IN PRAISE OF HENRY BURR

For Henry Burr

We wish to express our deep appreciation of your excellent service. We have learned to consider the Smile-A-While staff, the Barn Dance, and the Sunday morning programs as our own and we wait for them with the keenest anticipation.

I believe we would crown these fine programs with the Little Brown Church of the Air as supreme.

While we enjoy Dr. Holland very much, we get a real sermon from the peerless songs of Henry Burr. Imagine our happy surprise when we discovered him one night on the Barn Dance. We thought it too good to be true. No doubt this was his voice through electrical transcription, we thought. But no, we were confirmed in our hope when we heard him talk to the announcer. We used to have his records, 20 or more years ago, and we never dreamed we'd hear him in person.

This morning my wife and I were brought to tears while he sang "Just As I Am." Surely no man was ever blest with the simplicity, the unpretense, the richness of such a voice. Mr. Burr has hold on the hearts of millions from the babe in the manger, from wayfarer, from the peasant to those who wear the purple.

It renews our faith in humanity to think of a man such as he who has never allowed the plaudits of the race to cause him to lose his head. He has continued to use his rich voice in tender, simple singing of those songs that bless the millions of common folks. This is nobility personified; greatness in simplicity; a priceless gem which money cannot buy.

Henry Burr, surely the blessings of God rest gloriously upon you. We thank you all.—Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Stratton, Britt, Iowa.

Annie's Scared

You are frightening us about the dark mornings coming in Chicago this winter. We in Milwaukee are fearful of our dark afternoons. We dread afternoon shopping in stores and on the street by artificial light. What we need is more winter sunshine. Please give us the recipe for more light in winter.—Annie Richards, Milwaukee, Wis.

Reports Help

We take this opportunity of expressing our many thanks for your radio broadcast daily and Sundays giving weather reports and can assure you it has been considerable aid to our best operations. Sincerely trust you will continue with this broadcast.

—Roy R. Love, president, Love Construction & Engineering Co., Muskegon, Mich.

Memorial to Jane Addams

Dear Mr. Page: You will be pleased to hear that over eight thousand people participated in the August First Peace Parade and Jane Addams Memorial, announcements of which were made over your station.

We are indeed grateful to WLS for the valuable publicity given the enterprise, and to you personally for your cooperation and helpfulness. Very truly yours, Helen Rueben, Radio Publicity, August First Peace Parade and Jane Addams Memorial,

Thank You

It is always a pleasure to listen to Julian Bentley. As a commentator he is fair, unbiased and non-partisan in his presentation of the news. Let us hear from him often.—W. F. Van Dusen, Chillicothe, Ill.

And Again Thanks

Was much pleased with your Monday noon news comments, which I hear for the first time today. I like your delivery—good clear voice, well balanced diction, fluent and smooth, with nice brisk tempo free from the effect of haste; and the substantial good sense and variety of your news comments are also gratifying. You contrived vivid individuality in your presentation. That rippling thread of humor breaking out at appropriate spots serves to brighten the whole, and your serious remarks jibe well with my own sentiments. An excellent feature, comparing favorably with the Nets' top commentators.—Mrs. Olive McIntyre, Mount Morris, Illinois.

A Plea for Arkie

... I think they treat Arkie mean when they make him laugh and not let him finish his song. Please make them let him finish singing, as we enjoy hearing him. We also like to hear his brother, Pete, sing with him.—Steady Listener, Muncie, Ill.

Ten-Year Record

I've not missed hearing the old Barn Dance for almost 10 years and mere words can never express how much I have enjoyed it. . . . Irma Belle, Chicago.

Thanks from Vets

My dear George Biggar:

On behalf of Col. Hugh Scott, the 1,750 patients and the writer, this is to express our thanks and appreciation for your kindness in sending out three groups of entertainers from your studio to appear at our Annual Homecoming and National Commander's Day on Sunday, August 2, 1936.

The entertainment was enjoyed immensely by the great crowd assembled here, and your kindness in arranging for same will not soon be forgotten.

Thanking you again, and with kindest personal regards, I beg to remain, very truly yours.—John R. O'Connor, Recreational Director, Veterans' Administration, Hines, Ill.

