Rudy Vallee Quits after a Decade of Broadcasting

IT WAS only yesterday, or perhaps a little longer, when Rudy Vallee was singing "Rain" and "I'm Just a Vagabond Lover" over a local New York station advertising diamonds sold by a jewelry store 'way up town. Lindy had just flown the Atlantic, Babe Ruth had hammered out sixty home runs, and Jack Dempsey had almost won back his championship from Tunney. Mae West was playing in "Diamond Lil." People were humming "You're the Cream in My Coffee" and "Button Up Your Overcoat." The boy with the slightly nasal voice, the odd trick of timing his words, and the gift of making each syllable sound as if it were sung for you and you alone, had something. A canny showman booked him and his band into an out-of-the-way Manhattan theater, and we were among those who tried to buy standing-room to hear him sing. But there wasn't any standing-room. That was the beginning of as amazing a career as we've ever known. In 1929, he made his first network broadcast, and in the subsequent decade he has missed only two weeks; once, when Mrs. Vallee died, and once when he was at sea en route to the coronation of George VI. Ten years with a single network sponsor is a record that probably will not be duplicated. During all that time he has been many things to the public—idol, brawler, scandal-victim, and vagabond lover; but always he has been a great entertainer. We hate to see him go.

Sincere Crusader: Whatever may be said about radio stars who sponsor causes for the publicity in it, no one has ever challenged the sincerity of Eddie Cantor. For years he has provided poor boys in New York with summer outings, raised huge sums of money for distressed people, given freely of his talent to worthy benefits. It was gratifying therefore to receive from him just the other day this telegram. It read: "In all my years of broadcasting nothing has given me more satisfaction than the winning of RADIO GUIDE's Americanism poll. Will you thank your readers for their kind recognition. (Signed) Eddie Cantor." You can be certain that Eddie Cantor means every word of the above, too. As we go to press, we hear that several sponsors are attempting to sign him up. We suggest they call it "The All-American Show; by and for real Americans."

Eddie Cantor

Lookee! We think every listener ought to know better the stars to whom he listens. So we submit John Conte and Martha Mears, young and wholesome Americans in love with their radio jobs and typical of the fine, fresh talents who are making our summer listening so richly worth while.

Nelson Eddy

during his recent concert tour, and held all of those who were already his boosters. With Nelson married, there has been less foolish "Isn't he simply adorable?" talk and more serious comment about his singing. As the winner of RADIO GUIDE's 1939 Star of Stars poll, he has demonstrated clearly that his following is stronger than ever. Millions will be glad to hear his return to the Chase and Sanborn program this Sunday (August 13) night.

Cover: When Nelson Eddy married last year, the carpers and croakers announced that his career was finished. They said he was every girl's dream man and no dream man could marry and remain popular. They reckoned without Nelson Eddy's determination to sing well, married or single. The result was that he made many new friends

Local Boy: Bob Robin Burns is a local boy no matter how far he strays from Van Buren, Arkansas. Recently he returned to his home in such triumph as formerly came only to world-conquering warriors and polar explorers. On that day a motion picture named "Our Leading Citizen" was given its premiere performance in Van Buren and Bob Burns as the leading citizen of the film was feted right and left. Governors and mayors and Arkansas big-shots came from all over the state to pay him tribute. We know Bob enjoyed that visit back home. Who wouldn't? Who wouldn't if only a few years ago he had been barking outside a carnival concession, working for coffee and cakes; if, by all the standards of his profession, he was one of the worst failures ever to leave Arkansas. Radio lifted Bob into the lime-light, into the movies, into the greatest home-coming Van Buren has ever known, into a fine home and security. We're glad such a happy climax has come to the life of one who has given pleasure to so many.

Bob Burns

Five Years Ago: Word of Rudy Vallee's break with broadcasting, though it surely will be only temporary, set us looking back through RADIO GUIDE's files. Even in five short years things change. For example, this week, five years ago, we were running an election for a radio queen. Dorothy Page was ahead with 9,223 votes, Rosemary Lane was second with 8,525, and Jessica Dragonette was third with 7,830. Our Evans Plummer observed smartly that "The beautiful Dot Lamour has been released by Herbie Kay to accept a contract for a large network build-up which has at its end the plot to star her in a feature motion picture. Mark that Miss Lamour was Miss America runner-up to the late Dorothy Dell and now perhaps is silver-screen successor to the ill-fated Dell's budding film career." The girl on our cover was Jeannie Lang. "Moon Over My Shoulder" was the hit of the week. Don Ameche was playing in a Chicago skit called "Beau Bachelor," and Norman Brokenshire was receiving impassioned love-letters from young ladies in love with his voice.

Coughlin: Listeners were startled recently to hear Father Coughlin address a part of his broadcast to members of the International Popular Front as follows: "What though you send me threatening letters. What though you have even designated the day of my death . . . I am not important. Carry out your threats if you dare . . . I warn you that the Stars and Stripes shall keep flying from our public institutions long after the red emblem of Russia shall have been furled in the dust of time." Subsequently it was stated that the fighting priest had received death-threat letters which he turned over to postal authorities. But that was nothing new, he said, he had been receiving them ever since he started broadcasting.

HIGH on the honor roll of the Friends of the American Husband should be listed the name of John J. Anthony, for he has, during the past six years, saved uncounted millions of dollars for alimony-stricken American men. John J. Anthony was more than any other one man responsible for the enacting, between 1933 and 1935, of three New York State laws which have had a vitally important effect on all marital legislation in the United States: (1) The law permitting a husband to ask for a reduction in alimony even though he is incarcerated in jail; (2) the law permitting the elimination of alimony during the period of the husband's incarceration, and (3) the law giving the husband the right to ask for a suspension on an accumulated amount of alimony on the grounds that he is unable to pay.

Since records show that during one representative ten-year period before these laws were passed 1,800,000 men paid an average of $15 a week in alimony, or, in total, $27,000,000, it would seem obvious that Anthony's claim as a front-rank benefactor of the beleaguered American male is well-nigh indisputable.

He is much more than that, however. Head of the Marital Relations Institute of New York, the first organization of its kind in America, founder and conductor of the original "Good Will" program (MBS, Sundays 10 p. m. EDT), he has devoted most of his adult life to the arduous business of bringing men and women into a better understanding of each other and of their mutual problems. Anthony is a scientist who has chosen human relations as his field. A specialist in marital relations—some people consider him the greatest American authority on the subject—he doesn't consider himself limited to that alone. A dark, intense little man, 43 years old, he is known to millions of radio listeners only as the owner of the incisive but soothing voice which weekly restores to a measure of calm the harried participants on his "Good Will" program, come to lay before him and his microphone the burden of their problems, real or fanciful, ridiculous or crushing. Although the program is only one of Anthony's multifarious activities, he thinks a lot of radio.

"Radio," he likes to say, a little pontifically, "has done for social work what mass production did for the automobile." And he is quick to argue, reasonably enough, that whereas, in the dark days Before Marconi, it took weeks and even months for the social worker to round up an entertainment for a few crippled children, today a flick of the dial will bring Eddie Cantor, Burns and Allen, Fibber McGee, Benny, Allen and all the rest of the laugh-makers to millions of patients in the hospitals of America.

"Programs dealing with family and community life are also of much assistance to the social worker," Anthony says. "Serials like 'Big Sister,' 'Her Honor, Nancy James,' 'One Man's Family,' and innumerable others are doing a social work in dramatizing the problems of the home and the community—and showing how they can be successfully and amicably solved.

"My own program," Anthony says, "shows clearly enough how radio can successfully be used for a social purpose. I get hundreds of letters every day from people in need. Hundreds of other letters come from people anxious to help the needy. If all we did were to bring these two groups of people together it would be much. But even more important than that is the airing of problems—real life-problems that everyone must face—via the radio."

Every week between four thousand and five thousand men and women storm Anthony's New York offices, in person, by mail and over the telephone, in an effort to appear on the program. Out of this horde, an average of forty are chosen for the program. Not all of them, of course, are actually put on the air. Time limitations prevent that. But each of them is dealt with—if not before the microphone, then in private after the program is off the air.

Their problems cover the range of human affliction. A boy has lost a leg in an automobile accident. Hopelessly poor, he cannot afford an artificial limb. What's to be done? Anthony digs up a New York State law called "An Act to Aid the Physically Handicapped" and providing for free assistance to crippled persons. The boy is set on his feet again, literally.

A woman cries to Mr. Anthony that her marriage, a thoroughly happy one for fifteen years, has begun to crumble. First, her husband lost his job. Almost immediately afterward he began spending more and more time away from home. She discovered there was "another woman." Finally he left her. "How could he do this to me?" she wailed.

Anthony, who is nothing if not objective, frequently takes what would appear at first glance to be rather a brutal course toward his harried advice-seekers. In this particular case he asked the woman, "How could you do that to him?"; argued that she had failed her husband in his hour of dire need, might naturally expect him to seek comfort in another's arms.

Anthony sometimes refers to himself, jocularly, as a man who has more troubles than anyone else alive. Generally, however, in spite of the constant parade of woe over his desk, he maintains a fairly calm and unruffled attitude. It probably doesn't disturb him to know that while undoubtedly tens of thousands of people listen faithfully to his weekly program in an effort to come to a better understanding of their own problems, thousands of others tune it in because of the morbid enjoyment they derive from hearing the helpless wights who appear on it break down and sob before the microphone, sometimes over "problems" that are really a little less than overwhelming. The program has at one time and another taken a considerable battering from the critics. Dinty Doyle of the Hearst papers, the most potent radio writer, once referred to it as "John J. Anthony's synthetic advice for stupid people."

But the original "Good Will Hour" is not the only iron Anthony has in the fire, and probably is not even his major interest. For, as he explains, the "Good Will" program deals with human misery in all its forms; but the Marital Relations Institute, now in its fourteenth year, is concerned only with the problems of married people. And the vagaries of married life have intrigued Anthony from the beginning.

He was in law school when the matter first attracted him. He was a hard-working sort, with an avid curiosity, and the patent inequalities in the marital laws of America struck him as being pretty much out of step with justice. He decided that marital law interested him more than any other kind, and forthwith abandoned the rest. To aid in achieving an understanding of the human factor, he studied psychology fairly extensively. He went to Vienna, Paris, Berlin, and on his return opened the Marital Relations Institute in New York. It has turned out to be a thoroughly successful enterprise. In its fourteen years of existence, some 143,000 people have laid husband-and-wife problems before it, problems ranging from petty money-bickering to complex sexual maladjustments. Unlike the "Good Will Hour," the Institute is entirely private. Its clients are not solicited, and Anthony, who views his work much as a physician or a lawyer views his, is emphatic in pointing out that the Institute has never had so much as a line of advertising of any kind—"not so much as a letter." Its clients pay steep fees, the successful adjustment of a particularly difficult problem sometimes bringing a bill for as much as $3,000.

Anthony's battle for more equitable marriage laws has been a long one, but it has been unquestionably successful, and the reputation he has built on it is solid. His method of getting action out of state legislators is unique and effective. Annually for the past ten years he has submitted to the governor of the State of New York a brief embodying suggested changes in the statutes. In addition to the changes made at his instigation in the alimony laws of New York State (probably the best adapted for this type of propaganda because many other states follow its leads), there are four other laws for which he is largely if not entirely responsible. They are: The law requiring a three-day wait between the issuance of a marriage license and the wedding ceremony; the law making blood tests for social diseases mandatory before marriage; and the laws preventing the bringing of breach-of-promise suits or actions for seduction.

The three-day law, designed to prevent "elopements" and overnight marriages, was suggested by Anthony in June, 1935, and passed in March of the next year. The blood-test law, one of Anthony's favorite hobby-horses for a

No aspect of marriage is uninteresting to Mr. Anthony. He recently completed a lengthy research into the reasons for marriage. His questionnaires covered the license bureaus in seven major cities and his figures are based on a total of eighteen thousand interviews. Fifty-six percent of those answering said they were marrying "for love," Mr. Anthony reports, while twenty-three percent said they were primarily interested in security. Only one percent of the total confessed they were marrying to raise a family.

Women have apparently three times as much trouble as men, Anthony finds. At least he has three times as many women clients as men. Contrary to popular belief, he says, marital difficulties do not rank first as the cause of human unhappiness. Unemployment comes first.

He lists, as the cause of most unhappy marriages, the following faults: Most wives complain, he says, that their husbands talk shop too much; nag about money; make digs at their in-laws; are careless about their persons; over-critical of little things, particularly household matters; drink too much; resent being asked to go out in the evening; pay too much attention to other women, and are indifferent to the children.

Husbands, on the other hand, complain that their wives are entirely too attentive to the children; that their wives force them into diversions they're not interested in; intrude on things that don't concern them; jump to conclusions; are slipshod housekeepers; are spoil-sports, given to "going home just when the party gets lively"; are mentally lazy, bossy, and extravagant.

Anthony has one qualification that is denied many "experts." He practises what he preaches. He has been happily married for years.

John J. Anthony may be heard Sunday on "The Good Will Hour" over an MBS network at:
 EDT 10:00 p.m. — EST 9:00 p.m.
 CDT 9:00 p.m. — CST 8:00 p.m.
 MST 7:00 p.m. — PST 6:00 p.m.

number of years, was passed in 1938. When this bill was under discussion, incidentally, the "Good Will" program was mentioned in the legislative record, the first time in history that any radio program had been so honored.

"The legal theory behind the breach-of-promise law in the beginning," Anthony says, "was that of contract. It originated in the fine old ideal of chivalry. Woman was the weaker vessel and needed the protection of man. In the breach-of-promise suits, damages were assessed, first, for the intangible losses suffered by the woman, and second, as a punitive gesture against the man. This legal theory was of course entirely wrong, for it is very logical to assume that a man can be just as much hurt by a broken promise to marry as a woman. Besides, money cannot possibly compensate people for their feelings."

NEW YORK.—Approximately one thousand tenors have auditioned for the Kenny Baker spot on the Jack Benny show, and all but four have been eliminated. The final decision will be made within the next couple of weeks . . . The Merry Macs had to call a halt to their vacation when they were signed for the "Hit Parade." They also go back on the Fred Allen show when the comic returns to the air . . . "Mr. District Attorney" will be moved to a Sunday night spot when Bob Hope resumes his series in September . . . You don't read much about the "Easy Aces," but they seem to go on and on, amusing their host of listeners. Jane and Goodman Ace just celebrated their ninth anniversary on the air and were given a new two-year contract by their sponsor. Listen to them any night they're on the air and you will get many laughs.

Rumor has it that "One Man's Family" will move into the first half-hour of the Thursday night spot when Rudy Vallee leaves his present sponsors. When asked about his departure, Vallee said, "MY TIME HAS BEEN YOUR TIME for ten solid years, and it will be yours again after MY TIME HAS BEEN MY TIME for a little while." Rudy plans a vacation to South America, after which he no doubt will be back on the air for a new boss.

Uncle Jim Harkins, Fred Allen's right-hand man and a veteran of the old vaudeville days, will have a part in the forthcoming Paramount picture, "David From Goliath" . . . Fox Movietone is trying to get Elliott Roosevelt for their newsreels . . . Peggy Mann, the popular songstress with Enoch Light's orchestra at the Hotel Taft, auditioned for a part in George White's new show scheduled for the fall . . . Andre Kostelanetz and his wife, Lily Pons, have broken attendance records in every place they made a personal appearance. They finished their current "Concert of Swing" last Tuesday at the Hollywood Bowl . . . Dorothy Howell, a Dallas, Texas, girl, was one of the winners in the recently concluded "Gateway to Hollywood" talent search. She changed her name to Virginia Vale, which also happens to be the name of a widely read columnist . . . Johnny Mercer reads every New York daily newspaper for his two-minute singing digest of the week's front-page news, which he does on the Bob Crosby show.

