey, Pa, Ma is on the wire."

I don't believe it. The Gables would not allow their servants to be so familiar. Most persons in Hollywood, even strangers, call Mr. Gable, Clark, and Mrs. Gable, Carole. Seldom do they call her Mrs. Gable.

Mr. Gable is very proud of his wife, his success, his home, his dogs, guns, land and horses. And his mule, Judy.

HE PUT his hand on Judy's head and the old mule blinked at him, not the least bit impressed that he was being fondled by the crown prince of Graustark. "Isn't he a swell fellow?"

Mr. Gable asked, and patted old Judy. Yes, sir-ee, he is, and so are you, Mr. Gable.

Mrs. Gable is very proud of her husband and her other possessions, in-cluding her chickens. She insists upon owning New Hampshire Reds because she likes brown eggs. She reached into a nest and lifted an egg. It looked just like any other egg to me, but to her it was different because her chicken had laid it. We're all that way about our own things. It was quite a thrill to see beauteous Miss Lombard, the frosty blonde, the fire-cracker girl, holding a common, every-day egg.
"Isn't it MAR-vel-ous?" she asked.

Yes, it was a good egg, Miss Lombard, and so are you.

CAROLE LOMBARD—Beautiful, talented and courageous, she is intelligent enough to be her husband's pal, to listen to his stories, new or old, to boss him a little-but not too much!

CLARK GABLE—His habit of paying Carole little compliments, noticing a new dress or a hat, are some of the ways he shows her she's appreciated. That makes - and keeps - her happy

THE GIRL Bob Preston's really going to marry (and may have done so before this reaches print) is Kay Feltus, dancing with him above. A stock actress at 20th Century-Fox, she resembles Dorothy Lamour

DEANNA DURBIN will have the first costume role in her career in Universal's "Spring Parade," in which she'll play the role of a Hungarian peasant girl in the old Vienna atmosphere period of 1895. She'll wear a peasant-girl coiffure, with braids twisted coronet-fashion around her head. Hollywood's query: Can Deanna repeat her past successes—in costume?

On LINDA DARNELL'S recent New York trip a woman called her hotel, said she was Miss Elsa Maxwell's secretary, and was sending over a gift. Would the actress please sign for it when it arrived? "Put Miss Maxwell on the wire," said Linda, "I'd like to talk with her. I know her." The "secretary" rang off hastily. The gift arrived, but Linda, thoroughly suspicious, refused to sign for it. Back in Hollywood she called Elsa. Said Miss Maxwell, "You're a smart girl. I have an impersonator. She's pulled the same trick on several of my friends." The racket: The gifts come C. O. D.

ANDREA LEEDS gave a surprise birthday party for her husband, Bob Howard, on a Sunday night. The next morning she came downstairs, paused before stepping into a waiting car, said quietly, "I am going to St. Vincent's Hospital for an operation. I didn't want you to know it before because I didn't want to spoil the party last night." Game little Andrea had an infected gland removed from her thigh. Two days later she was taken home in an ambulance. The operation delayed 20th Century-Fox's May 6 production schedule on "The Return of Frank James," in which Andrea is to appear with Henry Fonda. Said Andrea over the hospital phone the day following the operation: "I hope the studio will be able to shoot around me. I am anxious to do the part."

ROBERT PRESTON settled the "Is it Dorothy Lamour or Kay Feltus?" question this week when he told a reporter that he and Kay have been going together for over three years, and, although no dates have been set, there is an "understanding." Best answer to rumors that Bob is still carrying a torch for Dorothy Lamour is the laughing jibe he made to a smart crack of Paulette Goddard's: "Look, you're talking to a guy who's been running around in sarongs!"

SHIRLEY TEMPLE celebrated her eleventh birthday April 23 by wearing her first long dress to a country club dance. There were five separate parties held for her, among them the studio party for children of the press; a set party on "The Young People" stage; a dinner for a few little friends at home, and the dancing-party at the country club. Loot: A string of 186 matched pearls from the Netherland East Indies; a 250-pound box of 1,500 chocolate bars (these were sent by truck to fourteen orphanages); a sewing-basket from her mother; a book, "The American Horse," by Phil Stong. Favorite present: A miniature pin-ball game, price 25 cents.

TYRONE POWER and ANNA-BELLA observed their first wedding anniversary on Monday, April 22, with two small parties for friends. Ty's gift to Annabella was a print of "Suez," the picture on which they were working when they fell in love.

BOB HOPE pulled the best gag of his career, and without the aid of his writers. He put his name, alone and unassisted, on the dotted line of a new Paramount contract for two years, three pictures a year with options for more. The studio tore up the present agreement, which had five more years to go. Bob gets his salary doubled. Suggestion for a studio slogan: BOB, the white HOPE, of Paramount.

JOE PENNER has the strangest reason of any star for his change from the RKO lot and run-of-the-mill pictures to a better break at Universal. Joe says it's all because Anne Schreiber, palmist and student of the Cabala, told him that his bad luck came from his middle name, "Alexander." The "x," she hinted, meant sickness, bad pictures, in fact, everything dire. Miss Schreiber suggested that "Loughlan" would be a happier middle name for Joe. So now he signs all checks and official papers with the name Joe L. Penner. Result: He attributes his being cast in "The Boys

From Syracuse" to this name swap.

BETTE DAVIS fans needn't get too excited about the fact that Bob Taplinger, Warner publicity head, went to Honolulu on the S. S. Monterey with her. This very eligible man-about-the-studios has been seen about with Fay Wray, June Duprey, Mary Healy, Jinx Falkenberg, Margaret Lindsay, Rosemary Lane, Judy Ford, Suzanne Brewster (now Mrs. Steve Hanagan) and Carole Landis. Of interest: Bob Taplinger's romantic record has been so varied that Hollywood wags have for some time dubbed him One-Date Bob.

Deanna Durbin's next will be a costume picture; Linda Darnell outwits New York racketeers; Bob Hope signs new contract, gets salary doubledthese are the highlights of the week's news in Hollywood!

LORETTA YOUNG, with radio's Tom Lewis (producer of "Screen Guild Theater"), danced at Ciro's after the preview of "The Doctor Takes a Wife," in which she starred. Rumor has it this is love!

PRISCILLA LANE interrupted her Yucca Loma vacation to do a Red Cross short subject for Warners. She has been off salary for more than six weeks, and was still without a picture at this writing. Intimates say: "When Priscilla does return to the lot, she won't renew her off-screen romance with assistant director Oren Hage-lund."

GEORGE RAFT has the local newshounds a-dither with the statement he made casually on the set of Warners'
"They Drive at Night." Said George:

"Oh well, perhaps one of these days I'll have a studio of my own. At least that's what they tell me. Then I can have things my own way." Interesting: Girl friend Norma Shearer has plenty of stock in M-G-M, an amount sup-posed to be a controlling interest!

STYLE OF THE WEEK: Paulette Goddard playing in the British War Relief Fund tennis matches at the Hotel Ambassador in a white tennis costume of a fabric reminiscent of oldfashioned poplin. Over classic shorts and blouse, Miss Goddard wore a short full skirt, edged with dark red rickrack braid, and belted with the same braid. Exciting note: A baby lamb full-length coat cut exactly like a tailored top-coat, with silver buttons and a gaudy red-and-green flowered lining. Silk ankle socks in white to match plain canvas sneakers completed the outfit.

GINGER ROGERS is going overboard on this natural business. In the days before pigtails, black hair and "The Primrose Path," the actress was so sensitive about her still portraits that even the proofs had to be retouched before she was allowed to see them. Ginger has a mole on her cheek and she's always been self-conscious about it. Now she blithely looks at the rawest proofs, and demands that they be retouched as little as possible. Comment: Can love, which makes some people blind, have opened Ginger's eyes to the beauty of genuineness?

ROSEMARY LANE'S daily red roses from Buddy Westmore are placed in her dressing-room on the set of Uni-

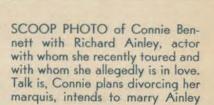

ANNA NEAGLE (left) was escorted to a party given in her honor following the premiere of her newest starrer, Herbert Wilcox, the British director, with whom she's often seen versal's "The Boys From Syracuse." CHARLES LAUGHTON, who brought Maureen O'Hara to this country from England to play opposite him in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," is turning over her contract to RKO. Said Maureen when queried if Laughton would still influence her career: "He will always be my guiding hand."

IDA LUPINO draws the dramatic role of the murderess in Warners' "They Drive at Night," with Ann Sheridan coming in for a very light part as Cassie, the wisecracking waitress. Sighed Ann: "The studio won't let me be a murderess, and I wanted to be one so badly." Family record: The Lupino family is the busiest in its theatrical history. Sister Rita is dancing in New York in the Mitchel Leisen show. Mother Connie is directing a local little-theater play, "Come to My House." Papa Stanley Lupino is playing on the London stage in "Sunny Side Up." And just to complete the record, son-in-law Louis Hayward gets a role in the new Carole Lombard picture, "Have It Your Own Way."