The War on Fire!

By John Baker

A fireman was killed in fighting this blaze because of inadequate fire apparatus.

"MY JOB is helping people to protect their own property against fire."

That's the way Harry "Smoky" Rogers describes his job. "Smoky," as he is known to hundreds of thousands of boys and girls over the country, has covered a good share of North America in the last 15 years, campaigning against the carelessness or thoughtlessness which leads to fires in homes, barns and business houses.

Perhaps you've been wondering who would be interested enough and be well enough organized to hire somebody to travel around teaching fire prevention. The answer is easy: the stock fire insurance companies. "Smoky" Rogers is chief of the fire prevention division of the Western Actuarial Bureau, which is an organization supported and operated by stock fire insurance companies. Fifteen years ago this organization found "Smoky" in Wichita, Kansas, where he was chief of the fire prevention bureau in the Wichita Fire Department. He jumped from a city-wide job to one which was to cover 19 states in the Middle West, teaching people of all kinds, all sorts of things about fire prevention—including such things as public speaking. But more about the public speaking later.

His work in making you and me conscious of fire hazards has been so outstanding in the Middle West, that he has been "borrowed" by oth-a similar series of programs once a week on the National Farm and Home Hour, over an NBC network, a series which was extremely popular with listeners, and was credited with much progress in the spreading of information about fires and their prevention.

"Smoky," the Fire Clown, has appeared in schools throughout the country, with his painted face and his funny antics. The boys and girls who have seen him usually start by laughing so hard that they are soon tired enough to sit quietly when "Smoky" ceases to be a clown and becomes a fireman, giving them simple and easy suggestions on things they can do around home to prevent fires.

But perhaps the most important part of the work of "Smoky" and his associates is the training of firemen, especially those in small communities. There are now some 56,000 firemen over the country studying how to be better firemen. Some are studying by correspondence; some are attending regular classes; some are attending short courses held at colleges or universities. Much of this educa-er insurance organizations to work on various occasions in almost every state of the Union and in Mexico and Canada.

Listeners of WLS hear "Smoky's" Fire Stories every Saturday morning at 9:30, CST, a dramatic series, built around the Ashville Fire Department. There are drama, thrills and excitement a-plenty, and more than a touch of youthful romance in this radio series. But every episode contains two or three pointed suggestions on things that cause fires, and how to avoid them.

tional work was started by "Smoky" and his associates, and they are responsible for much of the actual teaching.

The fireman is taught something of hydraulics, the movement of water, the effect of friction in hose and pipes, size of nozzles and similar information; he is taught the principles of chemistry, so he will know what materials may cause fires spontaneously; what substances may develop harmful gases when they are hit by water; he is taught the systematic handling of fire hose, ladders, reels

Grandview Beach,
Mullet Lake,
August 10, 1936.

HELLO Bentley: Just arrived here for two days—pike fishing on the way home. Last week when I wrote you I "dubbed" you Tahquamenon, but this week I take it all back because since then I have learned the name doesn't fit you at all.

Sunday we drove 80 miles north, through the most unpopulated and wild country I ever saw in my life. We arrived at 10:00 a.m., in the smallest town in the world, Soo Junction. From there we rode into the wilderness over six miles of tiny track on a little train powered by a gasoline motor. Finally we came to the banks of a most beautiful river, called the Tah-quah-menon. We boarded a flat bottom scow and were slowly pushed by a tug boat, 22 miles down the river. During this ride we were greatly impressed by the natural and untouched beauty of a wild but beautiful country. It seemed as though we were a thousand miles from nowhere.

Visits Great Falls

Our destination was the Tah-quah-menon falls, which we reached about three in the afternoon, after a mile long hike through the woods. The falls, named after an Indian chief, are about 100 feet high, and through the centuries have dug a natural canyon out of limestone rock. During our return trip that evening we saw many wild deer—five in one group, and to me I tell you it was a great experience.