The recent formal opening of the radio galleries in the Capitol at Washington marked the successful climax of eight years of effort by radio to gain recognition from Congress. For seven years requests were turned down by the national legislators. Last year, however, Fulton Lewis, Jr., Washington commentator heard over MBS and now president of the Radio Correspondents' Association, took up the fight and led American radio to this latest milestone in the march ahead. By special resolution, both Senate and House have established special gallery accommodations and working-quarters near the chambers of the two bodies, and on a par with the facilities offered the press for generations.

Seen Behind the Scenes

During a recent "Hobby Lobby" program rehearsal, Alvin P. Yank of Erie, Pa., had a big piece of rock placed on his head and then someone swung a big sledge-hammer on the rock without any ill effects to Mr. Yank. Immediately NBC stated they would not permit a repetition of this during the broadcast, as they were afraid he would get hurt. It was decidated that Mr. Yank would eat a water-glass and crack plates over his head. The program went on the air and Mr. Y. swung a platter over his cranium, putting quite a big gash into his head and it started to bleed. He was immediately rushed upstairs to the first-aid room, where his wound was given medical attention . . . At a "What's My Name?" program a contestant was told that his coat collar was up. He replied, "My coat collar being up is nothing; before I get to the microphone I'm afraid my hair will be standing up."

Although the Fred Waring program is on the air for only fifteen minutes, those fortunate enough to get tickets to the broadcast have lots of fun after every program. Waring and his entire gang put on a show for a half-hour and, believe you me, they really go to town in a big way. Their rendition of "Three Little Fishes," during which practically everyone in the group performs, is the most-outstanding arrangement I have heard, and if I were Fred I would feature it on the program at least once out of the five days I was on the air each week.

Purely Personal

There seems to be an epidemic of appendectomy cases among the radio folk of late. You read about Horace Heidt being stricken during a broadcast and now comes word that Dave Elman underwent an emergency operation while he was vacationing in Fargo, North Dakota. You also read here last week that the Harry "Bottle" McNaughtons were having a house-warming at their new home. A few minutes before the guests arrived, Harry's wife was rushed to the hospital and operated on. The party went on without the hostess . . . Jane Froman also had to cancel a recent program for the same reason. However, after a few ice-packs, the doctors said it would be all right to postpone the operation for the time being.

After a false alarm, Mrs. Barry Woods, wife of the orchestra-leader and singer, made a return trip to the hospital, where a baby girl was born . . . The wife of orchestra-leader Bernie Cummins has presented her husband with a baby boy, and the Johnny Greens are expecting an addition to their family in September . . . When announcer Ralph Edwards takes unto himself a bride on August 19, Ruth Carhart, star of CBS's "Story of the Song," will attend the wedding and assist in taking movies of the ceremony. She will mail the film, when it is developed, to the couple, who will be honeymooning in California . . . Actor Raymond Edward Johnson has decided to stay in New York permanently, and he has bought a house in Mamaroneck, New York . . . Clark Dennis, singer on the Whiteman show, and Lucille Manners of the Cities Service program have purchased homes in Manhasset, Long Island, and are neighbors of Harry McNaughton.

Dramair Notes

Selina Royal, star of "Women of Courage," drags herself into the CBS studio at 8:45 from her country home. "I know what they mean by 'Woman of Courage' now," she says. "I have to get up at 6 o'clock every morning and I wasn't raised on a farm" . . . Little Estelle Levy, the "Hilltop House" child star, is enjoying a vacation from the script, but she still shows up at the studio every day. Estelle is the champion ping-pong player of the cast and she must defend her title in the CBS studio recrea-

Hollywood Showdown

By Evans Plummer

HOLLYWOOD.—When news is light in this girls' town, those in the know turn to rumor to fill up their leisure, sun-glazed minutes. And Rudy Vallee's friendly parting of the ways, announced to be effective September 28, from his sponsor of ten years' standing is a dilly to fool around with. So the summation of current hearsay picked up in the Bamboo Room of the Brown Derby between long, tall, cold ones is this:

Edna Odell, the Johnson's Wax vocalist, whose dream man is Ralph Scheu.

Stork arrivals: July 25, to Mrs. "Irish" Mahaney, better half of a member of the Texas Rangers ensemble, six-pound Melisa Ann. July 26, to Mrs. James Vandiveer, wife of the KFI-KECA mikeman, also a six-pound daughter . . . Wed July 31, dance-band maestro Bernie Kane to Elise Dolph, daughter of Jack Dolph, Hollywood CBS network executive, with announcer-narrator Phil Stewart as best man.

About Phil Stewart—

Listeners everywhere in the Midwest and East have been wondering what's become of Phil Stewart, long of Lady Esther program fame. The answer is he's here and doing the kind of work, narration, he's so long desired to do. But he is heard only in the West . . . So now that Stewart is firmly established in Hollywood, Wayne King, his co-worker for years, is attempting to coax the mikeman back east to produce and announce the Colgate program, to debut in the fall with King's music as the feature. Thus Stewart finds himself called upon to decide between a friend's appeal—and his own happiness.

Charlie McCarthy and Edgar Bergen back from appearing at the San Francisco Fair, where they hung S. R. O. signs on Treasure Island . . . Parkyakarkus, given a "Greek speaking" parrot by a fan, reports the bird just screams and is ruining his own dialect . . . Martha Mears, co-star with John Conte in the CBS morning serial "It Happened in Hollywood," has won a singing role in Paramount's "Remember the Night," starring Barbara Stanwyck and Fred MacMurray.

When Burns Didn't Burn

Careful driver, George Burns broke his no-accident record the other night when, while his car was standing still at a light, a rattletrap crashed into it and damaged one of the Burns' fenders. Gracie Allen's partner was about to tell off the offending driver when the latter emerged from his oil-burner and pleaded with Burns to go easy. "I haven't eaten for weeks," the stranger said, "and I was just too weak to stop my car." Burns took one look at his fender, another at the thin, worried driver, and produced a ten-dollar bill. "Take this," Burns said, "and forget about the accident."

More About Songs

The item that appeared here two weeks ago about the luck of one song-writer, Howard Addleston, brought much mail. Which causes your reporter to comment how odd it is that some songs click when least expected. In the last Gene Autry film for Republic Pictures, there was a tune, a simple little ditty. It wasn't even featured. But NBC's Ranch Boys and several bandleaders picked it up and liked its catchy melody. Now everyone is giving it a play, while the featured songs of the picture haven't taken hold at all. Keep an ear open for the number—from the workshop, I believe, of Johnny Marvin and Freddie Rose. It's called "Merry-Go-Roundup."

And now—as all good announcers start—it's time for me to say adios for a couple of weeks while I head for the High Sierras to do a spot of gold panning. Your first guest columnist, Hal Bock, has an interesting story to tell; your second, Charlie McCarthy, always manages to speak well for and of himself . . . Mizpah.

(1) Vallee wants to stay in Hollywood and make good in pictures. (2) To that end, he wants a Hollywood-originated program and one scheduled for Sunday airing so as not to interfere with his cinemaking. (3) And didn't Rudy just buy a swank new home high in the West Hollywood hills? (4) There's one thirty-minute spot on NBC open on Sunday evenings—but Kellogg, the cereal-maker, has an option on it. So (5) Rudy Vallee will be hired (maybe) by Kellogg after he takes a short South American vacation in October . . . Oh, well, that's what the heat does to reporters.

Off Live Mikes . . .

"One Man's Family" may fill half the "Vallee Hour" spot for his current sponsor after Rudy exits . . . Orson Welles is going about town in dungarees, goatee and sideburns, with a slick RKO-Radio movie contract in his pocket calling for him to star in, adapt, direct and produce one picture a year—and continue his "Mercury Theater" activities . . . Frank Parker has been inked to work again for George Burns and Gracie Allen starting in October. And their bandleader, Ray Noble, will replace Pinky Tomlin's outfit shortly at the Biltmore Bowl here . . . Nice girl, that "Blondie." Ever since Penny Singleton started her radio career for Camel, she's been saving all her broadcast pay-checks. The secret, revealed by a friend, is that she saved them to buy a house in Westwood, furnish it comfortably and move her mother and father and younger brother and sister to the West to live.

No Fun in Bed

Doctors just won't let the appendixless Ken Carpenter, "Kraft Music Hall" bell-ringer, have fun. After his operation, he wanted to tune in and hear the Kraft show. The doctor said no, then relented. First, however, the physician made Carpenter read the script for the broadcast—so that the jokes would be old when he heard them broadcast and Ken wouldn't tear any stitches laughing. Next day Johnny Trotter and Pat Friday turned up to visit the mikeman and presented him with a set of silver chimes with which to summon his nurse. But Carpenter grew so enthusiastic in his chimes practise that he drew all the nurses on the floor into his room to watch. Result, his doctor confiscated the chimes as dangerous to the hospital's proper functioning!

Purely Personal . . .

Quinn reverses things that way; he bought wife Edyth her engagement ring after their marriage! . . . LIGHTS OUT, EVERYBODY

Why do I write 'em? The author tells how this Wednesday night's "Lights Out" script was born in a ghost town of Old Mexico

Weirdly dressed Aztec beats sacrificial drum

—Wide World

Mexicans are shown reenacting, on Teotihuacan site where the Aztecs built their great pyramids, the "Creation of the Fifth Sun." In this mythical sacrifice, the subject — a hapless captive — watched priests cut out his still-throbbing heart

NOT so long ago there was a guy in my neighborhood who was considered a very ordinary, innocuous fellow. He was the minister's son, and all the various Mrs. Joneses liked to have him call on little Susie because he was such a sweet, dear boy. That guy was me.

But things are different now. After listening to the radio on Wednesday night, the Mrs. Joneses are inclined to look me over just a bit too carefully when I come to call for Susie. And as for Susie—well, let me just try to hold her hand on a dark night when the wind moans in the chimney like a ghost and she'll very probably remind me of the half-dozen or so brides and sweethearts I've done to death in divers horrible ways the past few months. Now what chance has a fellow got with a thing like that to contend with?

It's not only the young ladies, either. I used to have a roommate. Along about midnight we'd sit in front of the grate fire and gab about politics and women and radio and women. Just the two of us—at midnight. But that was before I started writing "Lights Out." Now I live alone.

I wrote a yarn titled "A White Maggot" for "Lights Out" a few weeks ago.

It was about a fellow I called Dr. Conrad Hargreaves. Hargreaves took a great interest in crime and horror; studied the weird and terrifying almost like a "Lights Out" writer. Well, he went from studying to experimenting and finally ended up by killing his wife with an overdose of living maggots and ending his own life with a double portion of the same. I wonder if things like that have anything to do with the fact that prospective roommates always seem to have other plans when I come around?

So why do I do it, you ask? Why does this very ordinary fellow from my neighborhood keep on dreaming up his ghastly concoctions? Well, I'll answer that question by telling you about how one "Lights Out" yarn came to be born. It's the story behind the writing of "The Day of Four," which will be heard this Wednesday night on NBC. And I'm willing to bet that when you've heard what happened you'll admit that under the same circumstances you might have been moved to write "Lights Out" yourself.

All set? Windows locked? No hidden killer under the bed? Okay! Then: Lights out, everybody!

Now, first of all, let me explain that it wasn't really my idea at all. We'd just come back from a visit to Chapultepec Palace, once the home of Maximilian and Carlotta and the scene of much of the picture "Juarez." We were taking it easy in our air-conditioned room in the Reforma, Mexico City's best hotel. I was perfectly content to just stretch out and lament rather peacefully and quietly the unhappy life of the ill-fated emperor and his wife. But not so Richard Post. My traveling partner was all for a jaunt out north of the city to Teotihuacan, ancient religious center where hundreds of captives were once sacrificed to the Aztec gods. Well, Dick's the well-known CBS air salesman you've heard on "Just Entertainment" with Jack Fulton and the Andrews Sisters and other Columbia shows, so all he had to do was pull out the stops, deluge me with superlatives about the wonders of the place, and we were on our way.

As it's only twenty-five or thirty miles, we were soon bumping along over a barren plain within a few kilometers of Teotihuacan. Mexico is a land of contrast. We'd seen the hot, brilliant green of the tropics around Tamazunchale change in less than two hours of driving over mountain highway to the rugged pine forests above Jacala, and Dick had exclaimed over and over, "Why, this is just like Wisconsin!" And here it was again. Contrast. The contrast between an up-to-date, progressive Mexico City and the ultra-modern Hotel Reforma we'd just left and the lonely road which entered what is called "The Archeological Zone of Teotihuacan." Here and there a solitary scrub tree cringed close to the dry earth and there was an occasional cactus or maguey. That was all.

It was late afternoon when we drove into Teotihuacan and, although there are usually many tourists, we were almost completely alone. To our right was what appeared to be a huge quadrangle enclosed by stone walls. We drove over and stopped the car near a series of steps that mounted the wall and gave access to the area within.

Inside the quadrangle we were alone.

The sun was just dipping behind the range of mountains that encircles the plateau of Mexico, and the western wall of the quadrangle threw a heavy shadow to the foot of the altar that stood in the center of the enclosed ground. As we crossed the quadrangle the only sound we heard was that of our own breathing and the shuffle of our feet in the dust. Our guide-book told us that in the quadrangle (the Indians call it "Ciudadela," which is Spanish for citadel) the Aztecs once gathered for their religious ceremonies. Ceremonies whose inevitable climax was the moment when the high priest cut open the captive's breast with an obsidian knife and ripped out his living heart as sacrifice to the gods. Was it any wonder that I seemed to see dark, stern faces peering at me out of the shadows of that silent, lonely place?

AT THE distant end of the Ciudadela there's a small pyramid, and just beyond it the temple of Quetzalcoatl, "the feathered serpent," favorite god of the Aztecs. The temple and the pyramid are so close together that there is only room between their bases for a narrow footpath, and as we skirted the pyramid and started down that path we met Humberto de la Fuente.

We'd been looking for a guide without success. In a land so totally strange and different it's often necessary to have someone along to explain the many interesting things there are to see. There'd been a guide at Salto de la Caballo near Monterrey, another for our gondola trip through the floating gardens of Xochomilco, a capable fellow at the cathedral and home of Cortes in Cuernavaca—but not a guide for any number of pesos at Teotihuacan. And so, Humberto. He was tall and straight after the Aztec tradition, obviously high-born, and apparently alone.

He spoke perfect English—he'd studied at Oxford and had spent some time in the United States, and, although he wasn't a guide, he told us he'd be happy to show us Teotihuacan.

After we'd looked at the wonderfully carved serpent heads on the temple of Quetzalcoatl, Humberto led us back across the Ciudadela to the steps where we'd entered the quadrangle. He explained that we were at the southern end of the archeological zone and that the more interesting ruins lay to the north. Outside the Ciudadela he pointed out the Pyramid of the Moon directly ahead of us at the northern end of Teo-tihuacan and the Pyramid of the Sun midway between and slightly to our right as we started up the overgrown, dusty path.

It was Dick who first noticed what appeared to be little cubicles in the earth along the path. He asked Humberto what they were.

"Those are the tombs of the Aztec dead," Humberto replied. "They called this road 'Camino de los Muertos.'"

"Camino de los Muertos?"

"The Highway of the Dead."