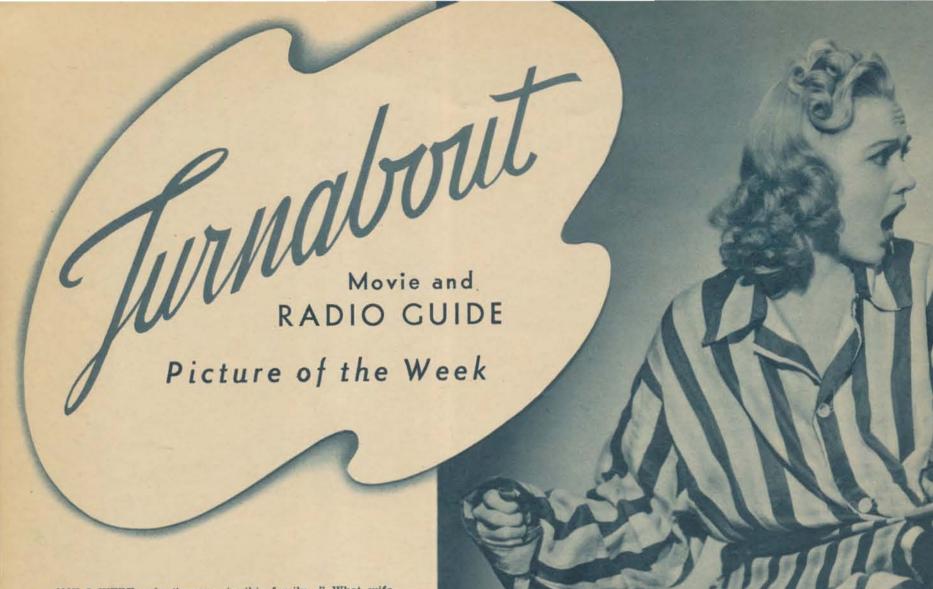

GREGORY RATOFF called a halt in the production of "Public Deb Number One" at 20th-Fox, rushed to the telephone and rang Louis B. Mayer's office at M-G-M. The cast, expecting something very important was in the wind, sat on the edge of their chairs until the director returned. "All right," he said when he came back, "we'll go to work again. That horse I was going to bet at Tanforan has been scratched!"

ORSON WELLES still continues to cultivate speculation. The latest rumor is that he will do a comic strip about Hollywood folk. Local citizens, who are beginning to feel a bit satiated with the constant stream of publicity about this overfed and underworked young man, are suggesting that a film be made about him and his efforts to gain a foothold in the city of his contempt. A wag's title suggestion: "All's Well That Ends Welles."

BOB BURNS, having been tried in musicals, comedies, sentimental hu-man-interests, hillbillies and political yarns, winds up his three-year contract with Paramount in a small-budget flicker, "Comin' Round the (Continued on Page 16)

If I WERE only the man in this family—" What wife hasn't said that at least once, and what husband hasn't echoed his wife's desire? Now Hal Roach, remembered for his "Topper" series, presents the story of what would happen if these not really intended wishes came true when a young executive and his wife give voice to such desires in front of a strange deity who has the power to grant their wishes. With Carole Landis, John Hubbard, William Gargan, Verree Teasdale and Adolphe Menjou in the cast, here is a ludicrous tale of husband and wife who find their relationships reversed. Right: Husband and wife John Hubbard and Carole Landis.

THE STAR-STUDDED cast is hand-picked for comedy. Franklin Pangborn (left) as a cantankerous client of the advertising agency, turns out to be hard to handle, is placated by agency excutives William Gargan (center), Adolphe Menjou

BELOW: The family trouble, starting with the bear, came to a head when Dopey, a Great Dane and Hubbard's pet—but unfortunately his wife's bane—took to sleeping in Hubbard's bed. This was the absolute and final straw

SHARING THE BLAME for Hubbard's marital troubles with Dopey was his secretary, Verree Teasdale (with him, center). Secretaries to his partners are (I.) Margaret Roach, with William Gargan; (r.) Polly Ann Young, with Menjou

Loretta Young, Ray Milland score in "The Doctor Takes a Wife"; "'Til We Meet Again" is heart-warming story

"'Til We Meet Again"

Cast: Merie Oberon, George Brent, Pat O'Brien, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Binnie Barnes, Frank McHugh, Eric Blore, et al. A Warner Bros. picture, produced by Hal B. Wallis; directed by Edmund Goulding, who also directed "Dawn Patrol."

II ITIL WE MEET AGAIN" is a new version of the popular "One Way Passage," an emotional romantic drama which starred William Powell and Kay Francis. The new version has George Brent and Merle Oberon cast in the parts of the girl about to die of heart trouble and George Brent as the man returning to pay for an old crime in the electric chair at San Quentin. The story of their hopeless love, blossoming on the ship bringing them back to the U. S. from China, is as beautifully done film drama as you are likely to see for some time.

The story (told in detail in MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE for April 20-26 under the title "Liars In The Name Of Love") is a touching story of deep and hopeless love and of two brave people who refused to admit their plight one to the other. Nor is it as hopeless and depressing as it seems in bare relation, for the film ends on the strong note that they will meet again . . . and that theirs is the sort of love that survives even death.

Completely adequate in their parts are George Brent and Merle Oberon, who play deeply emotional roles with fine restraint and sure touch. The supporting cast—Binnie Barnes, Frank McHugh, Eric Blore and Pat O'Brien—is carefully selected.

The cruise ship made its voyage from Hongkong to San Francisco without leaving the Warner lot. It was built in eighteen sets, and the extras who played passengers for the cruise were assured of seven weeks' work when they started. It would have been impossible to change passengers in midocean. The Bar of All Nations in Hongkong, where the lovers met, is reputed to be the longest bar in the world. The art director for this did his best to make this sequence effective and accurate. He built the longest bar in Hollywood.

Cast: Loretta Young, Ray Milland, Reginald Gardiner, Gail Patrick, Edmund Gwenn, Frank Sully, Gordon Jones, Georges Metaxa, et al. A Columbia picture, produced by William Perlberg; directed by Alexander Hall.

N a season which has seen many fine laugh-provoking films come out of the studios, here is a comedy which promises to top them all and establish Loretta Young and Ray Milland as a comedy team comparable with Cary Grant and Irene Dunne or Carole Lombard and Fredric March. With hilarious situations, sparkling lines and a mile-a-minute pace, "The Doctor Takes a Wife" is grand comedy.

Loretta Young is a career girl who has just written a best-selling novel praising spinsterhood. Then, at a wedding party, she meets Ray Milland, a research medico, and they have a lovely time spitting sarcasms at each other until, next morning, they find that the newspaper has erroneously reported them man and wife. Denials don't count, and in order to protect their careers they decide to masquerade as man and wife until it all smooths over. From there on, anything can and does happen.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Variety: "... Earthy, noisy, hilarious farce, built for the mob, offers sure-fire entertainment ..." Hollywood Reporter: "... Undiluted hilarity reigns ..." Los Angeles Times: "... An airy trifle ... more than accept-

"Old Siwash" lives again in film, "Those Were the Days"; Lana Turner wins top honors in "Two Girls on Broadway"

"Those Were the Days"

Cast: William Holden, Bonita Granville, Ezra Stone, Judith Barrett, Vaughan Glaser, William Frawley, Lucien Littlefield, Kitty Clement, et al. A Paramount picture, produced and directed by Ted Reed, who also directed "What A Life": based on the "Siwash" stories by George Fitch.

THOSE were the days, and there's no doubt about it if college life was anything like what it's pictured in "Those Were the Days," the Paramount comedy of life at Knox College (Siwash) in the peg-top pants and mandolin era of 1904.

Good for a laugh a minute, with the "good old day" gently chided rather than ridiculed, this sincere little comedy, handled by a capable cast of youngsters, paints a realistic picture of college life that will be attractive to both the oldsters who attended school in those days and the youngsters of college age today as a basis for comparison.

The story revolves about the efforts of a personality-plus collegian (yes, they had them even then), played by William Holden, who attempts to keep a professor who has never been late to class from getting there to give an exam his roommate, Ezra Stone, is certain to flunk. Original idea was to set the clock back an hour, but one complication led to another until Holden finds himself facing a judge with no stomach for college pranks after he'd stolen a street-car. Holden makes love to the judge's daughter (Bonita Granville) to stave off a stiff sentence and ends up by really falling for Bonita (who has come a long way in pulchritude from the days of her little-brat characterizations). Ezra Stone, radio's "Henry Aldrich," does nicely with his role of the stodgy roommate, but real acting honors go to Vaughan Glaser as a sympathetic and bedeviled father of a collegian at the turn of the century.

A contest in connection with this picture recently run in Movie and Radio Guide will select the All-American College Queen at the film's premiere in Galesburg, Ill. (where Knox is located), on May 21. The winner, selected from hundreds of college campuses, will get a crack at a screen career.

Because this picture was previewed by Movie and Radio Guide'sreviewers before other reviews were in print, the "WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT" feature is omitted.

Cast: Lana Turner, Joan Blondell, George Murphy, Kent Taylor, Richard Lane, Wallace Ford, Otto Hahn, Lloyd Corrigan, Don Wilson, et al. An M-G-M picture, produced by Jack Cummings; directed by S. Sylvan Simon, who also directed "Spring Madeess"

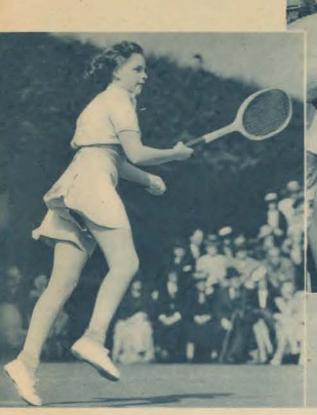

HERE is the story of a backstage Cinderella, with a theme of sisterly sacrifice thrown in, which is really another modernized version of an old favorite, the original "Broadway Melody," pioneer of early sound-film days. Neatly handled and well cast, it gives Lana Turner her first top billing and third consecutive dancing part; Joan Blondell a new type of sincere, straight role, and George Murphy a worthy successor to his highly satisfactory performance in "Broadway Melody of 1940."

In the first film, Bessie Love, Charles King and Anita Page formed the triangle which Joan Blondell, George Murphy and Lana Turner re-enact here. Sweethearts Joan and George crash Broadway and bring sister Lana along for the trip, only to discover that Lana and George have fallen in love with each other. Follows much unhappiness, which ends happily, however, when Joan leaves the dancing-act and returns to her small home town so that Lana and George can have each other.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Picture Reports: "... Smartly turned out, smooth-paced, well-graded ..." Variety: "... Breezy and lilting ..." Hollywood Reporter: "... Grand performances by every member of its cast ..."