Last night while searching in the sand for arrow-heads, Jean and I stumbled onto a skeleton. An Ottawa Indian, who authorities told us was probably tomahawked in battle some 150 or 200 years ago. The skull was crushed on top and as we uncovered the sand, saw it was lying a bit on the left side with both legs bent back at the knee, perhaps just as he had fallen. Beads lay around the shoulder and one finger bone wore three crude copper rings. We made our discovery on the grounds of what was once the Ottawa village, settled in 1699. The skeleton was a large one and measured well over six feet. We found no pottery or other implements which, we were told, should have accompanied the body had it been given regular burial by the tribe, hence our belief it was a victim of the tomahawk in battle, and was left on the field or quickly thrown into a crude grave, so as not to let the enemy know the number of slain. This, I am told, was a common practice.

Thrilling Country

Visited the grave of Father Marquette, who was such a friend of the early Indians. Explored Mackinac Island and the fort; also the old fort Machilimackinac at Mackinaw City. Have done quite a bit of reading and studying about this country and find it most romantic and thrilling. Massacres, conspiracy, missions, traders, hunters, French, English, Indians, relics, etc.—they have all contributed to make this my most interesting vacation.

If I can just land a few pike tonight before dark I'll be ready to start home Thursday. See you at Springfield Saturday night.

So Long,

JACK.

Fibber in Milwaukee

Fibber McGee, radio's great liar, and his "ball and chain," Molly, will make a guest appearance over NBC affiliate WTMJ in Milwaukee on August 23. The occasion is a special program marking the opening of the station's new studios.

Buck Bucked Off

DEAR JULIAN: On account of plenty of grass hereabouts the jackrabbits in this vicinity are getting plum bold and vigorous. At the home of Solomon Powder last night the water he had in a pan for his lion-hunting dogs was raided by the hares and all the dogs run under the house in embarrassments. The rodents then got under the log water-trough in Solomon's corral and knawed two big holes in the bottom lettin' the moisture all out and he had to tote water in a galvanized bucket to his stock this morning.

Sunday Buck Evans rode over to the T-Bar ranch to visit his girl and as his hoss was a gentle feller with no bad ideas about buckin' or runnin' away Buck let his reins dangle and lit a smoke something not unusual in these parts. As he got near the ranch house a passel of hogs which was sleeping in a fence corner jumped up right quick, woofed like porkers do, then scooted right out under the hoss. The latter give a snort and hopped over sidewise, the rider being flang off in the middle of the swine which then milled around over him a spell. Buck was all muddied up and looked scandalous when he finely caught his hoss again and come back home.

The Cowboy Club orchestra is practicing again having laid off since Citron Spinks got the sliver in his tongue off his saxophone. We're hotter than a fox in a forest fire when we play "Rainbow Valley," a new song by our feller cowboy, Bill Putt, the first verse of which is as follows:

Of all things I ever knew
I'd ruther be a steer
And roam the hills and valleys through
And never have a keer.

And the tune is something like "Cat watchin' the rat-hole." A stray cowboy from the Seven-Anchor listened to us for quite a while and never made a move to pull his gun which shows we are improving.

PRESIDENT Franklin D. Roosevelt will speak before the diplomatic corps, members of the Cabinet and more than 2,000 electrical engineers September 11, when proceedings of the joint session of the Third World Power Conference and the Second Congress on Large Dams are broadcast over the coast-to-coast NBC-Red network.

The program, to originate in Constitution Hall, Washington, D. C., will be heard from 2:00 to 3:00 p. m., CST.

At the end of the President's speech, the chief executive will press a button which will start the generating of power at Boulder Dam in Colorado. The same electric impulse which starts the power will open 12 giant needle valves in the huge government power project, causing water to fall from a greater height than at Niagara Falls.

Among the 2,000 power experts expected to be present for the President's speech will be more than 500 engineers from nearly every country in the world. President Roosevelt issued invitations to the Conference through diplomatic channels more than six months ago. Acceptances were received from engineers, power executives and technicians from 45 countries, many of the delegates having already arrived in the National Capital.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, who has the world's five most famous patients, the Dionne quintuplets, will give a series of thrice-weekly talks over the WABC-Columbia network each Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 10:45 to 11:00 a. m., CST, beginning Monday, October 5. Dr. Dafoe will broadcast from the Dafoe Hospital at Callander, Ont., home of the quintuplets.