I began to see that I was on a postman's holiday. The Highway of the Dead in lonely twilight. I could almost hear Art Kohl's voice, "Lights out, everybody."

Then we were standing at the foot of the Pyramid of the Sun and Humberto was telling us how in ancient times the captives, painted white and striped with red in imitation of the star-like gods, had been led up the steps of the pyramid while the priests chanted incantations. How the wailing cries of the women had swelled out over the cactus plain. And how, when they had reached the top, four priests held the captive against the sacrificial stone while the high priest ripped open his chest and tore out his pulsating heart.

There's an opening at the base of the pyramid and, a little nervously, we went in, following Humberto. Twenty feet from the entrance we were engulfed in complete darkness. We had only confidence in our guide to assure us that the next second wouldn't find us all hurtling down into some hidden, subterranean Aztec burial-pit to bleed and die among moldering bones half a century old. Then, his voice echoing back to us along the clammy walls of the tunnel, Humberto told us the legend of "The Day of Four."

"When the universe began, Tezcatlipoca, god of the wicked and the witches, became the sun. Giants and ogres inhabited the earth. Then Quetzalcoatl, the feathered-serpent god, drove the sun into the waters that surround the earth and it was the end of the world. Tezcatlipoca became a tiger and devoured the giants and ogres, and their blood ran over the fields and the forests. It was 'The Day of Four' called Tiger."

It seemed in the cold darkness that Humberto's voice was becoming hypnotic. Could it be that one of my characters—I could remember several who'd gone mad through the obsession of a dominant idea—could it be that one of them had come to life? My throat was dry as I listened to the echoing voice.

"Quetzalcoatl became the sun and reigned until Tezcatlipoca tore him from the heavens with a blow of his tigerish paw. A great tempest raged over the earth. Mountains trembled and the sea beat against the land. Everywhere men perished and those who lived grew fangs and filthy hair like apes. It was 'The Day of Four' called Wind. And when the world had been created again, the high priest of the Aztecs prophesied the death of our present sun and the end of the world on 'The Day of Four' called Earthquake. A day when the planets would take the form of tigers and, rushing from the sky, devour every living thing, and the earth would split and crumble."

The story went on. The Aztecs, fearing this end of the sun and world, came to Teotihuacan at the end of each century to offer sacrifice. To give life that they might receive life, as Humberto phrased it. They stripped the skin from a living slave and put it over the body of the priest as he prayed. And at the top of the pyramid they held a captive against the sacrificial stone and cut out his heart.

When we finally felt a warm rush of air and saw Humberto's body silhouetted ahead of us in the light that came from the end of the tunnel, the palms of my hands were damp. Humberto's voice had taken on a hysterical note as he told us the story. I was sure of it. Could imagination possibly have made a thing so real?

Bill Fifield: Author of recent "Lights Out" plays, "Blood of a Gorilla," "The Kiss," "Retribution of Edward Scurr," "The Giggler," "The White Maggot," and Wednesday night's "Day of Four," NBC

It was evening when we came out on the other side of the Pyramid of the Sun and, thanking Humberto for his graciousness, we hurried to the car and back to Mexico City.

After dinner, in our modern, air-conditioned room again, out came the typewriter, and through the hours of the night "The Day of Four" was born. "Jim" was the fictional name I chose for myself. Dick Post (forgive me, Dick, pal) became Jim's wife. And Humberto de la Fuente, with his bronzed Aztec features and cultured Oxford-Spanish accent, Tlaca Chapultesuma.

THE contrast between the modern world where I now found myself and the weird and unearthly atmosphere—but a short distance removed—which I had just left was almost unbridgeable. And while the noisy peck of the typewriter was soothing and reassuring, I still felt the cold hand of the past upon my shoulder as I set down on paper the eerie happenings out of a distant past which somehow, here in Mexico, never seems very far removed. That was why I sat down then and wrote—so that I might still capture the real feeling of awe and horror that stayed with me.

As I wrote, it began to rain. It rains every night in Mexico during the summer. The heat lightning threw blotches of light across the dark ceiling of the room. And, believe me, the distant thunder might have been the rumbling of Earthquake marking the end of the world on "The Day of Four."

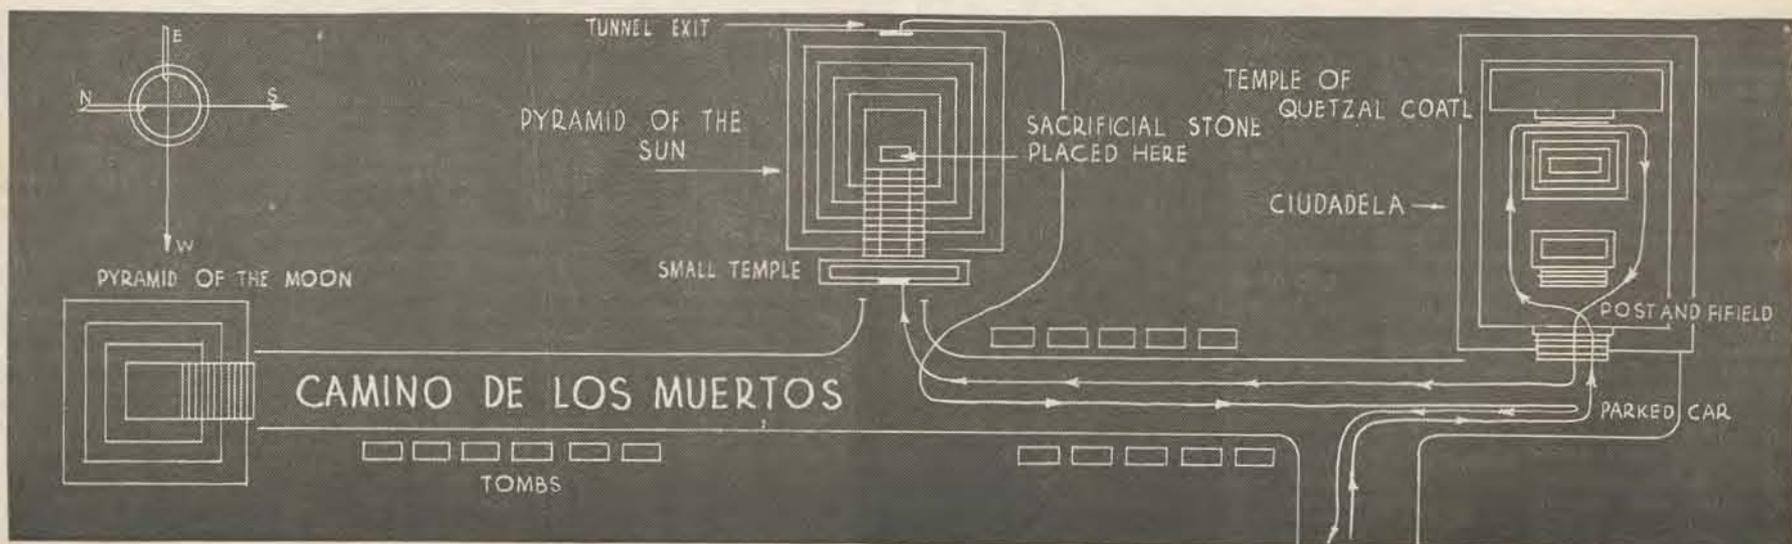

Y' see, it doesn't take such a screwball to write "Lights Out." If Dick Post had sat down at the typewriter after our visit to mysterious Teotihuacan he could have written a real thriller—and I'll give odds you could have, too.

Maybe some day Mrs. Jones'll stop looking at me so strangely, but, to tell the truth, I'd be satisfied if Susie'd understand and not remind me of the girls I've had strangled, poisoned or driven insane the next time we're alone in the dark and the wind moans in the chimney like a ghost. You know, Susie, it's bad enough to have you edge away, but please don't leave me all alone when the wind moans in the chimney. After all, it might really be a ghost!

"The Day of Four" may be heard on "Lights Out" Wednesday night over NBC at:

EDT 12:30 a.m. — EST 11:30 p.m.
CDT 11:30 p.m. — CST 10:30 p.m.

Not broadcast by stations in the Mountain and Pacific Time zones.

When you listen to "The Day of Four" this Wednesday night over NBC, keep this map of Teotihuacan in front of you. It will make the action of the play easier to follow and give a graphic picture of the setting described in this story. Lines and arrows show the wanderings of author Bill Fifield and Dick Post

MANY BLESSINGS

Pope Pius XII (above) raises his right hand to give papal blessing to the thousands of Catholics gathered in St. Peter's Square in Rome

—International

TO SHARE in that thrilling moment when the Pope, standing upon the balcony of St. Peter's surrounded by his court, raises his hand to give the solemn benediction of "urbi et orbi" (to the city and the world), has long been the cherished hope of every Catholic. And yet less than one-tenth of one percent of the more than 363,000,000 of Catholics in the world have been able—for various reasons—to make the journey to Rome and stand among the assembled faithful below in the square. This despite the fact that we live in an age of transportation unparalleled for low cost and speed.

This month, in a startling and revolutionary decree which was greeted jubilantly by Catholic people everywhere, Pope Pius XII changed all this. Henceforth, he decreed, Catholics listening at their radios when such a benediction is broadcast will share in its benefits just as much as if they were actually at St. Peter's. The plenary indulgence granted as a result of this benediction will go now not only to the approximately 364,000 souls who, during an average lifetime, assemble at the Vatican on the rare occasion when this benediction is given but to a possible listening audience of some 363,000,000 souls. Thus, happiness and hope for a large proportion of the world's population has been given by a progressive Pope utilizing a progressive medium.

While the decree was considered revolutionary from a theological standpoint, in that it set a precedent for even more far-reaching uses of radio in the Church's work, it was not unexpected. For, from that day in 1931 when the Vatican City radio station first went on the air, radio has come to play an increasingly important part not only in the work of the Church but in the re-establishment of the Church as an important factor in molding world opinion and shaping world affairs.

It is a strange sight to see the great steel pylon which is the antenna of KVI, the Vatican radio station, rise startlingly from the ageless and classic pile which is St. Peter's. And if this radio tower has modernized the landscape, it has also modernized the Pope's relations with the listening world.

The papal station—one which must be rated first in any poll of listening-power—was designed and built by Marconi for the late Pope Pius XI, and the inventions and betterments which came with each succeeding year have been added until, today, with its telephoto transmission apparatus, it stands out as a mechanical marvel of the radio world. For his work, Marconi was honored by having a street in Vatican City named for him.

The first message that Pius XI sent to a listening world on that day in 1931 was a plea for international peace, and, translated into six languages, this plea

Henceforth, radio will help a progressive Pope bring happiness and hope to all Catholics

could have been understood by six hundred millions of people (or one-third of the world's population) with listening facilities within the station's powerful range. That message, a plea for peace, has been oft repeated by Pius XI and his successor, Pius XII, in the intervening years which saw the Nazis rise to power. And when the millions who listen to each papal broadcast are considered, the weight and importance of this message cannot be ignored.

THE founding of the Vatican station gave a new impetus to the use of radio in educational work of the Catholic Church, and various local programs grew up in different countries. Here in America the "Catholic Hour," starting in that same year, is among the foremost of these. Heard on seventy-one stations of the National Broadcasting Company, its messages of doctrinal and philosophical import, given by guest clerics, have been heard as far away as Nigeria and draw an average of 2,500 letters a month. Twenty percent of these come from non-Catholics, and the program, sponsored jointly by the NBC and the National Catholic Council of Men, has accounted for hundreds of conversions. Other important American Catholic programs are "The Call to Youth" and the "Ave Maria" program.

So the action of the Pope in extending the benefits of the benediction of "urbi et orbi" to those radio listeners-in as well as those actually in Rome has a firm foundation in recent Catholic history. What does such action mean to the average Catholic listener?

It means that, if he has made his confessional and received from his priest absolution, he gains from the Pope plenary indulgence. Plenary indulgence, which can be gained only from the Pope or those to whom he has delegated such power, eliminates for the confessed sinner the necessity of his soul serving time in purgatory before being accepted in heaven.

Theologically, the decree is even more important. Until now, physical presence at the time the benediction was given was essential to receiving of the indulgence. Moral presence—or presence by radio communication—is now accepted as sufficient. High churchmen concede that—with this initial step taken—a time may come when physical presence at the saying of mass, or even at the making of a confessional, may no longer be required under certain conditions.

When—and if—this day arrives, those who are shut-ins—the weak and the lame and the halt—as well as those who are forced to live in lands where worship is banned by mob-rule or by law, will no longer be forced to forego the solace of worship. And in the glory of this day, the Church and the modern miracle which is radio will share.

THE RADIO PLAYBILL

THIS WEEK:

"Mr. District Attorney"

MANY programs in radio claim to be forces against lawlessness. Even against some of these, however, are raised cries of too much blood-and-thunder. One show which has attracted wide interest without such cries is "Mr. District Attorney." It exposes the inside story of criminal offenses in a dramatic, true-to-fact manner. The show was launched originally as a sustaining public service. A sponsor snapped it up as a summer replacement for Bob Hope. Thus far in the current series there have been exposes of an arson ring, a protective association, a racketeering syndicate, and others. Harry Salter is musical director, Harry Herman the writer. "Mr. District Attorney" is heard over NBC on Tuesday at 10 p.m. EDT, 9 p.m. EST, 9 p.m. CDT, 8 p.m. CST, 7 p.m. MST, 6 p.m. PST.

The Voice of the Law (played by Maurice Franklin) is the disembodied character who sets the key to the show by reminding at the beginning: "It shall be the duty of the District Attorney to prosecute all crimes and to defend with equal vigor the rights and privileges of the citizens"

Other actors who are heard often in various roles are pictured above in action. They are, left to right: Paul Stewart, usually a boss gangster; Arlene Francis, who plays molls and maligned wives; and Frank Lovejoy, generally heard as an underling to the big racketeer

Eddie Byron has the job of directing "Mr. District Attorney," and it is quite a job. He supervises final writing of scripts, picks the cast, and in general puts the show on the air as a finished product. Irish Eddie kids his cast into consistently fine performances on the air

Above: A throng of 150,000 that came to Chicago's Grant Park when Miss Dragonette sang in outdoors concert. Tribune: "Impossible not to fall under her spell."

WHY, indeed, is radio neglecting Jessica Dragonette?

Or why is Jessica neglecting radio?

Thousands of followers who count Miss Dragonette as the brightest star in the radio firmament are asking the question. So, with a considerable degree of timidity, we undertook to find an answer.

We have the answer.

It is a matter of money, and perhaps a few other things. The background is this. Miss Dragonette started to work in 1926 on station WEAJ. The program was called "Musical Comedy Hour." In 1927, she became known as "Vivian, the Coca-Cola Girl." Who remembers her next series, the Philco "Theatre Memories," which ran for two and one-half years? Or her singing with the "Hoover Sentinels" in 1928-29? The Cities Service Concerts hired her in 1930, and there she remained until the now famous break.

Let's look at that "famous break," for it was then the matter of money first became of such vital importance. Any radio star worth her salt needs a manager, and any manager must fight at the drop of a hat for his star's rights and wages. This radio business is show business, and that is the way things are done. Some stars employ firms which have made a business of management. Some put their affairs in the hands of a good lawyer. Others employ a relative. In Little Jack Little's heyday, his wife was his manager. Gladys Swarthout is managed by her husband, Jessica Dragonette is managed by her sister.

Managing, from the outside, is much like walking a tight rope. The manager, if he leans too far toward the side of low wages, is a chump; if he leans too far toward the side of outlandish wages, he is a robber. He must strike a happy balance, getting the most money he can for his client. Even then, after signing

WHY DOES RADIO NEGLECT JESSICA?