BRITISH WAR RELIEF FUND was added to in Hollywood on April 21 when stars staged a "tennis benefit," an event which produced some good tennis and plenty of laughs. Left: Judy Garland in action. Center (I. to r.): Lester Stoeffen, Mickey Rooney, Rudy Vallee and Bill Tilden, who provided the most interesting match. Right: Paulette Goddard. (For details, see "Event of the Week," this page)

Mountain." Paramount officials, having used bazooka-blower Burns in nine types of films, are throwing in the sponge and calling uncle—and not Bob's Uncle Slug. The difficulty lies in the necessity to give him leading roles, because of his excessive salary and his inability to carry a picture on his own. Similarity: Martha Raye's career was down to low ebb for the same reason—being given leads when she's better in a smaller part. Now working in "The Boys From Syracuse," where she has a suitable role, she is again on the way up. Will Bob likewise be given a second chance?

EVENT OF THE WEEK: The English cream of Hollywood society gathered in the Hotel Ambassador on Sunday afternoon, April 21, to watch the screwiest tennis matches staged in this town for a long time. And all for the benefit of the British War Relief Fund. Alan Mowbray, president of the British United Services Club, instigated the event and carried through to an amusing as well as financially remunerative triumph. In addition to matches with Judy Garland, Paulette Goddard, Reginald Owen and Paul Lukas was the big match with Bill Tilden and Mickey Rooney playing Rudy Vallee and Lester Stoeffen. Impeccably attired Doug Fairbanks, Jr., and crusty Britisher C. Aubrey Smith were scorekeepers. Spectators: The Ronald Colmans, Charlie Chaplin with his older son, Charles Chaplin, Jr., Anita Louise with fiance Buddy Adler. Locker-room chatter: Judy Garland hadn't played tennis in three years and was scared to death. Mickey Rooney, who got hoorays even from the stolid British, was thrilled to be playing with Bill Tilden. Seven years ago he retrieved balls for the champ on the Los Angeles tennis courts.

GENE AUTRY, decked out in a white-felt cowboy outfit (almost as startling as his canary-yellow suit), was the film star who attracted the most attention and autograph-collectors at the Hollywood stars ball game the other eve. Amid a galaxy of first-raters that included Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor, George Raft (minus Norma Shearer, for once), Gail Patrick and husband Bob Cobb who owns the team, the Ritz Brothers, Susan Hayward, Jane Wyman and Ronald Reagan, Maxie Rosenbloom, Bing and Dixie Lee Crosby—Gene was still the sensation. Admired: His modesty.

CLARK GABLE, supposed to be hit on the side of his neck in a scene in "Boom Town," incautiously moved at the wrong time and caught the blowwhich was light—in his face, resulting in a split upper lip. Slightly painful, only real harm was closing down of the company for two days until the Gable mouth lost its swelling.

SPRING BYINGTON, featured actress in "The Jones Family" series, told Kraft Music Hall listeners about her new invention recently. Invention is a white glove to be worn on the left hand by auto drivers at night. The glove has a line of miniature red glass beads on its finger seams to serve as reflectors, making hand signals for left turns visible to the car behind. Warning: The beads are not visible, however, if the lady forgets to stick out her paw.

JOHNNY WEISSMULLER, going into a new Tarzan picture, laughs when he tells about the caller he had last week. A mother, in all seriousness, called on him and asked him to please teach her two boys how to climb trees like he does before they break their necks. Also requested: A book on how to give the Tarzan cry to conserve youngsters' vocal chords during their false attempts.

CECILIA PARKER, following the trend of many Hollywoodites, celebrated her birthday by taking out her final naturalization papers. A Canadian, she has been here for some years.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT and HEDY LAMARR, meeting for the first time on the set of "Boom Town," where they share feminine top-billing, spontaneously embraced when they were introduced. Long admirers of each other, the two were "genuinely thrilled" over working together. Irony: They spend more time between scenes together than in front of cameras, as they appear only three times in the same scene.

GARY COOPER has a new bicycle with a fancy lettered sign bearing his name. He uses the bike, a fancy chromium streamlined affair, to go from one set to another. Parked next to it on the lot is an old jalopy of a bicycle belonging to his personal friend and stand-in, Slim Talbot. Slim, not content with merely his name, goes Gary one better by having a hand-lettered cardboard sign on his reading "Slim Talbot—PRIVATE." Assurance: The Talbot vehicle, judging from its appearance, is safe from theft!

DEANNA DURBIN went to the preview of Universal's "If I Had My Way" escorted as usual by Vaughn Paul. What was unusual was that none of the fans crowding the Glendale Theater lobby recognized grown-up glamour girl Durbin. Deanna was sleek in black silk jersey with a turban to match, and a silver-fox coat. Indication: Miss Durbin is unknown in Hollywood as a definite adult personality.

ARTURO GODOY, who went the route with boxing champion Joe Louis, and his wife are losing a chance to pick up some easy money in motion pictures. They made one picture for Republic, with such good results that they were offered more film jobs as a team. They had to turn them down, however. Reason: Mrs. Godoy is awaiting the stork.

BRENDA JOYCE, heroine of 20th Century-Fox's "Public Deb Number One," had a day off, supposedly to rest. What she did: Took a rumba lesson with Ralph Bellamy, who can't do "ordinary ballroom dancing," according to Brenda; followed with a boxing-lesson with Fidel La Barba, former flyweight champ. The boxing-lessons are in preparation for a scene in which she takes a sock at Maxie Rosenbloom. Said Brenda, "One of us is going to be a knockout in this picture."

ALLAN JONES AND IRENE HER-VEY have been married four years, but no one thought of putting them in a picture together until Eddie Sutherland cast them for "The Boys From Syracuse." Allan, first to discover that he and Irene were to play man and wife on the screen, rushed home to tell her. Said Irene, "Oh, how awful." Both were jittery the first day of the picture, which began with a scene showing them together. Allan plays a dual role, making love to Rosemary Lane as well as Irene. Asked to comment on this new turn in his cinematic life, he said: "It's a funny thing. Although my wife and I have never been in the same picture, our separate films have always played double bills at the local theaters." Question: Will moviegoers mind husband and wife playing husband and wife?

KAY ALDRIDGE, former John Powers model and present 20th Century-Fox contract player, is rumored eloping with the veddy social John Swope. Kay remarked: "I want a woodsy, clean-scrubbed husband who will be crazy about me but smart enough not to let me know it. I haven't found him yet. Marriage is a question of geography. If I stay in Hollywood I'll eventually get married here. But I am thinking of returning east. Hollywood is not good husband-hunting territory."

STUNT-MAN Buster Weyles praised Errol Flynn for personally making three thirty-five-foot high jumps from deck to deck of two ships in the Warner sound-stage pond for "The Sea Hawk," and insisting that checks for stunts be sent to out-of-work stunters. Weyles, working on the same picture, modestly said: "I don't do much on this picture. Yesterday I was hanged and had a mast fall on me. This morning all I did was tumble backward down a flight of stairs."

CHARLOTTE GREENWOOD sent a copy of Movie and Radio Guide to her housekeeper in Flushing, Long Island. Charlotte said: "My housekeeper, a former theatrical chum who is more of a friend than a servant, will leave my company without a word to listen to her favorite radio programs. She's a rabid ether fan. I'm sending her Movie and Radio Guide so she can plan her week and, incidentally, get some work done about the house, too."

SPENCER TRACY is still laughing over Jimmy Stewart's description of a flight to Palm Springs. Jimmy flew to the Springs for an afternoon of tennis. On the way back he had to fight a strong headwind, so he flew very low, fo'lowing the road most of the way. "What kind of time did you make?" asked Spencer. "Not so good," Jimmy drawled, "not so good. I spent most of the time leaning out of the cockpit watching the Fords go by!"

BOB HOPE'S SHIP COMES IN

And this is what happens when a radio comedian reaches the top!

FAMOUS FOR HIS AD-LIB WIT, Bob Hope is in demand constantly to emcee at banquets. Above: Former National Commander Quinn offers kiss in appreciation of Bob's services at Legion convention banquet last fall

LIONIZED as a leading U. S. comic, Bob gets around. He visited the New York World's Fair last year, went to a Broadway show and exchanged wise-cracks with Mayor LaGuardia, among other New York celebrities

BOB DOES PRESENTATIONS at fairs and conventions nicely. On another trip east he presented a loving-cup to "Miss New York World's Fair"

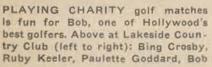

BOB HOPE is the hottest thing in radio.

Two years ago he rated ninth in the second se AND RADIO GUIDE'S Star of Stars "best comedian" poll, one year ago he leaped to third place and in the 1940 poll he's surpassed only by Jack Benny himself. Explanations pop up on every side, With a cast which includes Judy Garland, Jerry Colonna, Brenda and Cobina, say some, how can a comedian go wrong? Others point wisely to Mr. Hope's stardom in "Ziegfeld's Follies," "Red, Hot and Blue" and other Broadway hits before his radio-film debut. But chief among the proffered explanations is the Hope facility for meeting people with a manner which immediately puts them under his fun-making spell. As this facility has become more and more evident on his Tuesday night (NBC) show, requests from all quarters have poured in for Bob's emcee services at banquets, conventions, fairs. His ship has come in-and pushing on to its decks are lionizing throngs of admirers who follow him everywhere. Now, on this tremendous wave of popularity, Bob Hope has been persuaded to launch a nation-wide personal-appearance tour, and very appropriately the tour will take him to Chicago where he made his first important bid for vaudeville fame some years ago. Radio listeners-at the Chicago Theater for a week beginning Friday, May 17, and all over America-are having the opportunity to meet their inimitable Mr. Hope (and his troupe, Jerry Colonna, Brenda and Cobina) in person. Pictures on this page offer an inkling of what's in store for fans.