The noted physician will relate intimate facts about Yvonne, Annette, Emile, Cecile and Marie Dionne and keep listeners informed of their progress and antics as the increased wisdom of "advanced age" comes upon them.

Ellsworth Vines, Jr., one of the nation's best known tennis players, will take part in NBC's coverage of the men's and women's National Tennis Championships at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, Long Island, September 3 to 12.

Vines, holder of the United States singles title in 1931 and 1932 and present world professional champion, will share the NBC broadcasts with John Tunis, noted tennis authority, and Nelson Case and Jack Fraser, NBC announcers. Although final details of the programs have not been arranged, radio listeners will be given expert summaries, comment and play-by-play accounts of the most interesting games.

DONA JANE HOUSH, seven-year-old daughter of Merle Housh, is all set to defeat the heat wave with a good swim.

Tim Ryan and Irene Noblette, popular air, screen and stage comedy team, and the members of their crazy Wacky Family will switch their antics to the NBC-Red network, beginning with their broadcast of Sunday, August 30. At present they are heard on the nation-wide NBC-Blue network at 5:00 p. m., CST, Sunday evenings. The programs will be heard on the Red chain at the same time, under the same sponsorship and with the same supporting cast: Master of Ceremonies Don Wilson, Morton Bowe, tenor, and Don Voorhees' orchestra.

FLASH! FLASH! Two more WLS marriages!

This is the season for altar-bound couples and the WLS boys and girls are no exceptions.

Barely two weeks after Rocky Racherbaumer's marriage to Marian Rae Stringer came the news of WLS marriage number 16—Howard (Sod Buster) Black and Violet (Billy) Flannery of the Flannery Sisters harmony team. And, treading right on the heels of that announcement came one from Winston's County's most eligible bachelor, Pat Buttram, that he, too, had been ensnared by Ol' Daniel Cupid.

Howard and Billy were married in Crown Point, Indiana, famed Hoosier Gretna Green, on July 24, but announced their marriage only last week. Pat and Dorothy McFadden had similar plans in mind and they journeyed to Crown Point on August 3. Pat and Dorothy then drove down to Winston county, Alabama, to spend a week in the native Buttram bailiwick.

Howard and Billy have set up housekeeping on Chicago's West Side near the homes of the Prairie Ramblers. Asked where he and Dorothy planed to live, Pat said, "Well, we ain't got no home yet. And we don't calculate we will till I finish these road trips."

The Saturday Jamboree will be expanded to a full hour effective Saturday, August 22, and will be heard thereafter over the NBC-Red network from 6:30 to 7:30 p. m., CST. The program now is heard at 8:00 p. m., EST (7:00 p. m., CST).

A Case of Poor Economy

By MARJORIE GIBSON

HELLO, Fanfare Readers. Larry Kurtze of the artists bureau walked into our office the other morning and said he had one to tell on Paul Rose who is managing one of the road show units.

"Paul's Scotch blood got the best of him the other day," chuckled Larry, "when we were making a hop from Muncie, Indiana, to Benton, Illinois, to play an engagement."

They were getting low on gas so Paul drove into a gas station only to discover it had been closed for the past five months; whereupon he decided he'd wait until he reached Illinois before he filled up his tank, for in Indiana gas was 20 cents while in Illinois it was only 19 cents. It was only 20 miles to the Sucker state. But alas, when they reached the Illinois line not a gas station was in sight. On they journeyed, the gauge reading zero. Finally Lizzie stopped dead in her tracks and refused to budge; that is, until Larry got out and pushed her down the road a mile and a half at the end of which was the oasis in the desert in the form of a filling station.

And Larry said this was "one on Paul."

"Please answer these questions in Stand By!" requests Florence L. Wilson of Atkinson, Illinois. "What is the name and age of Carl Davis's daughter known as the Little Mountain Sweetheart on 'Supper Time Frolic' over WJJD? Are Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette on the air? What is the real name of Rhubarb Red who sings over WJJD?"