Still a singing sensation; still idolized by thousands; why isn't she now on the air?

By Lorraine Thomas

a nice contract with a sponsor, he may find that he could have got $500 more per week from someone else. But the previous contract is binding. Or he may find that a job paying less money per week would have lasted four times as long. Managers are usually gray-headed or bald, according to sex, and can be recognized by the worry lines between their brows.

Figures talk, they say, so let us examine the cold, crass statistics of this case. Keep in mind, please, that stars and managers buck like steers at revealing their salaries unless accorded the privilege of multiplying same by ten; so we present our figures with the apology that we believe them to be only reasonably accurate and any resemblance to any living person is purely coincidental.

We hear that Cities Service was paying Miss Dragonette $1,250 per week in 1937. We hear that Miss Dragonette, or her manager, wanted more, which is an affliction possessed by many people, including sopranos and coal-miners. Cities Service did not wish to pay more. So Miss Dragonette signed with the Palmolive Company for $2,500, or twice her former weekly salary, which ain't hay.

The rumor is about that this latter figure was given Miss Dragonette by her new employers under the misapprehension that she was already getting something like that at Cities Service. When her new bosses learned the truth, it is said, there was gnashing of teeth and a chilly feeling in the studio air. Whatever the reason, after thirty-six weeks the Palmolive program was dropped.

Quite apart from her business life, Miss Dragonette is a sincere, hard-working artist. She knew that many people considered her voice too tiny for concert and had dubbed her strictly a radio singer. For months she had talked of a tour that would prove to the satisfaction of all that she could sing with a full, robust tone.

The tale of that concert tour is well known. It was a triumph from start to finish. In Minneapolis 15,000 people jammed a huge auditorium despite a snowstorm and a taxi-strike. In Chicago 150,000 people came from all over America to sit before the Grant Park band-shell while she sang. In one week she sang before 217,000 people.

The Duluth Herald said: "Queen of entertainers is another title she should be given." The Toronto Telegraph stated: "A lovely voice, marvelously compelling." The Chicago Tribune: "Before she had been on the stage thirty seconds, every one in the audience, no matter how crusty his disposition, realizes that it is impossible not to fall under Miss Dragonette's spell."

No one who has heard her now doubts that Miss Dragonette is one of our finest singers. No one who knows of the thousands of persons who have paid to hear her sing (showmen call it (Continued on Page 40)

AND AN ANGEL SANG!

How was a wireless operator to know he had heard radio's first broadcast—for it was only 1907!

By Dick Dorrance

THROUGH the quiet of the Brooklyn Navy Yard wireless room came the staccato chatter of code. With practised fingers the operator copied it down, until finally the dots and dashes halted. He glanced at the clock, noted the time on the message.

In his headphones the ether crackled idly. Perhaps a minute passed, and then—from far away—he heard a voice singing. That was strange . . . a woman singing in the Navy Yard. The wireless man lifted the headphones from his ears. The singing vanished.

Then it must be coming over the air, he decided, and listened carefully once more. The voice was really in his headphones—of that he now felt certain. The operator became just a wee bit frightened. Because after all everyone knew that voices couldn't come over the wireless—even though a few visionaries had been experimenting with such a notion.

"Angels!" he told himself, face paling . . . "angels singing in the air!" Then he ran to notify the communications officer on duty. When the young lieutenant entered the wireless room there was a smile on his lips. He clamped one headphone to his ear—and the smile faded. "It's impossible," he gasped.

In 1907 almost everyone thought such a thing was impossible. But these two Navy men, though they failed to realize it at the time, were hearing the first true entertainment broadcast ever made in the history of radio. That "angel singing in the air" was the forerunner of millions of hours of programs broadcast around the world every year.

The singer they heard was not celestial. She was a young concert artist of the day named Eugenia Farrar. When she sang before the crude apparatus of an equally young scientist, Lee de Forest, it was all in the nature of a lark. The young lady could hardly be expected to peer ahead a brief quarter-century and foresee the incredible industry which now brings us music, voices, entertainment and education wherever we go.

Madame Eugenia Farrar is still alive today. She resides quietly in New York City, scene of her former vocal triumphs, and sometimes recalls the eventful day early in 1907 when she became the first person in the world to sing over the new marvel of wireless telephone.

It was a spring afternoon when the young Swedish singer, accompanied by a woman journalist, climbed the creaking stairs to the roof of the old Parker Building, standing at the corner of Nineteenth Street and Park Avenue in New York. They found the laboratory of Lee de Forest a remarkable place.

Coils and generators and scattered wire raced around the room. In the central position was his pioneer telephone transmitter, which utilized a crudely modulated arc generator. In operation, it proved a fearsome device, emitting blue sparks and the acrid stench of ozone. Upon the table stood a horn—almost like a regular gramophone crackled and buzzed—sang "I Love You Truly," followed by "Just A-Wearyin' for You." She had no accompaniment—just her own perfect voice.

From the building in downtown Manhattan the clear notes fled across the rooftops of New York, straight to the headphones of the puzzled operator at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, seven miles away.

The officer in charge at the wireless room telephoned the New York Herald and reported the amazing phenomenon. A short item appeared in the following morning's paper. Dr. De Forest read it

Thirty-two years ago when Eugenia Farrar became the first person to sing over the wireless telephone, milady dressed like the two at left and men sported Brush runabouts phone horn of the day—which served as his primitive microphone.

The girls evinced polite interest in all that Dr. De Forest showed them. But when he learned of Eugenia Farrar's flawless mezzo-soprano voice, he was quick in his invitation for her to sing. She stepped to the horn with a pleased little laugh and—while the transmitter while traveling downtown on the subway and, as soon as he reached his laboratory, called up the Herald to explain the origin of the "angels singing in the air."

Today Madame Farrar looks upon her 1907 adventure with a smile. But the records show that although originally radio telephones were used by the Navy as an emergency device and considered a novelty, after this 1907 experiment radio was adopted as a vital element in fleet operation. When the U. S. fleet left the Navy Yard on a round-the-world cruise late in 1907, the De Forest wireless telephones were on every vessel—due largely to the interest of Rear Admiral Robley Evans in the feat of "angels singing in the air."

"No," says Madame Farrar, "when I sang that day I hadn't the slightest notion what lay ahead for radio. I don't think Dr. De Forest did either. It's so different today—we thought of it then as a curiosity, an interesting novelty without any definite use . . ."

Eugenia Farrar made a guest appearance on one of the major networks last fall. It was her first microphone venture since 1907.

The entire tale seems delightfully fantastic today. It is hard to believe that a mere thirty-two years ago such bewilderment could have been created by the singing of a song over the air. Yet it is only representative of the immense strides which this Jack-and-the-beanstalk industry of broadcasting has made in the past few decades.

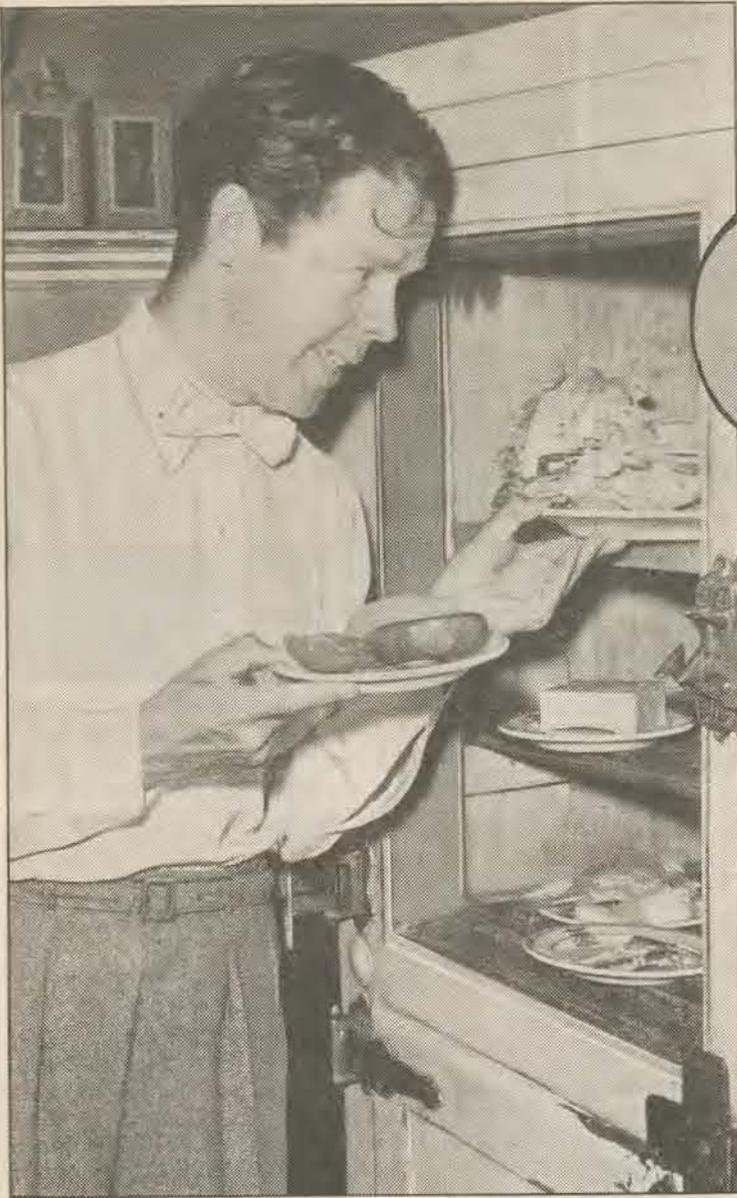

As a matter of fact, the first broadcasting stations which devoted all their time to the entertainment of the public did not come into being until after 1920, when the Westinghouse station, KDKA, began regular operation. It was another two or three years before other pioneer stations began to spring up like mushrooms all over the nation. Many have been forgotten as failures. Others are now powerful voices on the modern broadcast band.

WJZ, New York, for example, dates from 1921. WOR, Newark, began operation in 1922, as did WGY, Schenectady. A score or more of the highest-wattage broadcasters in the country trace proud histories back to this pioneer period.

It is ludicrous in 1939 to review the problems which confronted those early stations. Nobody knew what to put on the air. Listeners were constantly calling for help to get home-made "wireless" sets working. Equipment had a way of blowing out at every inopportune moment. And five thousand watts was superpower, looked upon as entirely too much radio energy to unleash into the air at one time!

KDKA's first studio was in a private garage at Pittsburgh, but reverberations (Continued on Page 39)

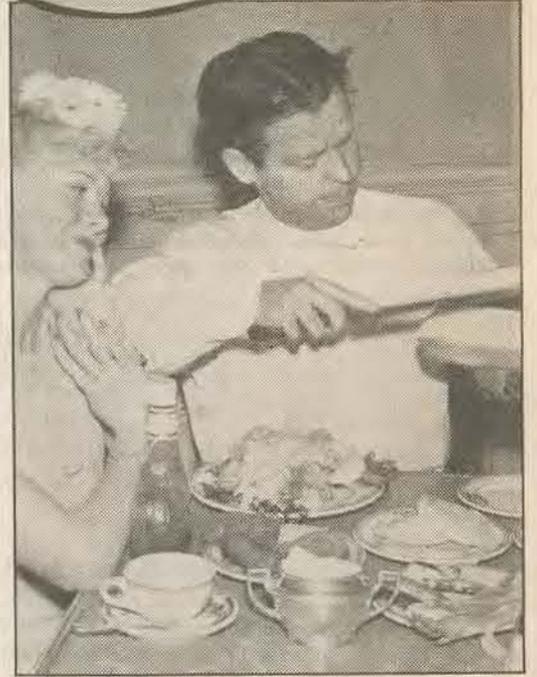

DAGWOOD LAUNCHES A SNACK

Dagwood Bumstead, of the CBS Monday night "Blondie" sketch Bumsteads, has a huge capacity for getting into trouble, also a lot of empty space between his ears and in his stomach

After the refrigerator raid for a pre-bed sandwich, Dagwood begins the construction (above) with Blondie's wifely advice

Dag cuts a loaf of bread in two and smears the halves generously with butter, because butter always goes with dainty sandwiches

A layer of onions, a spread of liverwurst, a slab of roast beef, two heads of lettuce, tomatoes and cheese, with olives for decoration, and Dagwood is ready to sample his masterpiece

But wait! In spite of the capacity of his stomach, even Dagwood over-estimated the size of his mouth. "Well," he observes with characteristic resourcefulness, "I can use it for a ship model in the living-room. Arthur Lake is Dagwood, Penny Singleton is Blondie

BACKSTAGE IN CHICAGO

By Don Moore

CHICAGO.—"Greetings, listener! The hero's kissin' 'er!" If you should hear that in the midst of one of your serials from the NBC Chicago studios, you might think the sponsor had finally decided to try something new, or you might simply think the announcer had driven himself nuts with enthusiasm over his product. The fact is that if such a thing should happen, you could credit, or charge, it to an epidemic of rhymed (?) greetings that has swept through the Merchandise Mart plant. Now, instead of hearing just plain "Good morning," you catch such salutations as: "Greetings, Roen! Where ya goin'?" "Greetings, Andre! Sent your laundry?" "Hiya, Lyon! You look fi-yun." "Hi, Totten! You look rotten." The best/worst salute to date was: "Greetings, Peterson! Gonna eatersoon?"

Far be it from me to point the accusing finger, but somebody said that somebody else said that the lingo is a streamlined form of blarney concocted by that sly colleen, actress Mercedes McCambridge. So—"Greetings, Mercedes! Can you make verse o' dese?": Ericson, Herbubeaux, Gallicchio, Ossenbrinck, Pelletier. I'll beat you to this one: "Greetings, Moore! You're a bore."

Backstage Brevities

Marvin Mueller, now heard as Dr. Markham in "Woman in White," is a poet as well as an actor, collects cigarettes and pipes . . . When Barbara Fuller, Barbara Calkins in "Scattergood Baines," graduated from Chicago's Sullivan High School a year or two ago, she vowed with seven other boys and girls to meet as students at the University of Southern California. Barbara's ambition for acting made her break the vow, but her conscience doesn't hurt her, for only one girl of the group wound up at U. S. C. . . . "Plantation Party" basso Michael Stewart more than once showed up at work in the steel mills in full dress, for he used to sing in concerts while holding down a job in the mills . . . Arthur Peterson, Dr. Ruthledge of "Guiding Light," is compiling a pictorial memory-book of candid shots of co-actors, engineers, janitors, even visitors and other people with whom he comes in contact in his radio work.

Fran (Aunt Fanny) Allison used to teach the fourth-grade pupils in Pocahontas, Iowa, before she became a radio actress and singer, and she still gets stacks of mail from out Pocahontas way . . . Of course you know about the many Fred Smiths and their national club, but, would you believe it, there is also an Abbie Smithers Club, with more than a hundred members in thirty-seven states. At least, Hilda Graham, who plays Abbie Smithers in "Backstage Wife," received a letter from a real Abbie S., of Concord, N. H., inviting her as a member.

Virginia (Ma Perkins) Payne, back from her Caribbean vacation cruise, has been voted "radio's perfect mother" by a group of women's clubs, although she is not a mother in real life . . . CBS songstress Shirley Sadler kept clean her record of never having worked on her birthday when a few weeks ago "Week-end Potpourri" was canceled at the last minute . . . Tenor Wayne Van Dyne was once an Albuquerque-to-Los Angeles TWA pilot . . . Actress Betty Lou Gerson is an ardent baseball fan . . . Many remember when Ginny Simms sang with Tom Gentry at the Oriental Gardens here before joining Kay "Quip" Kyser.