NOT TO PLAY FAVORITES, Mr. Hope rushed to the San Francisco fair last summer also to be installed as Mayor of Treasure Island for a day

AT THE PRESIDENT'S "March of Dimes" Bob wanted to shave off Orson Welles' (I.) whiskers with the aid of George Burns. The Hope touch livens up many a benefit broadcast Movie and Radio Guide's Star of Stars results in "Best Comedian" division for 1940 place Bob Hope second. In 1939 he was third; in 1938 he was ninth. Points indicate percentage of total vote polled.

Bach is perennially welcome; and so is Handel, particularly in his dramatic works. "Semele," by some called an oratorio, by others an opera, had most performances in the latter guise, during the second half of the eighteenth century. It was composed to a story taken from an opera-book by Congreve, colebearted Faulick demonstrat.

Musical Artists Go 'Round and she turned to touring the country successfully as a concert singer . . . Now, after nearly three years in that

By Leonard Liebling

UCH like the somewhat notorious song whose title is the caption of this article, certain musical artists have burst into quick glory on the air only to make an almost equally rapid disappearance into obscurity.

However, while the song probably never will come back, some of the artists in question occasionally do. When that happens, they resemble the song less and the famous Mr. Finnegan more. We all are familiar with his legendary series of ins and outs.

The ways of radio sponsors and their advertising agents are so mysterious that I cannot follow them with any degree of intelligent satisfaction. And yet the subject fascinates me constantly.

For instance, a concert or opera artist of high reputation is engaged as the major attraction on a sponsored program. Then ensues the familiar buildup (often ecstatic, not to say hysterical) effected through announcements over the air and press publication by the radio editors and columnists. The glorified one makes a debut, the same ballyhoo sources report the "triumph," the dialers write bales of praiseful letters to the station, and everything appears to be set for a new fixed star of the microphone . . . Lo and behold, the usual thirteen weeks or sometimes twenty-six weeks of the program go by-and so does the "triumphal" artist! He (or she) quietly fades from the air, and that seems to be that . . . Suddenly, sometimes after a long period, another sponsor secures the same artist the same drum-beating and other methods of presentation materialize, and the same wind-up results. Again the abrupt vanishment, once more so complete that it would tax the best efforts of a Philo Vance or Ellery Queen to discover where the exile went.

All this comes to mind afresh with the return to radio of Jessica Dragonette, the former universally adored darling of the dialers. Her case, though, is different from some of the others, for she was on the air for eleven consecutive years without a break—a world's record for any musical artist in radio. Even so, and drawing a prodigious salary, Jessica, too, met the day when her voice was stilled on radio, and she turned to touring the country successfully as a concert singer . . . Now, after nearly three years in that field, she is back again on the air, and under quite glamorous sponsorship and emolument. Somehow her adventure and the related adventures of Lawrence Tibbett, James Melton, Nino Martini, Grace Moore, Gladys Swarthout, Paul Whiteman, Nelson Eddy, et al., do not seem to spell sense of the kind you and I could easily understand.

Either those artists are brilliant and desirable or they are not. Not one of them loses ability overnight and then renews it after a lapse. Radio listeners, having once received certain artists into their affections, do not tire of them from one day to another. In fact, when one of those periodic disappearances occurs, the protesting fan-mail often reaches mountainous proportions.

If there is any logical explanation of the phenomenon, I cannot think of it at this moment. Should I be able to guess the answer, I shall be glad to relay it to you.

New Books and Records Reviewed

CHOPIN'S MAZURKAS. Volume II. Played by Arthur Rubinstein, planist. Victor Album 656.

Many people claim that Chopin was never more characteristically Polish nor more completely himself than in the Mazurkas. Victor has done a service in recording all of them in two volumes, of which this is the second. Arthur Rubinstein, a Pole himself, plays the Mazurkas with atmospheric understanding and feeling. However, the full poetry and delicacy with which Paderewski and De Pachmann imbued them are somewhat lacking. The recording is a good one and the set is well worth owning.

UNDER THE SPREADING CHESTNUT TREE.
Theme and variations by Jaromir Weinberger,
The London Philharmonic Orchestra, Constant
Lambert, conductor.

Both Columbia and Victor have brought out this jolly, heart-warming piece by Weinberger, premiered here last fall by the New York Philharmonic. There is little choice between the two recordings. Both are good, but neither conductor gives as robust a performance of it as John Barbirolli. However, the piece is fun and should be an added attraction if not quite a star in any collector's library.

PIONEERS IN MUSIC. Lives of the men who were first to develop the chief musical forms, by David Ewen. Thomas Y. Crowell & Company.

Here is a fascinating theme treated by a writer of wide experience in the musical field who has already authored ten previous volumes dedicated to the tonal subject.

Ewen picks out the pioneers who invented novel forms or else made old ones into newer contours and expressions. He shows the beginnings of the symphony; for instance, with Stamitz as its musical Columbus. Opera in its modern sense stems from Montiverdi and a group of early oratorio composers. The sonata, as Ewen points out, for example, had its real start when Corelli developed it for the violin and Kuhnau for the piano.

You will find a wealth of information, much of it unfamiliar, in Ewen's brightly written book, a potent help to sincere music-lovers.

Musician of the Week

Jessica Dragonette

MMEDIATE joy" is the phrase that sums up Jessica Dragonette's artistic philosophy. A song should mean that, more than anything else, to the listener. But it is also an idea that guides her whole way of life. She never forgets a friend's birthday. If someone is sick, hers are the first flowers to arrive. Exquisitely punctilious in everything she does, she epitomizes that hard-worked, much-abused word—lady.

This writer first remembers her as a tiny wide-eyed girl, fresh from Georgian Court Convent in New Jersey, with a gentle voice and gentle ways, meeting the audiences who used to listen to her over the air.

"I was so buried in radio that I never realized that there were people who wanted to see and hear me off the air," she says. "I was so surprised when I'd arrive in a town and everyone would know who I was."

Besides getting close to her audiences, Jessica had an opportunity of studying their tastes, of investigating the tremendous growth of musical interest in this country, a growth with which she herself had had much to do. Since her first air appearance, when she was acclaimed at once as radio's

Jessica Dragonette was the charming style-setter for many of radio's present musical trends. This week she returns to the air, after several years of concert work, as soprano soloist of the "Ford Summer Hour" (CBS, Sunday) self-effacing and inconspicuous. At the famous Christmas parties given by her teacher, Estelle Liebling, she sat timidly in corners, smiling uncertainly and in some surprise if anyone noticed her. Only occasionally was the spotlight thrown on her, when she was begged to do some of her uncannily clever imitations of popular musical favorites. Then, with the help of a scarf or flower, she would transform herself into any number of famous prima donnas.

After making one of the most phenomenal careers known to radio and after several years of concertizing, Jessica hasn't changed noticeably. When she floats onto a concert platform in a cloud of pastel chiffon or tulle, she looks more than ever like a child's conception of the fairy queen. The gentle, almost prim ladylike quality is still there. She sits straight up in her chair when she talks, like a good little girl trying to keep her best dress from creasing. And her eyes still gaze into her listener's with heartfelt earnestness. But added to these things, a new awareness of life, a deeper, more meditative philosophy, a greater maturity of thought. During the last few years since she left radio, she has traveled all over the country, giving recitals and perfect voice, she has set records for the number of radio firsts in which she participated. She was the first to perform Shakespeare on the air, the first radio singer to do acting on radio. She sang on the first international broadcast, sang the first straight concert program on radio, and appeared on the first General Motors broadcast, which had so much to do in influencing radio's discovery of good music.

None of those things were haphazard. For under all the tulle and chiffon and the golden curls is a keenly intelligent, tirelessly active woman, who knows radio from the ground up, whose musicianship has earned the respect of great conductors, and who never stops studying, learning and perfecting herself. She has great respect for her audiences and never sings down to them.

Above all, she works unceasingly to improve her voice so that it shall be an instrument completely under her control, to be used at will. She believes that "the singer must bring something of flight to song—never be pedestrian. To song must be brought something of the perfume of flowers, some crystalline purity; joy, hate, indifference; poetry; beauty; love and devotion."

-Viva Liebling.

SHORT-WAVE ON A 24-HOUR BASIS

"HAT short-wave radio has become a tremendously important factor in the war no one can Those who have been closely following this column will recall that for the past two or three years the leading European powers have been engaged in a feverish struggle for choice short-wave frequencies, each seeking to establish its supremacy in the field of inter-national broadcasting by building more and more transmitters and at the same time continually boosting the power of those already in use. All of this activity was designed for one purpose only: That when war came, as they all knew it would soon, they would be in a position to blast forth with more voices and louder voices than the enemy. Each government had an idea that short-wave radio would play an important part in the war but in their most fantastic dreams no one even guessed at the incredible role that it is actually playing today in the influencing of thought throughout the world. At the prestime England's world service undoubtedly heads the list, with Germany and Italy a very close second; France in third place and coming up fast, and Soviet Russia still trailing as a poor fourth.

EACH of the countries mentioned above broadcasts on practically a twenty-four-hour daily basis, each day's schedule being broken up into an elaborate system of transmis-sions, each directed to a specific country or continent where shortwave reception is most favorable at that hour. In addition, to influence as many listeners as possible, these broadcasts are radiated in the languages that are used in the countries to which the programs are be-broadcasts to listeners in the United States, the programs are announced in excellent English; when Paris or Berlin broadcasts to listeners in Latin America, the programs are announced in equally good Spanish or Portuguese, and when they transmit to the Near East, all announcements are in equally fluent Arabic. The extent to which this multi-language system has been carried out can best be illustrated by London's world service, which in addition to English is now radiated in eighteen other languages, including Afrikaans, Arabic, Bulgarian, Czech, Finnish, French, German, Greek. Italian, Magyar, Norwegian, Polish. Portuguese, Roumanian, Serbo-Croat, Spanish, Swedish and Turkish. A huge staff of translators, news editors and announcers are needed to handle this complicated set-up. Some of these foreignlanguage broadcasts are audible in North America, others are not. In answer to numerous requests for particulars as to the hours at which some of the leading foreignlanguage broadcasts from London can be heard, I have compiled the following list of the main ones audible in this country (CST):

ing directed. When Paris or Berlin

FRENCH: 6:15 a.m., GSV (17.81); 3:00 p.m., GSP (15.31); 5:45 p.m., GSD (11.75).