The little girl known as the Little Mountain Sweetheart on "Supper Time Frolic" is nine-year-old Shelby Jean Davis. She is a niece, not a daughter of Karl Davis. Bill Davis, known as the black-face character, Pancakes, when he appeared at Prairie Farmer Mass Meetings, is Shelby Jean's father.

The last we heard Smiley Burnette was appearing on the air from a Hollywood station. Do not think that Gene was doing any broadcasting at the time. Rhubarb Red's real name is Lester Polfuss.

Miss McCormic and Burns have much in common. Both are natives of Arkansas, and much of their con-

En route she spent a day in the Black Hills and a night at Deadwood, South Dakota, where is located the largest gold mine in the world. From Deadwood, Anna Mae brought back as a souvenir, five tiny pieces of gold and two miniature garnets panned for her by a native of the town.

« BOLD PLAIDS FOR FALL »

TWO sophisticated extremes take an important place in the scheme of things this fall. Dashing plaids in tweeds and rough woolens for the calmly casual life during the day; shining, slinky satin (preferably black) for dressy afternoon and the early twilight hours.

Your bold plaid woolens are smart in many different types of ensembles, which is a good thing. It enables short, tall, stocky or very slender women to find the frocks or coats they want. One of the best coats we've seen is the one sketched at the far right. A fingertip, double breasted model with very full, flaring back. If you're tall you get by with this. If you're a little on the short side a shorter, closer fitting jacket in a more conservative plaid would be better, of course.

There may be some women who don't care for such riotous coats but we haven't been able to find one. Business women, particularly, love to have them. Long hours in an office; endless days of wearing black and strictly tailored clothes create a grand desire for FREEDOM in clothes.

Then, coming a long way from that type of dress . . . there's satin that can also do a lot for that tired feeling, in an entirely different way. It can make you feel glamorous, languorous, exciting . . . it can do more than that . . . it can actually make you all of those things. The dress sketched is extremely simple, as so many of the new frocks are. The skirt is slim and falls straight in front, but flares magnificently in back. The collar is high and snug. Both collar and belt are made of cords covered with satin and wound together. The sleeves are $\frac{3}{4}$ length and shirred up the inside seam to give a haphazard fullness. We recommend it as a marvelous "pepper upper" and as the frock in which to meet fall gallantly. Note: Don't miss the hat. Some of the new ones for fall and winter are, we admit, really pretty bad . . . lovely on the sketched head, but difficult to wear. Here's one, however, that has charm and isn't completely insane looking. —SHARI.

Circus Is Huge Traveling City

Part II

FROM the "cook tents" (which include the dining tent) we strolled among the wagons outside and inside of which families were "at rest," reading, knitting, playing games of various kinds, one girl mending a costume, others pressing costumes. A sweet little girl about 10 years of age was being taught a tricky little dance step by another performer. A little boy about three years of age played with a wagon of colorful blocks. A group of youngsters gathered around Tim McCoy's horse admiring his hand tooled, gold and silver trimmed saddle, insured for $25,000. Girls were coming from the Loop with purchases in hand, talented performers played like children with the new ball and bat set that has taken this section of the country by storm. A fruit vender pushed his cart—this little town of 1,600 is much like any town of a similar size—laborers, semi-skilled, and artists of the highest type, who must lead well planned, temperate lives if they would keep at the top as they must stay with this circus.

Clubs of many kinds flourish behind scenes, bridge clubs, knitting clubs, tennis clubs, golf clubs as well as purely social clubs exist to add to the social life of the circus city.

By this time we have reached the wardrobe department where Mrs. Maude Millet, wardrobe mistress in charge of costumes for 80 to 85 girls, greets us warmly. Here, too, as in the kitchen, efficiency reigns, in order that there will be no confusion at dressing time and that all costumes will be kept in perfect condition.

Shoes are kept in one box, fancy head dresses in another, banners in one, repair materials and sewing equipment in one and costumes in still another. Costumes for each performer are wrapped in a cloth and the bundle pinned together to keep everything together and in good condition. Each bundle cloth is marked with its owner's name so it is easily identified.

by

When the first dressing call is given about an hour and a quarter before "spec" the trek to the wardrobe room commences. Head dresses have been laid out on large tables by Mrs. Millet or her two assistants and the women performers pass around tables and trunks assembling their wardrobes which have been inspected and repaired if necessary since the last performance.