Things to Come (?)

If Franklyn MacCormack isn't heard this fall on a big new network show, reading his poetry along with a famous orchestra, then many listeners will be disappointed, and I'll be charged with a wrong guess . . . Speaking of MacCormack, who is at present narrator on "Caroline's Golden Store," that program is scheduled to move after Sept. 1 from NBC to CBS and to a late-afternoon spot. I still think this program deserves commendation for its unobtrusive, integrated commercial plugs, its down-to-earth, natural tone and MacCormack's work as the casual, friendly narrator.

The Blackhawk Restaurant is winning a name as the cradle of musical quiz shows. Latest bandleader to follow in the footsteps of Kay Kyser and Bob Crosby with such a set-up is Johnny "Scat" Davis, who is presenting the "Musical Screen Test" there and over MBS. And Johnny's probably hoping it will be a quick entree into big-time commercial work as with his two predecessors . . . "Memory Lane," the popular musical feature which presents old-time favorites on Harold Stokes' MBS "Music Counter," has convinced a prominent music publisher that its appeal is worthy of exploitation in a "Memory Lane Series."

Cast Changes

Bob Griffin is now Tom Stevenson in "Road of Life" and Allen Crossley in "Kitty Keene." Betty Winkler: Helen Gowan in "Road of Life." Paul Luther: Ward Ellman in "Backstage Wife." Dolly Day is Maggie Maguire, Louise Fitch is Anna Hadjek, Henry Saxe is Pa Hadjek and Herb Butterfield is Preacher Jim in "Kitty Keene." Fern Persons: Mme. Henriette in "Story of Mary Marlin." In "Backstage Wife": Bonnie Kay plays Anne Hawley, Brian Morgan plays Clem Larkin, Hilda Graham plays Abigail Smithers, Orin Brandon plays Cyrus Hawley. Lee Young: Dr. Bill Evans in "Road of Life." Arthur Kohl: Lady Sanders in "Waterloo Junction." Hope Summers: Doris Thompson in "Guiding Light." Betty Winkler (again): Eva Porter in "Midstream." Jonathan Hole: Paul Anderson in "Ma Perkins."

More Backstage Bits

Dorothy Davis, soloist known as Janette on "Avalon Time" and Sweet Adeline on "Uncle Walter's Dog House," has been called Dorothea, Dorothy Janet, Dorothy Jenette and other misspelled versions, but to her mammy and pappy in Pine Bluff, Ark., she's Dorothy JANETTE Davis. She likes to be called Janette and wants it spelled right (Hope I have it correct) . . . Mokey, the dog made famous in recent weeks on the "Breakfast Club" when Ralph Smith plays a xylophone solo and dedicates it to his pet, finally had his day, appearing as honor guest on the Aug. 4 "B. C." show (see picture above) . . . Members of "National Barn Dance" cast do shows this month and next for Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana state fairs (see picture above).

When the world's biggest circus came to town, Red Skelton, who used to be a regular big-time circus clown, answered the call of the wacky and cut some capers under the big-top with Paul Jerome, who teamed with Red ten years ago in the sawdust rings. When you hear an unusual uproar from the studio audience on "Avalon Time" shows, credit it to Skelton's circus-carryover clowning (see picture above).

A Shermaniffy

Pun of the week: Ransie Sherman was kibitzing at a bridge game. When a radio glamour girl at the table declined to bid, Ransie observed to Bill Thompson: "Ah, a pip-pa passes!"

Vocalist Donna Dae soothes Fred Waring's fevered brow after a particularly hot piece of music. Fred leads orchestra in "Pleasure Time"

VOICE OF THE LISTENER

Heart Belongs to Radio Daddy

Dear V. O. L.:

Each one in my family needs his own radio. My father wants short wave, my mother wants music, Dick wants sport commentators, and I want serial stories. Whenever Dick has the radio, I go crazy. Whenever Dad has the radio, Mother goes crazy. Whenever Mother has the radio, Dad goes crazy. But when I have the radio they all go crazy. I'll be glad when I get married and have a radio of my own.

Joan Adamson, Terre Haute, Ind.

● The above clever little masterpiece of radio psychology was written by a ten-year-old girl—not as a letter but as a school paper. The child's mother sent it along to us. We're grateful. It illustrates that "out of the mouths of babes" often comes great wisdom—and it should make a fine ad for radio-set manufacturers.—Editor.

Boake Back

Dear V. O. L.:

Please give us Boake Carter back. We need more men like him to tell us the truth and to put a light on things that are really going on in this world.

Mrs. W. Bodemann, Lockhart, Tex.

● You'll probably be hearing "Boake Carter speaking" again this fall. The commentator who claimed the Government forced him off the air is reported to be coming back on the air with a series of transcribed programs.—Editor.

Who Started It?

Dear V. O. L.:

I don't agree with a former writer, Miss Castleman, that Benny Goodman originated the name "swing." Back in 1931 and 1932 I can remember Cab Calloway saying as he led the band, "Swing it, you cats!" I think Cab had more to do with the naming of swing than any of your well-known swing bands of today.

Frank Ham, Troy, N. Y.

Dear V. O. L.:

I like swing, and I've heard an earlier story about the word than Goodman's use of it.

Back in 1931 Glen Gray and his Casa Lomans were having tremendous success with a then unheard-of combination of instruments, four saxes instead of three, five brasses and a rhythm section. The people raved about their sensational but undanceable tempos. When asked what sort of music it was, Glen and his boys would reply, "Why, that's swing!"

Lou Dragoo, Salina, Kan.

● The different versions of how the "swing" name got started are interesting. It is interesting, too, that most of the different versions place the origin back in the darkest days of the depression, which may or may not suggest that jitterbug music was actually a by-product of the jitters caused when panic struck the hearts and pocketbooks of millions.—Editor.

"Painful Results"

Dear V. O. L.:

I do not know what other Gershwin enthusiasts may think of Columbia's Memorial Concert, but my own reaction was one of surprise, anger and disgust. It seemed to me that an inexcusable mutilation took place—unintentionally, I know, but nevertheless with painful results.

There was no attempt at a comprehensive Gershwin biography, and without it I think the program was incomplete.

The disregard for the original score and interpretation was too marked to disregard. Why was it necessary to change the "Cuban Overture" from an orchestral to a piano composition, and "Three Preludes" from a piano to an orchestral arrangement? And why did they have a woman sing "It Ain't Necessarily So"? And of all pieces, why did they have to cut the "Rhapsody in Blue"?

Paul Whiteman was Gershwin's best interpreter, but Whiteman has changed his style with the times, and the swing style of today does not fit with Gershwin's concert music or the music of the earlier musical comedies.

I hope the next Memorial Concert corrects the mistakes of this one.

Joseph Lancaster, Battle Mountain, Nev.

● Other Gershwin enthusiasts will undoubtedly be interested in Mr. Lancaster's evaluation as compared to their own opinions.—Editor.

She's Not a He

Dear V. O. L.:

When I read my previous letter in V. O. L. about John Howard Payne and "Home, Sweet Home Day," I noticed you referred to me as "Mr." I feel that a correction should be made. Just refer to me as Iown Kingson.

Iown Kingson, Elmwood Park, Ill.

● Very well, it's just Iown, and sorry we "mistered" her.—Editor.

Opinions on Eddy

Dear V. O. L.:

As we Americans look forward to the fall programs, there is one program in particular we should anticipate with pride. That is the return of Nelson Eddy in the "Chase and Sanborn Hour." America should be very proud of Mr. Eddy. For who is there, singing either on the air or in the movies, that has given a more widely varied program? Be you Catholic, Jew, or Protestant, any nationality, any color, and Nelson Eddy sings to you and for you.

Grace Fox, Fort Dodge, Iowa

Dear V. O. L.:

I'd like to voice a plea to our 1939 Star of Stars for some new songs when he resumes with "Chase and Sanborn." Everybody loves to hear Nelson Eddy sing, but I feel sure we'd all relish some of the spice of variety.

Mr. Eddy has long fostered the prevailing fiction that his programs were constructed by popular fan requests. Recently, though, he dispelled that idea by admitting to an interviewer that his wife was largely influential in his selections. Now that Radio Guide readers have voted Nelson their favorite entertainer, isn't it reasonable to hope he will give the music-lovers some of the music they would welcome?

Mary Kate Toler, Martindale, La.

● It just goes to show there is disagreement on any subject—even the subject of Nelson Eddy.—Editor.

Shut-In Corner

Dear V. O. L.:

You should have a medal for making a place where we shut-ins can feel we belong.

I suffer much pain and am losing my sight, but I enjoy life through the young people who come to see me every day, and of course through radio. I miss Wayne King more than any other program. His music seemed to ease the pain, and I could keep the sweetness of it in my mind for hours.

From Radio Guide I am trying to impress the features of my favorites so strongly on my mind that I can still "see" them after the darkness comes, that won't be put off much longer. I am very busy gathering in for the time I shall need it. Life is so beautiful and there is so much to enjoy that there isn't time to complain.

Belle K. Wilson,
R. F. D. No. 2, Brunswick, Me.

● Thanks, Belle K. Wilson, for a lesson in courage and a fine tribute to radio. By the way, you can look for Wayne King back on the air with a commercial program in the fall.—Editor.

Mistaken Identity

Dear V. O. L.:

Here's one for the books. The other day a stranger—I found out later he was from down in Kentucky—walked into my restaurant. At the time, my radio was turned on. Also a bunch of our "retired" citizens were playing pinochle at one of the serving-tables. The stranger asked in a friendly way, "What're they playin'?" I thought he meant the radio orchestra, and I said, "Beer Barrel Polka." But his eyes were on the card-players. "Izzatso?" he said. "Well, I never heard of the game, but if it's anything like draw pokuh, how about dealin' me in?"

Squirrely Wright, Equality, Ill.

● Whether true or false, it's a good story, and qualifies Mr. Wright for membership in good standing in our Radio Liars' Club.—Editor.

Waring a Wreath

Dear V. O. L.:

I wish to share in handing a laurel wreath to Fred Waring and his orchestra, who are giving us one of the truly delightful bits of summer listening. Their show is sprightly, varied and, as usual with them, polished.

Jerry Witmer, Cincinnati, Ohio

The March of Music

Edited by LEONARD LIEBLING

"... An ampler Ether, a diviner Air..."—Wordsworth

Radio in California

THIS is being written seated in the midst of hundreds of 250-foot-tall redwood trees, about seventy-five miles from San Francisco. The place is the celebrated 2,700 Grove belonging to the Bohemian Club (of that city), whose guest is your voracious reporter. Together with other nonentities like Herbert Hoover, John Charles Thomas, Edgar Bergen (chaperoned by Charlie McCarthy), Mario Chamlee, Edsel Ford, Harvey Firestone, Jascha Heifetz, Lawrence Tibbett.

The Bohemian Club holds its annual two-week Encampment and High and Low Jinks in the Grove every August. About 1,200 celebrants attend. Entertainment is concerts, talks, campfire shows, and on the last night an annual original play with music written and performed by members. The club also has its own chorus, band, orchestra, and two marvelously picturesque outdoor theaters. Some idea of the elaborateness of the Grove play may be had when it is mentioned that this summer the production costs $20,000.

The Grove hills and canyons are covered with giant redwoods, one of which has been scientifically estimated to antedate by nearly two hundred years the discovery of America by Columbus. Scattered through the woods and along the Russian River, the Bohemians and their guests are housed in a colony of tents and log cabins. Many of them have pianos (there are some ninety Steinways) and, of course, all varieties of radios. I have heard everything loudspeakered—from Kay Kyser's amiable allurements to Tschai-kowsky's symphonic lamentations. Two clusters of tents, inhabited respectively by the instrumentalists and the singers, are called Tunerville and The Aviary.

Don Gilman, Hollywood vice-president of NBC, is a Grove denizen, and tells me many interesting things about radio in California, as does Mike Raffetto, of "One Man's Family." The state is immensely radio-minded, especially since numerous commercial programs have been transferred to Hollywood. The best purely symphonic local broadcasts (not heard in the East or Midwest) are those of the Standard Oil Company of California, done by the San Francisco Orchestra, and resulting in a flood of eulogistic fan letters from far-off Pacific points like Hawaii and Tahiti. Mr. Gilman informs me, too, that California radio had children's programs and music-appreciation courses long before either was aired in other parts of the country. He pleased me particularly with the statement that RADIO GUIDE is extensively popular in California, and that he and his staff consider The March of Music a valuable help to music-lovers.

I learned furthermore that for a while a bitter battle raged between the radio corporations and the California newspapers because the latter considered that they lost advertising on account of sponsored broadcasts. In consequence, the newspapers refused to publish anything about them. However, now the quarrel is patched up and proper listings appear again in all the dailies. My inquiries among the Bohemians brought out that the best-liked eastern programs are those of Ford, Firestone, Music Hall and Wallenstein, and, of course, Philharmonic and Metropolitan Opera.

Speaking Up

By V. Vidal

WHEN Gioacchino Rossini, beloved Italian composer, died in 1868, Giuseppe Verdi, his great admirer, conceived the idea of writing a requiem mass in his memory, to be played in the cathedral of Bologna only upon each centenary of Rossini's death. Verdi proposed that the work should be written in thirteen parts, by thirteen eminent Italian composers, the parts to be joined together to form the complete mass. Verdi chose to write the finale, the "Libra Me." However, when the thirteen men had finished the task it was found that each part was written in a style so dissimilar to the others that not one went with another. So the whole project was dropped and Verdi went on to compose "Aida," which he had been planning to do for some time.

In 1873 came the death of Alessandro Manzoni, great Italian patriot and founder of the romantic school in Italian literature. Verdi decided to take his "Libra Me" and make it the basis for a requiem to the memory of Manzoni. He finished it in time to be played in Milan at the first anniversary of Manzoni's death in 1874.

The "Requiem" has been criticized at times for being too operatic and not reverent enough. It is true that one hears echoes of "Aida" and the duets and solos are slightly more passionate than fervent. However, the operatic flavor heightens rather than detracts from the work, and it is today considered one of the finest masses ever written. From the solemn, mysterious opening through the tremendous sweep of the "Dies Irae," with its magnificent choruses and solos to the "Libra Me" climax, with its pure, lovely soprano obbligato, the "Requiem" is as exciting and dramatic music as can be found anywhere. Particularly exalted are the trios for soprano, alto and tenor in the "Dies Irae"; the Kyrie, coming after the introduction; the tenor solo "Ingenisco," and the bass solo "Confutatis."

Toscanini, an ardent admirer and champion of Verdi's music, has made the "Requiem" peculiarly his own. It is doubtful whether anyone conducts it as well. With the aid of four Metropolitan singers as soloists this performance (Wed., NBC) should be tops.

Georges Miquelle, cellist, will be guest of the "Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra" Sunday, NBC

FORECAST

TOSCANINI takes the spotlight again this week, with a performance of the Verdi "Requiem" from the Lucerne Festival on Wednesday, August 16, at 4:00 p.m. EDT, NBC. The soloists will be Zinka Milanov, soprano; Jussi Bjoerling, tenor; Kerstin Thorborg, contralto, and Nicola Moscona. This is easily the best music broadcast of the week.