GERMAN: 6:30 a.m., GSV (17.81); 2:00 p.m., GSD (11.75); 3:15 p.m.,

2:00 p.m., GSD (11.75); 3:15 p.m., GSP (15.31).

ITALIAN: 6:45 a.m., GSV (17.81); 12:30 p.m., GSC (9.58).

PORTUGUESE: 7:00 a.m., GSV (17.81); 4:45 p.m., GSF (15.14); 6:00 p.m., GSE (11.86).

SPANISH: 8:00 a.m., GSV (17.81); 4:30 p.m., GSF (15.14); 8:00 p.m., GSC (9.58).

FROM EUROPE: London's transmission six, for North America, is now being radiated nightly from 8:40 to 10:30 p.m. CST, over GSD (11.75) . . . Arranged in collaboration with the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. London now presents a program known as the "CBC Half-Hour" weekly on Mondays at 6:00 p.m. CST over GSD (11.75) . . . The Belgian government's new 40,000-watt shortwave station, ORY (11.72), will soon be broadcasting to the Belgian Congo daily from 12:30 to 2:00 p.m. CST, in parallel with ORK (10.33). My personal guess is that this new station is being groomed for propaganda if or when war breaks out in that country . The English news bulletin from Budapest can be heard at 5:50 p.m. CST over HAT5 (9.625) . . . Lord Haw Haw, famous Oxford accented English announcer of the Berlin station whose wit has made him a great favorite with British listeners, can now be heard daily at 3:15 p.m. CST over DJD (11.75) and DXB (9.61). The London announcers get off a pretty good joke now and then also, as for example that one about a decree that was supposed to have been passed in Germany prohibiting anyone naming their race-horses Adolf. Herman or Ribbentrop for fear they might come in trailing the field as "also

Men BEHIND THE Mial

Number 1

The Author-by Carlton E. Morse-as told to Kate Holliday

All over the country as you read this, hundreds of people are turning dials to find a pet radio program. For them—the audience—radio is a simple thing: a mere snapping on of a switch, a moment's wait until the machine is fully awake, and a turn of the wrists.

For the men behind that spinning dial, however, radio is a vastly complicated business, a matter of endless rehearsals, of hours of conferences, of nights spent sleepless in search of an idea.

Most of the men who worry about what you are going to hear on the air are never seen by you. Many are not even of that minority who are heard by you.

The work of radio falls upon the shoulders and brains of eight men—the author, the man in the script department of the broadcasting chain, the producer, the engineer, the soundman, the musician, the announcer, and the actor. It is possible to put on a show without one or more of these—the musician or the soundman, for instance—but the others are completely necessary. We are going to take you behind the dial and introduce you to the men who create the programs you hear. They will tell you in their own words what part they play in the business which is radio.

ISS HOLLIDAY has asked me to tell you what my part—or any writer's part—is in radio broadcasting.

Though it is extremely difficult to gauge the importance of the script, I might say that the work of the writer is the trunk of the tree upon which grow all the other branches of radio. The characterizations of the actors, the producer's conception of the show as a whole, the work which is done by the soundmen and musicians—all this depends on the writer and what he has written for their use.

I am going to try to tell this as simply as possible, as I find that often authors get themselves involved in flowery phrases when they are trying to describe their work and, by so doing, lose the sense of what they are attempting to say. So if I don't sound "like an author," forgive me!

In the first place, I write and direct two shows. Miss Holliday is most interested in the writing of them, but you must understand that, in my case, the two activities go hand in hand. These two shows are completely different in feeling, in plot, and in character. Yet there are certain elements which are true of both which are true of both.

For both of them, I have certain mechanical methods of writing. I have divided the week into two parts: On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, I write the life of the Barbour family; on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, I write the adventures of Packard and

Eight men do the work of radio. In this new series they'll show you what goes on behind the dial

(NBC, Sun.), Star of Stars serial-drama winner, and "I Love a Mystery" (NBC, Thurs.), which ranked third

I usually arrive at the NBC studios in Hollywood at about 7:30 in the morning. (Grimace from Miss Holliday!) And I usually am without any definite idea of what I am to write. If I am lucky and it is a good day, I get ideas as soon as I sit down at the typewriter. Some days, of course, I don't. I sit, and I sit, and I chew my fingernails. Then I just forget about the whole thing for the day and go fishing! The nearer I get to my dead-

his two friends in "I Love a Mystery."

For several years I have been writing serials; that is, radio shows which do not end their action in fifteen or thirty minutes. This is by far the easiest type of radio writing to do. I know: I have done both types. And, in the creating of a continued story, certain elements must be kept in view.

line, however, the easier it is to write.

"One Man's Family" has been on the air for nine years. Naturally, it would have been impossible to keep any audience interested in only one character all that time. I have had to build a series of characters, one of which was never the star of the show or held the spotlight for too long a stretch. This also gives me the advantage of having more material to work with in the matter of plots and situations.

I usually try to keep two or three plots boiling in the script of "One Man's Family." One of these is obviously the most important at a given time, but any of the others may be brought forward immediately when I feel that the first situation has begun to pall on my audience. This not only gives me a chance to work from different angles and keep my own interest alive, but it also gives my audience a change of scene.

However, I rarely have more than one complication occurring at one time in the life of one character. It becomes too complicated and too overdrawn when that happens.

While I am on this point, let me say that the keynote of all radio writing is, to me, simplicity. Or, call it naturalness. Too much of any one thing, whether it be plot or the number of characters or the length of a speech, will destroy the effect intended. The script will become ridiculous.

Therefore, whether I am writing about the family or about Packard, I write basically the same. The main difference is that "One Man's Family" is essentially characterization, scenes which are built around what a given character will do in a given situation, while "I Love a Mystery" is primarily plot—plot which may land the characters in situations as exotic as the human imagination can conceive.

Character in both cases is of the highest importance, since I have found that no audience will listen to any show for long which is not written around characters which interest it. The listeners must be able to know and understand the men and women about whom you are telling the story, and to feel, because they do know Packard or Betty, sympathetic toward those people. But the characters must be simple, easily understood.

Simplicity enters into the mechanics of writing, too. I have found that the number of characters which are used in a script makes a great deal of difference in the way in which that script is received. Naturally, too many people telling a story is confusing. I would say that in a fifteen-minute show, one should never use over six people. In a half-hour show, never more than nine

The dialog itself should be natural. The speeches should be short, to the point, with punch to them. If a thought cannot be told in two or three lines by one character, his speech should be broken into by another and the thought continued by the second man. In that way, the writer avoids "readiness" and "talkiness" in his scripts.

It is highly difficult to tell people about the actual business of writing. The only analogy which comes to my mind is that of telling someone about a flower. One describes the color and texture and the shape of the flower, but to someone who is blind these are only words. He still has not actually seen the flower itself. Trying to tell someone what writing is is as difficult to put into words.

And it is doubly hard since most writers can't explain the process themselves. They know the actual tools, yes, but they still don't know why it is that some days they can write ten perfect pages, and the next day write ten destined for the waste-basket.

In the matter of radio, this is as true as in any other field of writing. And it devolves upon us writers to avoid these bad days as often as possible. For as I said in the beginning, without a script you are nearly always without a program. The script is the foundation upon which every other part of the structure of radio is built.

FIRST FAMILIES

THESE ARE THE GOOKS

SINCE 1932 the Gooks of "Vic and Sade" have been drawing out their loquacious, homy lives in Bloomington, Ill., for the benefit of listening eavesdroppers. They were created by young Bloomington-born Paul Rhymer, the author, and have become even more Gookish at the hand of director

Ted MacMurray. As one of the first of radio's first families they now introduce our new "first family" series.

The Gooks are a pleasantly typical family of three. Sade (played by Bernardine Flynn) is the good-humoredly nagging wife of Vic Gook, a bumbling, talkative, small-town clerk. Vic (played by Art Van Harvey) is continually being interrupted in his newspaper reading by his son Rush (played by Billy Idelson), who has an adolescent yen for reading adventure thrillers aloud. On the Gook front porch, around the dining-table, in the parlor, these three-and no more-have exploited every known comedy situation. They still rate ace-high with listeners. In real life, Vic is a former broker's clerk; Sade is a one-time actress protege of Zona Gale, is now Mrs. Doherty of Chicago; Rush is a Northwestern University undergraduate. You may hear them Mon. through Fri. over NBC.

This article takes its inspiration from the multitudes who hurdled the obstacles and survived the opposition, from the artists who refused to get bogged down in the slough of radio's noman's-land, from the ideas that "couldn't be done."