The postmen brought afternoon mail to Mrs. Millet about 7:00 p. m. and the performers faces lighted as they were handed their share. It was interesting to note the performers as they came in after their costumes, ponder as to their part in the whole scheme and then recognize them as they came into the ring later. I heard story after story of performers whose parents and grandparents had been performers before them—the blue blood of circus land.

Mrs. Wright

Miss Mildred Millet, acrobat, and her mother, Mrs. Maude Millet, wardrobe mistress. Mildred is the third generation of her family in circus life.

Wardrobe in hand with much banter between them, back to their own "homes" they go to dress for the brilliant spectacle in costumes of heavy silks, satins and velvets, and head-dresses of maribou and velvets trimmed by hand with metal and beads of all colors and sizes.

It has taken Mrs. Millet and a staff of around 16 workers over four months of steady work, during the time they spend in winter quarters in Sarasota, Florida, to make these costumes, together with the men's costumes and those for the animals. Around a hundred yards of high quality velvet is needed for a single elephant blanket and three or four women at a time working around a large table, sewing on trimming of various kinds, to enhance the beauty of the huge "garment."

Eight-fifteen arrives and it is time to go out to watch the "spec," the brilliant opening parade, which has largely taken the place of the old time free parade down main street. It took me back many years to the times when Dad took us children seven miles in a surrey in the wee small hours of the morning to see the circus train unload, to view the parade during the middle of the morning and then to the circus in the afternoon. It was fun in those days, but we thought of the man on the flying trapeze and other performers much as we did of fairies. It is even more fun to go behind the scenes, to meet the performers, as men and women, and realize that it is through persistent work that they have attained their skill, that they are human as you and I, educated, refined, with their hopes and ambitions for themselves and families and a great loyalty to their chosen profession.

(This is the second of two articles by Mrs. Wright on life behind the scenes of a great circus.)

Air School Features

Two notable innovations are scheduled for the eighth season of the American School of the Air beginning over the WABC-Columbia network Tuesday, October 13.

One of these is to be a series of broadcasts from several foreign countries each Thursday during the second half of the season. In these, soloists, choruses and choirs of Ireland, France, Spain, Italy, Germany, Holland, Czecho-Slovakia, Sweden, Austria, Scotland and Denmark will bring the best in native folk music of those countries to American listeners in our schools.

The other feature, to be presented during the Tuesday music periods, will embrace performances of compositions by famous historical figures, many to be heard in America for the first time. This will start with the opening of this fall's semester.

Scholarships

W. A. Fisher, a leader in the automobile industry, and Edwin C. Hill, NBC news commentator, will be principal speakers over the NBC-Blue network at 7:45 p. m., CST on Wednesday, August 26, when four American youths receive $5,000 college scholarships as winners in the 1936 Fisher Craftsman's Guild Competition. The broadcast will originate at a banquet for the winners to be held in the Cleveland College Auditorium of Western Reserve University.

Harmonica King

EDDIE ALLAN, the Dixie Harmonica King, started playing a harmonica to keep up his courage as he worked in the dark railroad yards at Galesburg, Illinois. If there were any tramps or bums around, Eddie wanted to be sure they heard him first so they could keep out of his way.

The yardmen in the railroad yards thought Eddie was pretty good on the harmonica and persuaded him that he ought to try out for the radio. This was in 1926. So when Eddie visited his sister in Chicago, he dropped in at the WHT (now WBBM) studios and talked to Pat Barnes. Pat told him to come back at 7:30 that evening to try out.

Eddie "tried out" and it wasn't until after he'd finished his second number that he discovered that he'd been broadcasting instead of being auditioned. Not knowing that he was on the air, he didn't have a bit of mike fright and never has since.

Born in Atlanta, Georgia, where the big peaches and watermelons come from, Eddie moved to Galesburg, Illinois, when he was only three years old. His six brothers and sisters nicknamed Eddie, "The Crow," because he cried so much.

Was News Boy

While he was attending grade and high school, he sold newspapers on the street corners. He distinctly remembers the destruction of the Battleship Maine during the Spanish American war because he sold more papers that day than any other while he was in the business.