"Gwendoline," a two-act opera by Aleis Chabrier (1841-1894), is hardly ever produced on the stage any more, but its overture still finds a place on concert programs. Chabrier, although largely self-taught, exercised a profound influence on modern French music. He himself was greatly influenced by Wagner, of whom one can find traces in the "Gwendoline" overture. However, Chabrier's Wagnerian tendencies never overshadowed his own lyric originality, brilliancy and temperament. His best-known work is probably the "España" rhapsody, which he wrote after a trip through Spain, but he composed besides four other operas, choral works, piano pieces and songs.

Antonin Dvorak (1841-1904), Czech composer, lived for three years in New York (1892-95), where he was head of the National Conservatory of Music. While there he wrote some of his best music, including the New World Symphony and the cello concerto. Brahms, when he first saw the score of the concerto, said: "Why on earth didn't I know that one could write a violincello concerto like this? If I had only known, I would have written one long ago." Brahms was a great champion of Dvorak and never failed in his efforts to gain recognition for him. The concerto, while a little long in spots, ranks among the best for that instrument.

Nicola Moscona, basso soloist in Verdi's "Requiem," from Lucerne, Wednesday over an NBC network

"Don Giovanni" (Mozart-Beethoven), Le Tombeau de Couperin (Ravel), Romeo and Juliet Overture (Tschai-kowsky), Passacaglia and Fugue in D Minor (Van Vactor).

One cannot accuse Izler Solomon of a lack of originality in his programs. While the Ravel and Tschai-kowsky numbers are old friends, the Beethoven Variations and the Van Vactor piece are sufficiently novel to please the most-exacting innovator.

The variations on the litting Mozart tune were written as a trio for two oboes and English horn. Beethoven was only twenty-four and did not yet have too high an opinion of himself as a composer. However, he made an atmospheric and charming setting for the melody, which has been transcribed for string orchestra by Michael Press, Russian violinist and composer, one time head of the violin department of the Curtis Institute of Music.

David Van Vactor, American, born Plymouth, Indiana, 1906, is a graduate and bachelor of music of Northwestern University, where he now teaches theory and orchestration. His Symphony in D was premiered last winter by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra and the Passacaglia and Fugue was played on the air at the time of the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago.

Toronto Promenade Concerts, NBC. Reginald Stewart, conductor; Edwina Eustis, contralto. "Egmont" Overture (Beethoven), the Orchestra; "Adieu Foret" from "Jeanne d'Arc" (Tschai-kowsky), Edwina Eustis and Orchestra; Symphony No. 7 (Beethoven).

When Tschai-kowsky set out to write his "Jeanne d'Arc" he read most of the plays and biographies by French writers, but for his libretto finally chose a play by the German poet Schiller. The story follows the life of the maid fairly closely, introducing, however, a love-element which never existed. The aria "Adieu Foret," one of the best numbers in the opera, comes in the first act, when Jeanne takes leave of her birthplace to go forth and fulfill her sacred mission.

Beethoven also based his "Egmont" overture on a German play, this time by the great Goethe. It tells of the life of the Count of Egmont, Flemish nobleman, who opposed the Spaniards in the Netherlands, was captured and treacherously put to death.

Opera and Its Composers

"HOW many operas and operettas have been written?" asks a Des Moines reader of this department. The fairly well authenticated number is about forty-two thousand, as announced a few years ago by a determined German researcher named Steeger. The collection of opera librettos at the Library of Congress in Washington alone has twenty-five thousand such examples. It might be added that there are at least eight composers who wrote over one hundred operas and operettas apiece. In the last list is Offenbach of "Tales of Hoffman" fame.

The forty-two thousand, aside from operettas, included the classifications known as opera buffa (opera bouffe), or comic opera; opera seria, or "serious" opera; ballad opera; opera (not comic, but provided with some spoken dialog); folk opera; singspiel opera; lyric opera; grand (or melodramatic) opera; music drama; and all the variations and derivations of the foregoing types. Preceding them came the various kinds of plays with incidental music, miracle, masque, morality, sacred representations described in our previous notes on opera in general.

In the Germanic countries, as also in France and Russia, Italian opera long flourished exclusively before a native art came into existence. Earlier German composers slavishly followed the manner of the Italian writers under the encouragement by the Court at Berlin (Frederick the Great), Dresden and Hanover, where the elector was patron to Handel. He later settled in London and created many operas (all Italianate), which fell into disuse after the master's death but at present are having some revival at special performances in musical capitals.

Gluck (1714-1787) was the first to experiment with what might be called German opera (even though he employed Italian and French texts) after a stay in Paris, when study of Rameau influenced him to break away from current conventions—superficial ornamentation, inappropriate arias, pandering to the vanity of singers, etc. He strove for "noble simplicity" in the ancient Greek sense, and logical marriage of words and music. Gluck undoubtedly is the first reformer who effectively destroyed the complete domination of Italian opera, and the campaign began with his "Orpheus and Eurydice."

With the advent of the romantic period came Weber, also devoted to the German tongue and discarding the Italian aria and similar virtuoso trimmings. His "Oberon," "Euryanthe," "Freischuetz" have enormous vogue, as did some "singspiele" (literally "song-plays") by Marschner, Lortzing and other contemporaries who used spoken dialog interspersed with solo songs and choruses.

Then suddenly flared the magnificent Wagner with his music dramas, admittedly based on the ideals of Gluck and Weber but carried infinitely higher. Wagner discarded trivial plots, wrote heroic librettos of his own (and one comic one, "Meistersinger"), devised entirely new schemes of harmony and orchestration which revolutionized both those fields. Nothing importantly original in opera has happened since his time unless it be Debussy's "Pelleas" and Strauss' "Salome" and "Elektra."

With Wagner and Strauss still pre-eminent in German opera, other Teutonic composers seem unable to progress further in that type of stage writing. Even Wagner's son Siegfried could not go beyond Papa, and succeeded only in facturing some light-waisted productions of the folk style, with insipid melodies and orchestration. Humperdinck at least copied Wagner faithfully, and for the charming "Haensel and Gretel" borrowed the illustrious one's manner and methods. Korngold ("The Dead City," etc.) followed in Strauss' footsteps for a while, but finally gave in to the fleshpots of Hollywood.

With the arrival of the "modernistic" trend in music, younger German composers experimented with it in opera. Schrecker (1878-1934), looked upon as a neoromantic, wrote his own librettos, mostly erotic, but veered away from direct melodiousness and touched up his harmonies with a sort of sourish acid. Schoenberg (at present teaching in Hollywood), starting symphonically as a Wagnerite, went even further askance than Schrecker, and put forth an opera, "The Lucky Hand," whose ghostly and curdled plot failed to please anyone I ever met. Kurt Weill, now writing music for plays in New York, and Wellesz, both anti-Wagnerites, threw out the opera scheme of sustained development and strung together songs threaded through meager plots and devoid of emotional appeal. They also presented us with three-minute and five-minute operas, a sort of joking rebuke to the lengthy proclamations of Wagner. Alban Berg's "Wozzeck," one of the most dramatic but difficult modern operas, caused much talk here several years ago. Krenek (born 1900, Vienna) delighted Central Europe with his "Johnny Spielt Auf" (done at the Metropolitan in 1929), of which one hysterical German critic wrote, "It has everything that stirs our generation—the film, broadcasting, loudspeaker, exoticism, revues, luxurious hotels, motor cars, express trains and the rhythmic and colostic influences of jazz."

America, however, while it found all those things in "Johnny," did not find any opera in the work, regarded the jazz as synthetic, and rejected the whole concoction with finality. Our compatriots, when it comes to German opera, still deify Wagner (and Strauss) above all the other composers from the lands of the Rhine and the Danube.

LISTENING TO LEARN

Person-to-Person

● I don't suppose there's any particular significance to the incident that brings NBC's Mr. Royal home from Europe with an announcement that England's fiery anti-appeasement statesmen, Eden and Churchill, have been scheduled for talks from London this fall . . . and the fact that Columbia's crisis specialist, Kaltenborn, has sailed for European points east. Or do I? At any rate I'm going to keep my eyes peeled for announcements of this year's crop of special-crisis broadcasts. Even radio-education theorists agree that they offer unduplicated opportunities to study history in the making.

● Finch Telecommunications Laboratories have offered Dr. Morgan, director of radio activities at Indiana State Teachers College, a facsimile recorder so that he can do some research for them in that vicinity.

● With a money grant from the Committee on Scientific Aids to Learning, the State Education Department at Albany, New York, is studying the rural-school situation in New York with a view to determining in what subject-areas and at what grade-levels recordings could most effectively be used in classrooms. The grant is sufficient to permit the preparation of a number of recordings at the conclusion of the survey. It was with funds made available by this committee of the National Research Council that the Federal Radio Education Committee made transcriptions of the Office of Education program "Americans All, Immigrants All." Irvin Stewart, director of the Committee on Scientific Aids to Learning and author of the recently published Local Broadcasts to Schools,* announces that a report on broadcast receivers and phonographs for classroom use will be ready for distribution free of charge to interested educators in September.

● TIP OF THE WEEK: Addresses by two famous English noblemen, Stanley Baldwin and Josiah Stamp, from the Congress on Education for Democracy convening at Teachers College, Columbia University. Lord Stamp, chairman of the London, Midland and Scotland Railroad, will speak on "Democracy and Its Challenge"; Earl Baldwin, former Prime Minister of Great Britain, will discuss "Democracy at Work." For full particulars refer to the Tuesday and Wednesday Good Listening Guides.

● "The Human Adventure," presented by the University of Chicago through the cooperation of CBS, has won this department's vote for continuance. Though an hour-long educational program, the first two episodes have succeeded in holding my interest.

● Chicago station WAAF launched a new series recently in cooperation with the Catholic Youth Organization that attempts to interpret the work of the CYO through dramatizations of its activities. This is the CYO's first attempt to utilize the dramatic technique in radio. Bill Gremley, youthful Chicago script-writer, is doing an admirable job for a newcomer.

NBC engineers relay the Saturday morning discussions of Dr. Gregg and his nature class to a Coast-to-Coast audience. The gumweed (see insert) will be discussed on Aug. 12 program devoted to flowers of the fading season

Late Summer Wildflowers "Men Behind the Stars"

More than seven hundred species of wildflowers have been found within Rocky Mountain National Park, affording great pleasure to the uninitiated visitor and the visiting scientist alike. The broadcast on August 12 will be picked up from a flowered glade, where Park Naturalist Raymond Gregg and the Junior Nature School may be heard discussing some of the flowers which continue to bloom late into the season.

● Some of the interesting flowers that may be described: The sulphur flower, or wild yellow buckwheat, which Mr. Gregg calls "the Aunt Jemima flower"; "Old Droopy," the goldenglow; "a ragged collar," the aspen daisy; "in my father's house," the gallardia; "strong and pretty," the horsemint; "bells the rabbits ring," the mountain harebell; "a liberal Scotchman," the thistle.

"Nature Sketches" may be heard Saturdays over NBC at:

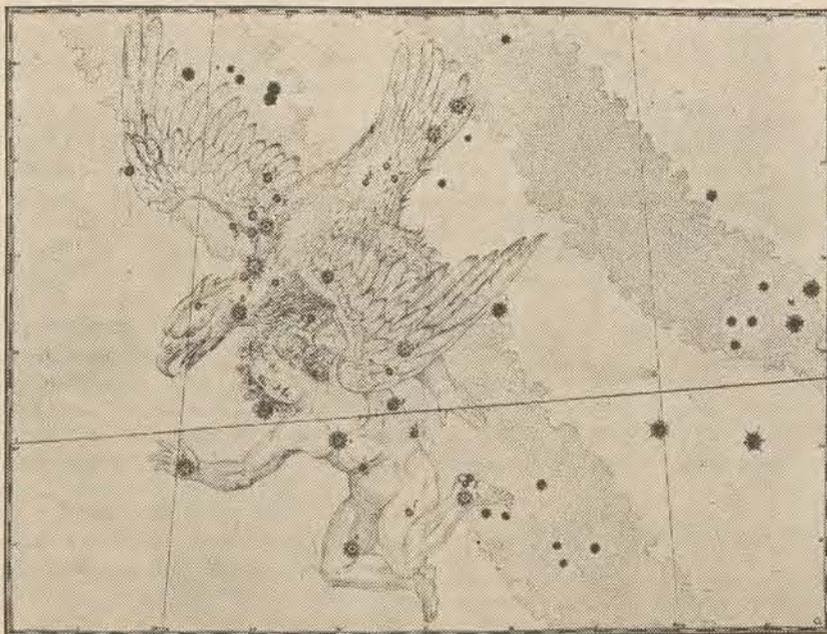

EDT 11:45 a.m. — EST 10:45 a.m.
CDT 10:45 a.m. — CST 9:45 a.m.
MST 8:45 a.m. — PST 7:45 a.m.

Mythology gives us an interesting story associated with the constellation Aquila, the Eagle, which will be dramatized in this series on Friday, August 18. The picture (below) shows Aquila carrying Antinous across the sky. The latter's name was given to the constellation many years ago but is no longer mentioned. The bright star, Altair, in the neck of the Eagle, can be seen overhead in the Milky Way.

● In history Antinous was a page and favorite of Emperor Hadrian. Following his untimely death by drowning in the Nile (122 A.D.), the emperor erected a temple to his memory and built a city named for him. Statues to the honor of Antinous made an era of art.

"Men Behind the Stars," presented by the Hayden Planetarium of the American Museum of Natural History, may be heard Fridays over CBS at:

EDT 5:45 p.m. — EST 4:45 p.m.
CDT 4:45 p.m. — CST 3:45 p.m.
MST 2:45 p.m. — PST 1:45 p.m.

Mike Not a Pulpit

Out in Lakewood, Ohio, near Cleveland, the Reverend Frank Nelson, minister of the Community Presbyterian Church, directs a radio workshop. Beginning as a public-speaking class, the interest centered particularly in radio speech, and the class has developed into a group which is learning not only to speak properly over the microphone but also to produce programs.

In answer to an inquiry regarding his interest in radio, Rev. Nelson replied: "My contribution will always lie along the lines of my chosen profession. At the same time, I realize that the microphone is not a pulpit and it is necessary to approach it differently, discard the old techniques of the soap-box or political hustings, refusing to 'rear back' and 'pour it on 'em,' as they say down South; but rather to approach it as one might who desires to feed a bird—coaxingly, intimately, assuming the you-and-I attitude. Furthermore, different styles of address must be used. The monolog is not enough. The dialog, the interview, documentary broadcast—such as is widely used in England—and lastly and perhaps most effectively, dramatic episodes. It is for this reason that I have developed a radio workshop of my own, hoping eventually to use it for the express purpose of improving religious radio, which I regard the worst-done thing on the air.

"Religion is a 'hot potato' to the broadcaster, and he has dropped it with a thud, hiding behind the screen of commercialism, which he thinks justifies putting on any brand of crackpot fanaticism which the lunatic fringe of religious broadcasters brings to him. As a consequence, some of us who are trying to do a sane but effective production job in the field of religion are shut out because production costs money, and when radio time must be paid for in addition to production costs, organized religion is not able to stand the expense. When will some heroic, independent station come out and announce its policy against sponsored religious radio and do for religion what many stations have already done for secular education? The time must come when religious radio must be done by people who know the whole field of radio, as well as possess a comprehensive idea of religion. That is the reason why I have taken up the study of radio broadcasting."

Rev. Nelson began broadcasting back in 1925, presenting the morning devotion period over station WEAH for the New York Federation of Churches. While religious-work secretary of the YMCA, he developed their first religious programs, with the possible exception of the Cadman question-and-answer period. "Steeple Calls," a go-to-church program that he first produced in Miami, Florida, and later introduced to Cleveland, has been regarded as the pattern for subsequent Federated Church broadcasts.