Back in 1936 when David Sarnoff conceived the idea of a radio symphony under Toscanini's leadership, he was battling the sort of odds even Lloyds of London would turn down. Toscanini was a giant NO. For one thing, Arturo had stalked off the Philharmonic podium in a huff, swearing before his departure for Italy that he'd never set foot again on American soil. Approaching the choleric conductor with an American offer-even though it glistened with a promise of over $50,000 a season—was like applying fire to a keg of dynamite. Not that Toscanini wasn't musician enough to appreciate the harmonious jingle of coin. But the man who left the Philharmonic in the lurch would surely never consent to lead a radio orchestra. After weeks of confinement with his head "resting" immobile on an iron pillow, the young actor emerged whole but minus the ability to pronounce sibilants. He gave up acting and went into the business of importing olives from Greece. That was nine years ago. Then he fell in love, and found in the woman who said "yes" the inspiration to overcome the big NO in his acting career. Perseverance, practise, a long course of speech study and an immense native talent combined to put Ken Delmar back among radio's acting elite where he SOMETIMES radio itself is faced with the necessity of bringing in hardto-get outsiders for guest appearances, distinguished personages steeped in the legend of their own untouchability. For ten years artists' bureaus of major networks sought in vain to engage the great Ignace Jan Paderewski. offered their souls and a lot of money as collateral for a couple of sonatas. But not one note would Ignace play. With every proposition meeting flat refusal, networks finally gave up trying to annex the Pole. Everybody, that is, except a persistent George Engles, now managing director of the NBC Artists Service. Engles, taking a chance that maybe the hundredth time might work the charm, entreated Paderewski by cable. Paderewski was back in a flash with a yes. The temperamental planist, having stormily rejected all chances to play under ideal conditions in CBS and NBC studios, had unaccountably agreed to a transatlantic broadcast with all its fades and cracklings. Radio scratched its head while perseverance up at NBC reaped its reward.

Then there was the unapproachable Miss Shirley Temple, who turned down fabulous sums in what promised to be a lifelong boycott of radio. But some anonymous whiz in the entertainment world hit on a scheme, fantastic in its simplicity. He asked Shirley to go on the air-for nothing. Listeners soon got their only earful of hard-to-get Shirley. The radio field is full of women who pit female grit against masculine obstinacy with alarming losses for the brawny sex. Upon the closing down of a WPA stage production in which their patriotic song saga "Ballad for Americans" served as the finale number, young Earl Robinson and John Latouche refused to believe it meant the end for their composition. They continued singing their multi-voiced extravaganza in diluted duet form at small parties. But the Broadway critics had failed to commend their work and everybody else naturally felt obliged to give it the cold shoulder. One evening CBS producer Norman Corwin heard the piece, detected its worth, and engaged Paul Robeson to sing it with a chorus on "Pursuit of Happiness." Result? Columbia's switchboards in New York and Hollywood were clogged for two hours with congratulatory calls, unprecedented fan mail poured in, "Ballad for Americans" was repeated twice on the air, was purchased by M-G-M and earned for Earl Robinson (who once flunked out of the University of Washington) a Guggenheim fellowship. Which shows what radio can do for an egg laid on Broadway.

DROBABLY the greatest technical achievement in recent it-can't-bedone history is the transmission of four-way conversations between American and European news commentators, an exclusive CBS innovation embodying a deep, dark secret which other networks evidently have not yet penetrated. Before Columbia's assistant traffic manager, A. H. Petersen, went to work on the project, four-way chats were considered out of the question for several reasons. For one thing they'd require tying up at least eight transatlantic radiotelephone channels. That's almost all the channels in existence and nobody would have permitted a monopoly by one network. Furinspiration right in that department for thermore, there was the unconquered some day unleash from the earth.

on his head. Now don't ask me and don't, for goodness' sake, ask A. H. Petersen how it was done. But CBS succeeded in reducing the transatlantic circuits needed to two and eliminated the hateful feedback. Petersen explained the set-up to his colleagues abroad in a laborious three-hour telephone conversation. It was probably the haziest blueprint in wireless history, but the far-away technicians got the drift, and Kaltenborn's "Come in, Paris," "Come in, London," "Come in, Prague," "Come in, Berlin" provided four-way rebuttal to the defeatists who claimed it couldn't be done.

When MBS' Dave Driscoll, noted for his exclusive radio coverage of Howard

Hughes' round-the-world flight, decided to aim powerful short-wave signals at Mars to see if they'd bounce back, he ran into the usual guffaws. The scheme had scientific value, for if the beams bounced it would demonstrate the presence of minerals on Mars. Last summer when the planet passed unusually close to earth, Dave Driscoll assembled a crowd of doubting scientists at Baldwin, L. I., and while a skeptical nation listened in on longwave sets, directed a code signal at the heavenly body. Even up till the last minute the plan was thought impossible. Fifteen seconds of the twentythree required for a signal to complete a round trip to the skies and back quickly passed. Then sixteen went by, seventeen, twenty, twenty-two-twenty-three and then . . . there burst the realization that nothing, absolutely nothing, was going to happen. Nothing did happen. It WAS impossible. The scientists had been right. NO was the answer! But Dave Driscoll had given Mutual plenty of swell publicity.

And really, it's awfully refreshing to find at least one thing in radio that can't be done. Something that still remains to be accomplished. Why, right now Mars is in its heaven waiting to shoot back the short-wave beam that -who knows?-even you or I might Announcer Paul Douglas, currently working on the Fred Waring show and doing sports news periods on WEAF, married socialite Geraldine Higgins of Bronxville, New York, May Fred Allen will be on the air for either Texaco or Gulf next fall. Fred wants an hour show. In the Texaco camp are two factions, one wanting Fred for an hour show, the other favoring him for a half-hour. Gulf wants him for a half-hour. If the Texaco hour-men win, Fred will take that program. Otherwise he'll go to Gulf, because the latter's Sunday night spot is a more choice one.

Marion Talley's fight for custody of her five-year-old daughter, Betty Ruth, was settled May 2 when the singer took the child from the father, Adolph Eckstrom, estranged husband and former voice teacher of Miss Talley. Betty Ruth is to live with her mother nine months of the year and with her father from June 15 to September 15. The parting was a sad one for the father, who has had custody of the little girl since her birth. He sobbed and left the room. Could there be a reconciliation, someone asked. "Absolutely not," said Miss Talley.

No one ever goes out for lunch on the Ameche-Old Gold show any more, and Pat Friday is the cause. Two hours before Pat turns up for rehearsal, she attends cooking-class at U. C. L. A. She made a deal, it seems, with her teacher so that now the cooking-pupils as a class project prepare the Old Gold cast's lunch each Friday in return for a handful of tickets to the broadcast. Then Pat totes the food to the studio, with the result that Ameche, Claire Trevor and Victor Young eat a scientific free lunch each Friday . . . The secret of the reason comes from an authority, Dema Harshberger, who managed Thomas when the custom began. singer is a minister's son, and John's mother, whom he worships, was worried because he had appeared in musicomedy; she feared bad influences. So when Dema proposed to take Thomas out on concert tour, his mother who knew John would never come into her room to bid her good-night if he had been smoking or had taken a drink-admonished him: "All right, John, go on tour, but I want you to be able always to look at my picture at night and say 'Good-night, Mother'" Thomas never forgot, and when radio called he made the farewell a regular ritual for his and all mothers to hear.

"Club Matinee" Cheers British

The balmy "Club Matinee" must be balm for the war worries of the people of Great Britain. Thumbing through a recent issue of Radio Times, our great fellow publication in England, I took a glance at their "Highlights of the Week" of foreign programs. The only American program listed as a "Highlight" was "Club Matinee" for Wednesday, April 17. On that show, master of sillimonies Garry Moore celebrated his first "C. M." anniversary. And on that show a fictitious guest, an English actor named Sir Marshall Beerbohm Tree, read a Shakespearian soliloguy the words of which sounded plenty like "Jumpin' Jive." And on April 17 the British forces first took control of Narvik, Norway.

If you listened to "Carnation Contented Program" April 28 you heard an unusual announcement at the close of the program. It was a eulogy, dig-nified but fraught with feeling, for maestro Josef Pasternack. The elderly conductor, famous as a former director of the Met and of Victor Talking Machine Co., died of a heart attack as they were beginning dress rehearsal that afternoon in the studio. Engineer Dave Kempkes rushed to his side and administered artificial respiration until the doctor arrived, but it was of no avail. There was real and undisguised sadness in the studio as the "show went on" that night, for maestro Pasternack was genuinely admired by his associates for his inspiring personal traits as well as his professional ex-pertness. NBC Music Director Roy Shield is conducting the show for the present.

Born in Milwaukee, Wis., Ayres attended Columbia University in New York, where he boxed be-tween fiddling for campus parties. The fiddle won out, and after three years of traditional "hard knocks," Ayres now batons his band over CBS from the Hotel St. George in Brooklyn and on Bluebird recordings; has for a theme, "You Go to My Head." A cooperative organization, with every musician having some share, the band achieves a maximum of distinctive stylization with a minimum of men, only twelve musicians holding down the podium. OU could call it a paradox. Dick Jurgens' music is usually on the easy going, sentimental side, but the head man himself is the most energetic, hard working, enthusiastic gentleman you'll ever have the pleasure of meeting.

When he sold papers in home-town Sacramento, one route wasn't enough, so he got two-a morning and evening. Mrs. Jurgens made all her children take music lessons, but Dick spent more hours in rehearsing. When he played end for Sacramento High and the Junior College he played hard enough to interest the University of Californiaand they're rather hard to interest. During school, one song wasn't enough, so he wrote two-one for the high school and one for the junior college (they're still being used)

He rarely touches either cigarettes or liquor but smokes the biggest pipe you've ever seen. Two inches across the bowl, caked so thick it barely holds tobacco. To light it, he uses two matches every time.

His tennis games leave a frayed gut on the racket and, though he loves riding, it takes a cross between a Percheron and an Arabian to give him what he wants. Lately interested in home recording, his own individual outfit has already run $3,500. He's boss of the band, his own manager, does a lot of the band's arranging and answers every single letter via dictation -fan or otherwise.

Yet he still finds time to spend an hour or two in the gym, play six nights a week, rehearse, record for Vocalion, and give the better part of an afternoon to a gent who wishes an interview for Movie and Radio Guide

BUT then he's up, shaved, had breakfast and is out walking "Schnapps," the Doberman-Pinscher, by the time the sun has reached the nine a.m. arc which probably accounts for his finding the time. If all this isn't quite the opposite of what you, you, you and you thought a bandleader's life was like, then don't bother to read further.

The full name of this lackadaisical trip-hammer is really Dietrich Heinrich Jurgens, Jr., the second of four chil-Dietrich is German for Dick. which makes it Dick and not Richard.

Though he's the only member of the family that has stuck to music, the children, as a prodigal foursome, used to play such outstanding events as the Moose Lodge dances (his father was a member), church socials and weddings. The roster ran Dick on trumpet, Wilfred on clarinet, Ruth with a violin and Elsie for piano.

"I guess we still could go back to some sort of an association," he re-marked, "Wil is in the printing business, Elsie married a florist, Ruth an undertaker, and I have a band."

Dietrich, Sr., died when Dick was twelve and the family-owned grocery store was sold shortly after. The family stocking was a bit on the light side, so every one got out and dug. Sticking to his one and only interest, Dick organized a seven-piece orchestra during high school. Because all the "musicians" lived within six blocks of each other, spare moments were spent either in rehearsals or playing for whatever local affairs they could. Then it was Dick, Lou Vacca, Bob Lee, Floyd Adams, Carl Brandt, Ronnie Kemper and Herald Winder. seven more men and a girl and you have today's line-up.

The Ten Tarzans of Tahoe were playing at the resort when Dick was involved in an automobile accident which injured his lip. Last New Year's Eve marked the band's tenth anniversary with but three changes in personnel during that time-a most uncommon practise in the whirlwind existence of today's orchestras. As a matter of fact, the whole history of the band is unorthodox. In the first place, Dick is boss but absolute. Secondly, they've gone right up the ladder in the face of all the Goodmans, Shaws and other swing crews during an era of swing mania, yet never playing swing as the jitterbug knows it. Where the majority of present aggregations feature at least the leader on some instrument, the only time Dick plays his horn is on ensemble effects-and then goes back to sit with the last-row brass. The only feature in the Jurgens crew is DICK found "Alice" in a secondhand store while playing at the St. Francis in San Francisco. Her plaintive notes won his heart and approval and he presented her to the band-especially pianist Lew Quadling-as a Christmas ('35) present.

The shop-owner said that her right name was Celeste and that she was born in France many years ago. Though $450 passed over the counter before she was placed in her new home, her worth today is incomputable.

Dumped in snowdrifts, left standing in pouring rain, dropped from bandstands, bumped, kicked and scratched, "Alice" continues to respond with the bright tones that have helped to identify the Jurgens music.

Always willing to comply with the color-scheme of her surroundings, she was born a natural brown but has since been painted black (Memphis) gold (Dallas), red, blue and yellow all (Continued on Page 53)

The Show They Couldn't

Happy accidents made a hit show of "So You Think You Know Music"

By Victor Rosen

AST January CBS decided to take a sustaining program off the air. There was nothing complicated or unusual about that. Time and time again shows had been whisked off the ether without a word being uttered or a hand lifted against the deed. It was routine. Somebody just squiggled his name to a typewriter order and that was that.

But in this case the show was "So You Think You Know Music," and CBS reckoned without its listeners. On Sunday, January 7, it was announced that the program was going on the air for the last time. On Monday, January 8, a deluge of letters, post-cards, telegrams and phone calls poured into CBS and kept pouring in for the next two weeks, until finally CBS officials woke up to the fact they had a bear by the tail. Or maybe it was the other way round, and the bear had them by the tail. When the program returned to the air three weeks after it had been killed, on January 28, it was literally "by popular demand." Today it is known as the "show they couldn't kill." From the start its story has been unusual, though like so many other successes in radio, it was a "happy accident." It all began when Ted Cott, whose brain-baby it is, was working for New York City's municipal station WNYC as announcer, production manager, director, actor, script-writer, commentator and assistant to the office-boy (all, by the way, without salary for some two years). On Saturday afternoon, July 4, 1938, Ted found he had two hours of empty air time on his hands. There had been last-minute cancellations and various other "acts of God" that happen only in radio. He was faced with the problem of filling that gaping two-hour void with something that would be interesting to the radio audience.

Ted decided to emulate Stan Shaw and his famous "Milkman's Matinee." But instead of doing a request program of popular recordings, he devoted it to classical music with amusing chatter between selections. This went on for an hour and a half, at which point Ted began to weary of it himself. So, to get a change of pace, he cooked up an idea out of thin air,

A GUEST PANEL of two musicians, two laymen, has presented many well-known personalities. Expert at quiz games but a layman in music, Professor Quiz was one—and very successful firing them at his five human guineapigs, who answered as best they could,

the actor walking off with top honors. That was that. The time had been filled and everybody had had fun playing the musical quiz game. No one, including Ted Cott, thought anything more about it. That is, until Monday morning, when the mail started coming in with inquiries about the quiz and requests that it be broadcast again. So great was the demand that WNYC decided to try it out as a regular feature and scheduled it for the next Sunday afternoon. The musiquiz went over with a bang. It remained on WNYC thereafter and still is on, even though its creator took the original show, under the name of "So You Think You Know Music," to the Columbia network on June 4, 1939.

ORIGINALLY it was a straight quiz, but fairly early in its history Cott, who is a rather bright young lad, got the idea of combining the "stumping the experts" formula used by "Informa-tion, Please" with the audience-par-ticipation method employed by most quiz programs. It finally evolved into a battle of wits with two musical experts matched against two laymen. And, surprisingly enough, the non-professionals have made a consistently good showing thus far. The pros' batting-average against the amateurs' is only a little better than even. Statistically speaking, they've been right 53.4 percent of the time. And one of the few perfect scores was rung up by one Allan Bendiner, a five-year-old boy. He was able to identify such brain-busters as the Second Movement from the Beethoven Second Symphony and the Finale from the Saint-Saens G Minor Piano Concerto, in addition to naming all thirteen of Wagner's operas (try it yourself and see how far you get). Another innovation in quiz technique was having a judge to serve as final court of appeal on all matters of musical fact. The man selected was that eminent musicologist, Leonard Liebling, who is known to all readers of Movie and Radio Guide as its distinguished music editor. Ted Cott's sympathies, however, are

Ted Cott's sympathies, however, are definitely aligned with the non-professional contestants, since, oddly enough, he is not a musician himself. "So You Think You Know Music"

9. (a) "Meistersinger," (b) "Lohengrin," (c) "Goetterdaemmerung," (d) "Faust."

10. London: Haydn's "London Symphonies and Trios," Vaughan Williams' "London Symphony." Paris: Delius' "Paris, the Symphony of a Great City," Gershwin's "An American in Paris." Athens: Beethoven's "Ruins of Athens." St. Louis: William C. Handy's "St. Louis Blues." Rome: Respighi's "Pines of Rome," "Fountains of Rome," "Roman Festivals," Berlioz' "Roman Carnival Overture." Venice: Ethelbert Nevin's "A Day in Venice," Rossini's "Venetian Carnival." Vienna: Strauss' "Tales from the Vienna Woods," Schumann's "Viennese Carnival Pranks."

His musical attainments are limited to playing Chopsticks on the piano—usually with his bare knuckles—and about the only place he can carry a tune is to oblivion. He characterizes himself as a "musical Joe Doakes," but like so many millions of others, he has a deep love for good music. "I don't know much about music," he will tell you, "but I know what I like." He thinks that music can be enjoyed in the same spirit you enjoy a ball game, a movie or a radio program. There is no reason for approaching a symphony concert or an operatic performance on bended knee. The great composers created their music to give pleasure and joy to listeners.

That Ted's view is correct seems to be proved by the tremendous response "So You Think You Know Music" has received from fans. What is especially interesting is the fact that its audience is not exclusively made up of musi-cians and "longhairs." Doctors, highschool students, hardware dealers, electricians, clergymen, bankers, plumbers, salesmen, housewives, stenogra-phers, lawyers, engineers and kids were among the thousands who wrote in to CBS last January and forced it to put the show back on the air. One of the strongest (and most amusing) pleas came from a girl in Toronto, who wrote: "I have the mumps. I am eight years old and I love your program. I hope you will get enough letters you can be on the air, as I am not taking piano or anything about music, so you see I am learning a lot over the radio, so I hope you will be on the air and so does my mother and friends."

FOLLOW THESE RULES

T. In order to enter this contest, you must send in the official registration coupon which appeared in the April 27-May 3 issue of Movie and Radio Guide, or a facsimile. You need not be a subscriber to enter this contest. When you send in the coupon, you are not only registered as an entrant in this contest, but you will receive, ABSOLUTELY FREE, a 16-page booklet telling how to win and giving many helpful instructions, plus a list of approximately 8,000 eight-letter money-winning words which will be of help to you.

2. The contest will run for ten weeks, ending in the issue of Movie and Radio Guide dated June 29-July 5.

Radio Guide dated June 29-July 5.

3. Each week a diagram will be printed providing a Keyword and seven horizontal blank squares on each line for the purpose of inserting letters to form words as hereinafter provided.

4. To compete, insert on each horizontal line a single word of not more than eight nor less than two letters, the letter of the Keyword in any line to be the first letter of the word you fill in. Each word must consist entirely of letters appearing in the Keyword. 1940 Merriam-Webster New International Dictionary is the official reference authority for this contest. Any English word, including proper nouns, appearing in the dictionary under the letters A to Z inclusive may be used, provided no letter appears therein more often than it appears in the Keyword i. e., if T appears in the Keyword three times, it may be used not more than three times in any horizontal word. Combining and other variable forms not specifically appearing as complete words in the above-mentioned section will not be considered. Tables of whatever nature in the appendix are not authority for this contest. No word may be used more than once in the same diagram.

5. Method of scoring: Each letter in the finished diagram, including the letters of the Keyword.

than once in the same diagram.

5. Method of scoring: Each letter in the finished diagram, including the letters of the Keyword, counts one point the first time it is used, and increases in value by one point upon each successive use. In filling in spaces, place letters below and their values above the curved lines. Thus, above the first letter of the Keyword put the figure 1. Place 2 above the letter the next time it appears and 3 above it the next time it appears, etc. Your completed diagram will show a score number above each letter of each word. Then add up the total of all numbers in the diagram and enter it of line provided below.