The Lakewood Community Presbyterian Church radio workshop is the first devoted to the improvement of religious radio to come to the attention of this department.

Schedule Changes for August 12 to August 18

PROGRAM CHANGES

"Chase and Sanborn Hour." Nelson Eddy, famous baritone of the radio, stage and concert field, replaces Donald Dickson as soloist on the "Chase and Sanborn Hour." Nelson Eddy can be heard Sundays at 6:00 p.m. CST (7:00 CDT) beginning with the broadcast August 13.

"True or False" (Williams Shaving Cream) will be heard at 6:30 p.m. CST (7:30 CDT) beginning with the broadcast Monday, August 14. This program was formerly heard Mondays at 8:00 p.m. CST (9:00 CDT).

"Magic Key" (RCA) moves to a new hour Monday, August 14, and will be broadcast at 7:00 p.m. CST (8:00 CDT). This program features well-known dance bands in addition to a regularly scheduled orchestra, dramatic sketches, and novelty acts.

"Dick Tracy" (Quaker Oats), ace detective of the comics, usually heard on Saturdays, is now broadcast on Monday nights. The detective-mystery drama is heard at 6:00 p.m. CST (7:00 CDT).

NEW PROGRAMS

AS WE GO TO PRESS: On Thursday, August 17, at 5:00 p.m. CST (6:00 CDT) Jessica Dragonette will be starred in an introductory program—preceding her premiere on her own program in the very near future. Harold Sanford and his orchestra and a mixed chorus will assist the singing star. Tomorrow night (Friday) Miss Dragonette will appear as guest on Raymond Paige's "99 Men and a Girl."

"Ask-It-Basket" (Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co.) returns to the air after a summer lay-off. This novel quiz program, conducted by Jim McWilliams, will be heard on Thursday nights, beginning August 17, at 6:00 p.m. CST (7:00 CDT).

"Strange As It Seems" (Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co.) will be premiered Thursday night, August 17, at 6:30 p.m. CST (7:30 CDT). The program will feature John Hix, originator of the cartoon.

CLOSINGS

Odds and Ends...
 Peter Van Steeden, maestro on George Jessel's "Celebrity Program," makes it a point to find out what fraternity or sorority the guest stars on the program belong to.
 Then, when they appear for rehearsal, he has his band greet the visitor with their frat song.
 He knows them all, having got his orchestral start supplying dance music for sorority and fraternity hops while he was an undergraduate at New York U.

On Short Waves: Edited by Chas. A. Morrison

President, International DX'ers Alliance

Times given are Eastern Daylight Time. For EST and CDT subtract 1 hour; CST, 2 hours; MST, 3 hours; PST, 4 hours.

ON SATURDAY, August 12, the forty-fifth season of Promenade Concerts opens at Queen's Hall, London. The conductor, as always, will be beloved Sir Henry J. Wood, with the BBC Symphony Orchestra of ninety players, led by Paul Beard. Frank Titterton, tenor, and Moiseiwitsch, pianist, will appear in the first of the forty-eight concerts, which, starting at 3 p.m. EDT, will be broadcast over Daventry stations GSG, GSP and GSD . . . The dramatic story of the gigantic undertaking of the reclaiming of the Zuider Zee, a project that will ultimately reclaim over 480,000 acres of land for Holland, will be told on Monday, August 14, at 9:30 p.m. EDT, over Daventry stations GSB, GSD and GSF.

H. V. Kaltenborn, veteran CBS news analyst, is paying a flying visit to Europe's capitals, where he will interview leading statesmen to secure first-hand information concerning conditions abroad. He will be heard, speaking from London, Sunday at 10:30 p.m. and Tuesday at 10:30 p.m. EDT, over CBS short-wave station W2XE (11.83) and the network.

August Balbi of Los Angeles, Calif., reports reception of HNF (9.683), Baghdad, Iraq, almost daily from 9 to 10:30 a.m. EDT . . . 2RO16 (21.51), a new frequency for the Rome, Italy, short-wave station, is now in use daily from 10 to 10:55 a.m. EDT.

The new 20,000-watt overseas station at Hsingking, Manchoukuo, is being received with tremendous volume on the Pacific coast, daily from 2:30 to 3:20 a.m. EDT. This transmission, which is beamed on the United States, Mexico and Hawaii, is broadcast under the call MTCY on a frequency of 11.775 megs. Ashley Walcott of San Francisco, Calif., states these programs are entirely in English, and consist of news, talks, and occidental music, the transmissions being introduced and concluded with a melody of chimes. The announcer requests reports on reception, giving the address as the Short-wave System, the Central Broadcasting Station, Hsingking, Manchoukuo.

P. J. Montenegro of Caracas, Venezuela, writes that the following new stations are now in operation on the new tropical short-wave broadcast band: YV5RW (3.4), "Radio Tropical," Caracas; YV5RV (3.5), "Emisora Vargas," La Guaira, and YV3RF (3.49), "La Voz del Llano," Caracas.

SHORT-WAVE SHORTS: XEDQ, Guadalajara, Mexico, has shifted in frequency to 9.517 megs . . . The new Motala, Sweden, transmitter SBT has replaced experimental station SM5SX on 15.155 megs . . . The Louisville Times Company of Eastwood, Ky., has been granted a construction permit for a 500-watt facsimile broadcast station to operate on 25.25 megs . . . You can now pick up your telephone and ask the long-distance operator to connect you with Singapore. This is made possible through the opening recently of a short-wave telephone circuit between Malaya and the United States . . . R. B. Oxrieder of Corozal, Canal Zone, reports hearing a new station, YN1IP, Instituto Pedagogico, Managua, Nicaragua, broadcasting on a frequency of 7.284 megs . . . DJP (11.855) is now broadcasting the regular evening program from Germany, in parallel with DJD (11.77), DJB (15.2) and DJZ (11.801) . . . SP19 of Warsaw, Poland, has been broadcasting irregularly on a new frequency of 15.16 megs, from 9 to 10 p.m.; SP25 (11.74), Warsaw, has been testing irregularly from 1:45 to 3 a.m. EST . . . C. H. Hodge of Long Beach, Calif., writes the mystery station on 15.41 megs, nightly from 10:30 to 11:30 p.m. EDT, is undoubtedly Soviet . . . HS6PJ (9.51), Bangkok, Siam, is now operating daily except Mondays from 8 to 11 a.m., while HS6PJ (19.02) is operating Mondays only from 9 to 11 a.m. EDT, but expects to increase its hours on the air soon . . . According to the Newark News Radio Club, a new station, HHK, "Radio Haiti," power of 25,000 watts, is now under construction near Port-au-Prince. It will, when completed, operate on frequencies of 6.2, 9.62, 11.82, 17.85, and 21.67 megs . . . Latest information from Finland reports that the power of the new Finnish short-wave station, which is being built for the express purpose of broadcasting next year's Olympic Games to the world, will be 100,000 watts . . . Roger Legge of Binghamton, N. Y., recently heard amateur VQ2CM (14.03) in Northern Rhodesia, state that an elephant had been killed a short distance from his shack just two weeks before.

The new operating schedule for CBS international station W2XE of New York City is as follows: On 17.83 megs, Mondays through Fridays, from 8:15 to 10 a.m. and from 1 to 6 p.m., Saturdays and Sundays, from 8:15 a.m. to noon and from 12:30 to 6 p.m.; on 15.27 megs, daily from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.; on 11.83 megs, daily from 9 to 11:30 p.m., and on 6.12 megs, daily from 12 midnight to 1 a.m. EDT.

The latest schedule of the Chinese Central short-wave stations XGOX-XGOY at Chungking is given as follows in an official communication from the China Information Bureau: Over XGOY (11.9), daily from 6:30 to 8:20 a.m. for eastern U. Short-wave programs of American stations are shown along with the regular listings beginning on page 19. These are indicated, for example, by (sw-11.87) in parentheses following a program listing. This means that on 11.87 megacycles the same program may also be heard over an American short-wave station. Please note that foreign stations do not always adhere precisely to their announced program schedules.

MR. FAIRFAX REPLIES

No personal replies to questions unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Miss Louise Schickel, Rochester, N. Y.—Anne Seymour plays the role of Mary in "Story of Mary Marlin."
 She was born in New York, September 11, 1909 . . . attended Cathedral School of St. Mary's and the American Laboratory Theater School. Miss Seymour's first stage appearance was made with Helen Hayes in "To the Ladies" when Anne was twelve years of age. She turned to stage work as soon as she completed school . . .
 played thirteen roles in Channing Pollock's "Mr. Moneybags" (1928), appeared as "Maria" in Ethel Barry-more's production of "The School for Scandal." Miss Seymour had her first radio audition at station WLW. She is interested in athletics, reading and writing . . . has also developed palmistry as a hobby. Anne is five feet seven inches tall, weighs 135 pounds, has brown hair and eyes. She is not married.

Mr. Bob Rhoads, Harrisburg, Pa.—
 Sybil Trent is twelve years of age.
 She was discovered by Nila Mack,
 CBS director of children's programs, early in 1937, when, together with a group of school-children, Sybil visited Dorothy Gordon's "Sing-Together Club." Miss Mack promptly auditioned and signed the child for "Let's Pretend." Sybil was born in New York City, and got her first job as an extra in a motion-picture short, for which she was paid $5.

Miss Lois Comer, Anniston, Ala.—
 Cal Tinney—who was christened Calvin Laurence Tinney—arrived in radio by devious routes. During the years he wandered about the world, he worked as a potato-peeler aboard an ocean liner, an importer, a porter, an "ex-porter," a reporter and a chamber of commerce secretary. He was a syndicate columnist when he entered radio. Tinney was born February 2, 1908, on the Horseshoe Ranch, Pontotoc County, Oklahoma. He is married and the father of one child, David. Tinney is five feet eight inches tall, weighs 145 pounds.

Miss Rita Hartzheim, Menasha, Wisc.

 Ill.—Lawrence Reed plays the part of Walter Bloom on the "Little Orphan Annie" program. Ned Wever characterizes the lead in "Dick Tracy."

Miss Marline Dale, Tallahassee, Fla.
 —Buddy Schutz plays the drums in Benny Goodman's orchestra.

E. M. Schwabke, De Kalb, Ill.—
 Eddy Howard, vocalist with Dick Jurgens' orchestra, was born September 12, 1914, in Woodland, California, and named Edward Evan Duncan Howard. His father, Aubrey Howard, is a doctor, and Eddy's childhood ambition was to follow in his dad's footsteps. Eddy attended grammar and high school in Woodland, California, and college at San Jose State College, San Jose, California, where he was a member of Phi Sigma Chi fraternity.
 Eddy made his professional debut over radio station KFRC in San Francisco.
 He has been featured with the orchestras of Dick Jurgens, Walter Kelsey, George Olsen and Harold Stokes

. . . plays the guitar and trombone, in addition to holding the featured spot as a vocalist. Howard weighs 155 pounds, five feet nine and one-half inches tall, has black hair and brown eyes.

Miss Mary Lane, Bertha, N. C.—
 Edward Trevor plays Robin in "John's Other Wife." Jonathan Hillery in "Just Plain Bill," was portrayed by Macdonald Carey. Sara Jane Wells characterizes Mary Ruthledge in "Guiding Light." Gail Henshaw plays Tess Morgan and Paul Luther portrays Ward Elmond in "Backstage Wife." In "Road of Life" Bill Evans is portrayed by Lee Young.

Miss Eileen Chappell, Princeton, Ind.—Johnnie Johnston was born December 1, 1914, in St. Louis, Missouri.
 His father was an insurance man and a singer, his mother a pianist. He is five feet eleven inches tall, weighs 153 pounds, has brown hair, brown eyes and a fair complexion. Johnnie married Dorothy Marubio at Shreveport, Louisiana, June 22, 1936. His favorite sports are billiards, bowling and golf.

Mr. Henri Benac, Schenectady, N.
 Y.—Miliza Korjus was born in Warsaw, Poland. Her birthday is August 18. Although the more important years of her education took place in the Conservatory at Moscow, she attended schools in Kiev, Warsaw, Revel, Berlin, Vienna, Dresden, Hamburg, Lucerne and Amsterdam. She made her American screen debut in "The Great Waltz," starring Luise Rainer, Fernand Gravet and herself.

Mrs. Dorothy Engel, Gary, Ind.—
 In 1925-26, when Amos 'n' Andy sang on the air and had not yet started as a dialog team, Gosden whistled "Indian Love Call" as their theme music.
 However, the "Perfect Song" has been their theme song ever since they became "Amos 'n' Andy."

Miss Gerda Lampmann, Carlstadt,
 N. J.—Harry Babbitt of Kay Kyser's orchestra is five feet ten inches tall, weighs 165 pounds, has black hair and brown eyes. Kay Kyser was born June 18, 1906. He is five feet eleven inches tall and weighs 160 pounds.

BIRTHDAY FOR TWO

The "Sweethearts of the Air," May Singhi Breen (Mrs. DeRose) and Peter DeRose, commemorated sixteenth air anniversary recently in studio party. The event was also television debut for the popular harmonizers (above)

During the birthday telecast over NBC station W2XBS, the "Ukulele Lady" and her pianist-songwriter husband reminisced of the early days of broadcasting and sang song hits composed by DeRose during his long career

tion-room after each broadcast . . . That new voice you hear playing the part of Lee Kirby on the "Myrt and Marge" program belongs to Dick Janaver, who just completed a road engagement with Maurice Evans in "Hamlet" and "Richard the Second."

Van Heflin is the new Bob of "Betty and Bob." Van is Katherine Hepburn's leading man in the Broadway play "Philadelphia Story." Arlene Francis plays Betty. Heflin is also leading man to red-headed Barbara Lee in "The Man I Married" broadcast on NBC, and, strange as it may seem, Barbara competes with herself every morning. She is heard at the same time over WOR in "The Career of Alice Blair," which is a transcription series . . . When "Her Honor, Nancy James" folded, Barbara Weeks, the star, didn't lose much time in getting a new program. She started a couple of days later in the new series, "Meet the Dixons."

Musical Notes

The song-writing radio editor, Nick Kenny, who has written such hits as "There's a Gold Mine in the Sky," "My Cabin of Dreams," "While a Cigarette Was Burning," "Cathedral in the Pines," and "Little Skipper," has a new song, "Running Through My Mind," which is destined to become as popular as those mentioned. In the past two years Nick and his brother Charles have written as many or more hit tunes than any other ASCAP member . . . Paul Whiteman and his company of thirty-five musicians and entertainers have begun one of their longest tours in recent years. Whiteman's auditor figured the trip is going to take them two months and they will spend about $15,000 in railroad fares alone . . . Bob Crosby is doing quite a bit of traveling between broadcasts. Last week he covered almost a thousand miles and played five one-night stands in as many days. Who said the life of a musician is a cinch?

Record Raves

By all means get Paul Whiteman's album of George Gershwin's Concerto in F for piano. It is something every record-lover will want. Decca's collection of salon music is also something worth having. Others on the recommended list are RCA-Victor's recordings of Kenny Baker singing "Cinderella," Bea Wain singing "Stormy Weather," Fats Waller, the tops in his class, singing and playing "Honey, Hush," and Wayne King's version of "The Man With the Mandolin."

GOOD RECORDS

A department reviewing the recordings of your radio favorites

SONGS OF THE PEOPLE . . . BOTH OLD . . .