6. Clip and save all coupons until your set of ten is complete at the end of the contest. Upon the final diagram a space will be provided for you to enter the grand total of all the diagrams in your entry. Write your name and address on the last diagram and place it at the top when you mail your complete set in. Then send them to WORDS-WITHIN-WORDS EDITOR, Movie and Radio Guide, P. O. Box 5370A. Chicago, Ill. Mail flat by first-class postage.

7. The entry with the largest correct grand total will be considered the best

7. The entry with the largest correct grand total will be considered the best and will be awarded the $500.00 First Prize. In the order of their excellence other entries will receive: Second Prize, $200; Third Prize, $100; Tea Prizes, each $10; Twenty Prizes, each $5. Neattices will count. In the event of ties, duplicate awards will be paid. Furthermore, winners who are subscribers of record as of June 30, 1940, will be paid prizes DOUBLE in value to those listed

The closing date of this contest is July 15, 1940, and entries received after that date will not be considered.

9. No entries will be returned, nor can we enter into any correspondence with any competitor. The judges will be the Contest Board of Movie and Radio Guide, and by entering you agree to accept their decisions as final. Anyone may compete except employes of Movie and Radio Guide and members of their families.

THIS IS DICK JURGENS

at once (Los Angeles) and white as she presently is in Chicago.

"Alice" looks like a piano, has piano keys (four octaves), has little felt hammers and is played like a piano. But "Alice" really is a Mustel Celeste. From her come those bell-like notes which identify the Jurgens style.

Some bands become hits overnight as the result of just one good record in a juke box. Dick Jurgens bounced high with "My Last Goodbye." Unlike most bands, however, he continues to turn them out. "If I Knew Then," a Hundred to One," "Careless," "A Million Dreams Ago" and the re vivals of "Ragtime Cowboy Joe" and "I Only Want a Buddy" are all Jurgens-made hits.

"Any time is all right with me," when asked about New York. "I'm in no hurry and neither are the rest of the boys. Whoever heard of a top bandleader not wanting to go down to New York "for a crack at the bigtime and the big dough." The Midwest booking offices are filled with them and New York is filled with them wishing they could go back to the West.

That proverbial ladder has carried the Jurgens crew along in fine style ever since the first St. Francis Hotel job (his is the only band to have been called back to the Palomar in Los Angeles for a third term), but up until 1936 most of his work was west of the Rockies. During the winter of 1936-37, they opened at the Drake Hotel in Chicago. Originally for four weeks with option, they stayed for twenty. Since then he's been dividing most of his time between Wrigley's Catalina Island Casino and Andrew Karzas' Aragon Ballroom in Chicago.

"Boy!" said Dick reminiscently. "Do I remember the time Mr. Karzas came out to the Coast specifically to audition two bands-Orville Knapp's and ours. No one had told us that he was coming or that, on this particular night, he was coming into the spot where we What someone HAD were playing. told us was that Andrew Karzas liked sweet, sentimental music and emphatically disliked novelties."

"Well, we're right in the middle of what we called, at that time, a 'novelty.' In fact it was 'Tiger Rag' and Ronnie Kemper was doing his monkey act from one of the beams that hung over the rustic bandstand. With the whole band in an uproar, I turned to see how the crowd was taking it, and there, almost at my feet, sat Andrew Karzas. He went back to Chicago the next day-with Orville Knapp's contract in his pocket."

Shortly after that, they played the Drake Hotel stand and were booked into the Aragon as a "second" band for one night. The ballroomites loved him ("we didn't play "Tiger Rag" that night") and he's been playing the spot off and on ever since.

To this day, Andrew Karzas has never mentioned the incident, probably because Dick's popularity induced by the fans has won out. Letters pour in daily at the Aragon, some in complimentary form but a few that are filled with scorn. Regardless what their theme may be, those with any comment whatsoever go up on the wall. The four sides of the backstage office are literally papered with letters and telegrams. One from a prominent movie company states that there's a standing date in the New York studios for the Jurgens band to make musical shorts. Another requests that "My Last Goodbye" be played during a certain broadcast, the writer saying he's planning to commit suicide as the last notes die away, but outstanding of all these communications is a group of wires that were just tacked up two weeks previously. All are from male vocalists now working with other bands.

The answer to the cause of all this did not come from Dick but from a very close friend. Eddy Howard had left the band and Dick was immediately flooded with both wires and phone calls from singers requesting to fill the chair. To all, Dick replied: "I'm sorry. I'd like to use you but I won't hire you away from another band." He auditioned more than 100 persons to fill the bill, took on 16-yearold Gloria (Sandberg) Gilbert (who left high school to join the band) and Lee Johnson as temporaries.

Asked about the future, his comment was logical. "I guess I'm in the music business for the same reason that most men are. I'm in it because it was what I wanted to do. I'm building annuities for the future and when everything is set, I'll probably pull out. While I'm depending on it for a living, I'll do my best to make the venture pay for both myself and those working for me, but when I do quit, I'll quit altogether.'

Dick Jurgens was heard regularly over an MBS net until last week, when he opened a tour of one-night stands.

The Show They Couldn't Kill

If you've listened to the show you have probably been struck by its breezy, informal, cozy, at-home feeling. This is largely due to the emceeing of Ted Cott and the delightful side remarks tossed into the pot by the program's nine-old-men-rolled-intoone, Judge Liebling. On "So You Think You Know Music" each contestant is called before the microphone in turn and is given a time limit on each question. This has scared the daylights out of many famous musicians who have flatly refused to appear on the program for fear of being made to look like fools. Yet the questions generally are easy and can be handled by anyone with a reasonably good musical background. If you don't believe us, on Page 50 are ten representative questions which various well-known musicians muffed (we won't mention their names because we don't want to make them blush). Try them yourself and see how you fare.

Questions are made up in part from those sent in by listeners and in part from those concocted by Cott and Leonard Liebling. Listeners whose questions are used receive a currently popular book on music. As for the contestants, two having the highest score are rewarded with an album of records and a pair of tickets to a New York Philharmonic concert.

These prizes have occasionally produced amusing results. There was the time Erica Morini, the famous violinist, won a pair of tickets to the next Philharmonic concert, at which she was going to appear as soloist. Deems Taylor, CBS' commentator at the Philharmonic broadcasts, won tickets for one of the Sunday afternoon concerts.

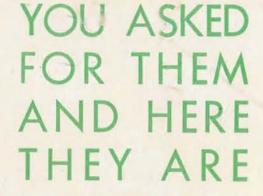

Leonard Liebling's appointment as Lord High Executioner came about in the same roundabout fashion everything else has on this show. He and his daughter, Viva Liebling, whose name is not unknown to readers of this magazine, were invited to match wits with the musical Joe Doakses. They accepted. To his surprise, Mr. Liebling found himself trailing behind Viva when the final returns were in. But he had been such delightful company that Cott asked him to hang up his hat, make himself at home and hang around indefinitely as judge.

Thus far, "So You Think You Know Music" has gone unsponsored, as a sustaining feature on CBS. In the lobby of the Columbia Playhouse in which the program is broadcast there is a sign which reads: "So you think you know music? Do you want to be a contestant? Give an usher your name, address and occupation. May the Lord have mercy on you!" One night several weeks ago Ted found that one of the program's many wellwishers had added this line in big let-"Do you want to be a sponsor?

What the future will hold for "So You Think You Know Music" no one can tell. But it's sure as shooting that if listeners have anything to say, the show is going to be around the airwaves for a long time to come, sponsor or no sponsor. Which would seem to prove that the old saying about building a better mousetrap is still true.

"So You Think You Know Music" may be heard Sunday over a CBS network at:

EDT 2:30 p.m. — CDT 1:30 p.m. EST 1:30 p.m. — CST 12:30 p.m. MST 11:30 a.m. --- PST 10:30 a.m.

Movie and Radio Guide will pay one dollar for any letter from a reader which the editors accept and print on this pictorial feature page. Address Pictorial Editor, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, III. Dear Sirs,

We'd like to have a double picture of Evelyn Lynne and Nancy Martin, "twins" of
"Breakfast Club" and
"Club Matinee."

B., Macon, Ga.

TWIN QUEENS of the "Breakfast Club" and "Club Matinee (both heard over NBC Mon. through Sat.), Evelyn Lynne and Nancy Martin are both contraltos and ballad-singers, but there the resemblance ends. Nancy Martin (above) was born in West Virginia and went to Duke University. Brown-eyed, five feet four, and weighing 115 pounds, she's the vivacious type. Like Evelyn, she has a script part on both shows, offers style notes, "Get Fancy with Nancy," on the "Breakfast Club"

ALTERNATING WITH NANCY on the two shows is Evelyn Lynne (left), who hails from Dallas, Texas, at nineteen is a shy southern beauty with dark hair and hazel eyes. She is five feet three and one-half inches tall, weighs 106 pounds. "Dear Diary" is Evelyn's specialty on the "Breakfast Club," and both girls appear in "Club Matinee" sketches

THE COLOR PICTURE DIARY of the DIONNE QUINS

NOWSH

Everybody knows Marie, Annette, Cecile, Emilie and Yvonne Dionne, but few people really know the story of what goes on from morning to night in the nursery at Callander, Ontario. We sent our best photographer and a writer up to Canada, where they spent almost a week practically living with the children to get the real lowdown. In addition to the splendid full-color photographs there is the hourly schedule for the Quins from the time they get out of bed in the morning until they fold up at night. What they eat, wear, what they study, how they act and their highly specialized course of training. All these facts appear in the story. Our men found that the kids are not the five unluckiest children in the world; they do not live in a prison-camp atmosphere as so many national publications would have us believe. In fact, the opposite seemed to be the case. And what of their future? Read the answer in June CLICK. On sale NOW ... 10c.