When Buddha Smiles and That's a Plenty both make good vehicles for the frenzied shuffle swing of Jan Savitt and his alert Tophatters. Decca.

Tea for Two, in a new performance by Art Tatum, is a good bet. Decca.

. . . AND NEW

Moon Love is another ghoulish job of raiding Tchaikowsky, this one the big theme from his Sixth Symphony. Guilty of recording it are Glenn Miller, Mildred Bailey, Horace Heidt, Sammy Kaye.

South American Way, the unimaginative rhumba from the new Broadway show "Streets of Paris," gets numerous waxings . . . Jean Sablon, who sang it in the show, Sammy Kaye's flimsy band, the cascading chords of Al Kavelin and smooth Ray Noble.

When Winter Comes displays Irving Berlin stealing from himself . . . it's a ringer for "Heat Wave." Artie Shaw's record is the best.

The Lamp Is Low likewise raids the classics, stemming from Ravel's "Pavane." Not half as maddening as "Moon Love," somehow. Various interpretations may be had . . . Tommy Dorsey with Jack Leonard singing, Mildred Bailey's plaintive voice, Glenn Miller's swingier band, the siren voice of Dorothy Lamour, or tricky Kay Kyser.

The Last Trip on the Old Ship, just about the worst slop imaginable; the Tic-Toc Rhythm of Gray Gordon, heaven forbid.

You and Your Love, very nice stuff by Benny Goodman and Martha Tilton. The Johnnies Green and Mercer wrote it.

Oh, You Crazy Moon is for every summer veranda and sorority living-room. Tommy Dorsey.

Comes Love comes from "Yokel Boy" . . . another new Manhattan musical show. Larry Clinton does well by it.

Blue Tahitian Moonlight, played by a Canadian orchestra called Mart Kenney and His Western Gentlemen, is one of those geographical incongruities of the trade. Fairly tasteless.

All I Remember Is You, one of the best new songs, is treated nobly by both Jimmy Dorsey and Artie Shaw, but JD's gal singer is almost funny with her affectations.

Count Basie is growing daily in fame as the epitome of relaxed swing band-leaders, and "Jump for Me" is his newest, and very typical, too. However, "12th St. Rag" is on the other side. We wish they would forget forever the "12th St. Rag." We don't care who plays it. We wish they would just forget it. Forever. Incidentally, Count Basie's "Miss Thing" is one of his outstanding records, supposedly recorded while the band wasn't looking and, therefore, doubly interesting, as though you were eavesdropping on a real musicians' jam session. It's a two-side, six-minute job, and as a matter of fact, one of his best. (Both Vocalion.)

interfered with programs to such an extent that a canvas tent was purchased and erected within the structure. The tiny transmitter operated with seventy-five watts. Today KDKA radiates fifty thousand of them.

Everybody wanted to get on the air in those days. By the end of 1923 there were 542 broadcasting stations in operation. But the mortality figures soared too, for although the Department of Commerce issued 264 licenses during that year, a total of 285 were discontinued. It cost money to run the stations and no one had given any thought to selling time on the air as a means of defraying these expenses.

It seems peculiar in 1939—when the receipts of the major networks from commercial programs soar to the millions—to realize that the Westinghouse Company first operated its station in hope of creating a demand for broadcast receivers which it could design and offer for sale. The income from these receivers was expected to offset the cost of operating KDKA. No one had dreamed of walking up to a manufacturer and offering him air time at commercial rates. This was a bonanza yet to be struck.

Early programs were almost all phonograph records. Very few remote broadcasts were attempted, due to technical complexities, although KDKA aired services from the Calvary Baptist Church in Pittsburgh and undertook several other special features.

The records are hazy because, in those days, no one bothered very much about keeping any. It is interesting to note, however, the origin of a new profession—radio-announcing. WJZ hired a gentleman named Milton Cross on October 20, 1922. He was apparently the first full-time announcer ever employed. Today, as any listener worth his salt knows, Milton Cross is still an active member of NBC's microphone staff.

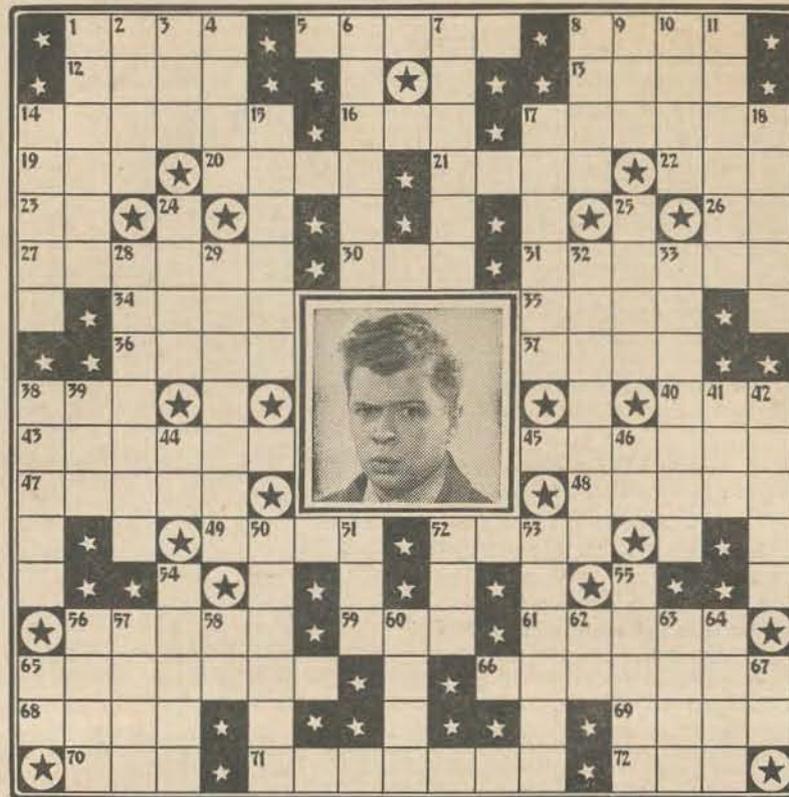

Key station of a great national network today, WJZ was originally located in Newark, N. J. Its first studio was on the second floor of the Westinghouse factory, converted from one end of the women's cloakroom, which was partitioned off from the rest of the room by a sliding curtain. Equipment included a phonograph, piano, table and chair. Records were broadcast by placing the microphone in front of the phonograph horn.

Upon what tiny factors a universe may sometimes pivot! Today a whole nation knows NBC's Red and Blue networks. These designations all came about because a draftsman, years ago, chose to use red and blue inks while outlining the two growing networks upon a map of the United States.

Commercial radio uttered its first faint cry in the early part of 1922. The Federal government up to now had been wrestling with this growing dilemma of broadcast radio—licensing new stations, finding channels for them to use, deciding what they could and couldn't do. And so, in the course of things, they approved the establishment of "toll" broadcasting stations. This innovation was defined as "broad-

Solution to Puzzle Given Last Week

$$$ FOR BONERS

LISTEN TO EARN

DO YOU like to catch the other fellow in mistakes, especially when he's supposed to know better? If so, why not capitalize on those mistakes and earn yourself some money by just being attentive to your radio? Last week we launched a "Money-for-Boners" department, explaining the nature of the game. Here again briefly are the rules: When you hear any "Boner"—a slip of tongue, sentence with a twisted meaning, a mistake, etc.—just send the "Boner" to Editor Radio "Boners," RADIO GUIDE, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill., together with the date of the program, station, and broadcaster for identification. In case more than one person submits the same "Boner," if it is published, the one with the earliest postmark on his letter will receive the prize. The prize: $1.00 for each "Boner" published.

Here are more sample "Boners" to give you an idea what to listen for:

"You have been listening to Wayne King's orchestra at the beautiful Aragon Ballroom, where the most refined dancing is enjoyed every night but Monday."

"If Dad would buy one of these Big Yank work-shirts, he would not wear anything else."

"Schmeling sends a hard right to Sharkey's teeth; there they are dancing in the center of the ring."

"Here comes the President and the White House dog on a leash with the President's daughter."

"Science has lightened the tasks of women, doing away with some entirely."

"Connie Bennett has gone out to Hollywood to play in 'A Bed of Roses.'"

"I TALKED WITH GOD"

(Yes, I Did—Actually and Literally)

and as a result of that conversation with God, some ten years ago, a strange Power came into my life. After 42 years of horrible, sickening failure, everything took on a brighter hue. The new, throbbing, pulsing Power which came to me after talking with God, gave me power to throw off the shackles of defeat, and now?—well—what a difference. I control the largest circulating newspaper in my county. I own the largest office building in my city, I own a beautiful home with a pipe-organ in it, I drive a wonderful car, and my wife and family are abundantly cared for when I pass along. Yet, before I talked with God, I was a dismal failure, yet this strange Power which came to me, made all these things possible. You, too, may experience that Power, if you will. If there is failure, poverty, unrest, unhappiness in your life, this very same Power is abundantly able to do for you what it did for me. For, of course, there can be no limitations to what it can achieve for you. Would you like to know what this God-Power is and how it operates? Then send your request to Dr. Frank B. Robinson, Dept. 403-8, Moscow, Idaho, and full particulars will be mailed to you without any obligation on your part. Copyright, 1939, Frank B. Robinson.

AND AN ANGEL SANG!

casting where a charge is made for the use of the transmitting station."

Amazing vistas opened. It was the corner-stone of what today is termed around the world the "American system" of broadcasting. Washington was sage in its decision. Said the authorities:

"It is recommended that toll broadcasting service be permitted to develop naturally under close observation, with the understanding that its character, quality and value to the public will be considered in determining its privileges under future regulations."

It was in August, 1922, that the services of a "toll" broadcasting station were first used by a paying sponsor. The sponsor was the Queensboro Corporation, a real-estate outfit which at the time was busy developing Jackson Heights, Long Island. Using the facilities of WEAJ in New York, it attracted public attention to this real-estate venture and, as a result of the broadcast, sold over $50,000 worth of property.

Radio was replete with adventure in those first days. A handful of men suddenly realized they had hold of something with unfathomed possibilities, and so felt their way optimistically through broadcasting's colic, whooping-cough and measles eras. The chief engineer at one of New York's major stations still recalls the evening in 1924 when he was approached by rum-runners who offered him $1,000 apiece to air certain weather announcements, worded as the rum-runners wanted them worded. These announcements, of course, would have served to tip off rum-boats outside the three-mile Prohibition limit that the coast was clear enough of patrol craft for them to bring in their cargo. The offer was naturally met with a flat refusal, for it violated a certain intangible code of ethics to which radio has clung since its earliest days.

Unbelievable trial-and-error has been necessary to build up the smooth, split-second technique which marks modern program procedure. Today mishaps, mike-slips, mechanical breakdowns are almost unheard of—yet it was not ever thus.

Graham McNamee, one of the veteran figures in the ranks of American announcers, remembers well the tribulations of studio mikes left open when they should have been closed, and closed when they should have been open. There was, for example, the time he failed to shut off the "announce mike" after a regular announcement, allowing some impatient little aside remark to go out over the air. A production-man dashed from the control-booth declaring, "That went out on the air!" People popped into the studio at regular intervals and imparted the information that "what you just said went out on the air."

McNamee was about to make another announcement when the tenth man dashed in with "Say, Mac, that went out on the air!" The great McNamee's temper was frayed. "Get out of here," he glowered, "or I'll break your head."

The mailman brought a lot of letters the next day. Most of them were curious as to whose head Mr. McNamee was going to break, and just what had the unfortunate done that Mr. McNamee should want to break his head . . .

But most amazing of all—when you get knee deep in the business of drawing parallels between broadcasting of the early '20's and streamlined 1939—is the fact that the radio listener himself doesn't seem to have changed very much.

The color and caliber and tempo of programs have been supercharged a hundredfold in the past five years. Short wave takes the radio audience from the world's alpha to omega in the razor-part of a second—and yet letters like this are still received by every big station in the country:

"Gentlemen: Will you please to have your eight o'clock newscaster speak a little louder when he reads the news, as I have to get my husband's breakfast in the kitchen and sometimes can't hear everything he says . . ."

Stations get the same letters today as they did ten years ago—only in bigger mail-bags. If an announcer makes a remark at a ball game to the effect that he likes chocolate cake, at least two dozen home-made offerings, deep in chocolate frosting, are bound to arrive post-haste the next morning.

Receivers get shinier every year, better-toned and automatic. Stations grow bigger, studios finer and the program quality soars to new levels each season. But it's a healthy growth. American radio is unlike radio in any other country of the world because it grew up free and uninhibited. The public accepted it because it treated the public fairly and sincerely.

It might be interesting some day to meet that anonymous wireless operator who first heard "angels singing in the air" thirty-two years ago. If he still lives—and it is likely that he does—perhaps he sits today beside a magical loudspeaker which brings him enjoyment from around the world simply because a handful of visionary men found in the plaything of wireless telephone the foundation of a great and important industry.

It would be interesting to see what his reactions are today.

J. DRAGONETTE

box-office appeal) doubt that here is one of our most popular personalities. It makes her absence from a regular program all the more puzzling.

Which brings us unerringly back to the money question again. We beg indulgence for these repeated references, but the entertainment world is still on the gold standard. It sets a certain value on (1) movie stars, (2) comedians, (3) singers. For example, current asking-prices quoted to us by one who should know are:

James Melton	$1,750
Jane Froman	1,500
Hildegard	300
Gladys Swarthout	2,000

Miss Dragonette's price, we hear, is $2,500 per week for a series, or $3,000 for a guest appearance.

We know of numerous persons who resent the huge sums paid for inept and fuzzy acting from a movie glamour girl while singers of Miss Dragonette's caliber cannot get half as much. We feel the same resentment. But we also know that the day of those big-salary guest appearances is about at an end.

For example, consider the audience-participation show. Uncle Jim's "Ask-It-Basket" costs only about $400, talent, prizes and all. Yet it has a larger audience than did Miss Dragonette's old Cities Service program at the height of her popularity. "Hilltop House," which costs under a thousand dollars each week, is selling more soap than did the old expensive "Palmolive Beauty Box Theater." "What's My Name?" is said to cost the sponsors less than $500.

The big salaries paid last year will not be paid next year. Stars must realize that. Their managers must realize that. Of course, there will always be the Cantors, Crosbys, Kate Smiths, but they are huge corporations.

Radio is neglecting Jessica Dragonette, but in answer to the many questions we have been asked, we can say it does not want to do so. It wants Jessica Dragonette back on the air—as do hundreds of thousands of listeners all over America—but it cannot pay so great a price as the one we understand her management is asking. Jessica Dragonette is neglecting radio because there is a silly superstition among artists that they must never lower their price, must never cheapen themselves by working for less.

Will Rogers once answered this one. He said: "Once I played the Palace for $1,000 a night. But the next week I couldn't get a booking. So I went uptown and got in a little theater for $300 for the week. It was honest and it was work. No actor ever cheapened himself by honest work, no matter how little he got for it."

Jessica Dragonette makes a guest appearance Friday night on "99 Men and a Girl" over a CBS network at:
EDT 9:00 p.m. — EST 8:00 p.m.
CDT 8:00 p.m. — CST 7:00 p.m.
MST 6:00 p.m. — PST 5:00 p.m.

Jessica Dragonette will also be heard on an introductory program, rumored to be the first of a series, over NBC Thursday, August 17, at 8:00 p.m. EDT, 7:00 p.m. EST, 7:00 p.m. CDT, 6:00 p.m. CST, 5:00 p.m. MST, 4:00 p.m. PST.