From calling papers on the streets, it was but a step to calling trains. Eddie was only 16 when he applied for the job as train caller but it was simple for him to add two years to his age to reach the necessary 18 because he was a big lad for his age.

In his peg-topped trousers and checkered waistcoat, Eddie used to make quite a figure riding to and from his work at the yards on his two-wheeled "safety" bicycle.

Those were the days of real sport! On Sundays, Eddie would take his bicycle out to the dirt road and compete in the six-mile races from Galesburg to Knoxville with the racing stars of that day—Bert Repine, Egan and many others. "Of course," admits Eddie, "Repine or Egan generally won but it was good exercise anyway."

After several years of railroading, Eddie got a job in the pottery at Galesburg where he learned to make jugs and jars. When the foreman wanted Eddie to go into one of the hot kilns and unload pottery, though, Eddie decided it was time to quit and go back to the railroad.

On his next job, he worked just half a day and earned 50 cents. It was the middle of July with the thermometer hovering around 90 degrees. Eddie was supposed to be cutting weeds out of the middle of the railroad track, five miles from town. He was all tired out before he started and when the whistle blew at noon, Eddie quit. "When I got my 50 cents pay two weeks later," Eddie says, "I blew myself to a new high collar and a flowing crepe tie and was quite the Beau Brummel of Galesburg."

Back to Railroading

After an interval during which he worked at the McCormick Reaper plant in Chicago, Eddie went back to Galesburg and again got a job on the railroad, this time as a round house clerk working nights. He and his buddies used to get in the good graces of the hostlers so they would be allowed to run the big steam engines. Eddie has handled an engine when it was going at a speed of more than a mile a minute.

It was after he became yard switchman and then assistant yardmaster, that he learned to play his harmonica, which brought him into the world of radio.

After the bicycle craze wore off, Eddie took to baseball. For years he played ball with the practising teams of Knox College which is, incidentally, Editor Bentley's alma mater.

Eddie married a Galesburg girl, Lena Rebscher, and they have three sons—Dave, Joe and Tom.

Following the eventful trip to Chicago during which Eddie made his first broadcast, he played his harmonica on the Galesburg station, WKBS. Through a contact with Norman Baker, Eddie played at KTNT, Muscatine, Iowa; and later at WOC, Davenport. While he was at WOC, Eddie organized an old-time orchestra that played for square dances, the popularity of which was just being revived.

Because of his interest in the square dances, Eddie became a National Barn Dance fan so the next time he came to Chicago, he dropped in at the WLS studios and met Ted Du Moulin and Steve Cisler. Steve dubbed him the Dixie Harmonica King and put him on the staff where he's been ever since.

In addition to his harmonica-playing, Eddie has acted a number of characters in radio dramatic shows—among them Sherm Blevins on the Pine Mountain Merrymakers and Fatty Brewster on Smoky's Fire Stories. He also takes turns with Check Stafford greeting guests in the Little Theatre. Eddie has played on every station in Chicago and on both networks, as well as on a number of out of town stations while he was traveling with road show units.

He says his hobby now is his day-by-day attempt to reduce his avoirdupois from 230 pounds. Eddie is six feet tall and has brown eyes and hair. His birthday will be celebrated soon—August 27.

The Latch String

By CHECK STAFFORD

HOWDY, folks. Well, there's only one more week of the "Dog-day" month left. September, with school time and Fall fashion showings, will soon remind us of another Winter's coming. Where do these days go so swiftly?

Tomorrow we will reach another milestone along life's road. We recall some of those old miles were hard ones and the going rough. Others were wonderful, ones never to be forgotten. We feel the old world has given us probably as much as we've merited. We never believed, as many do, that the world owes us all a living. We have learned that one gets out of life just about what he puts into it, and he who works earnestly finds old Mr. World a good paymaster.

Would you care to live your life over again? What would you do, were you given that chance? Let's stop and think over that oft-spoken phrase "If I had my life to live over again." Isn't it true, we do have that chance with the sunrise of each day? The whole world is doing that thing each morning, starting all over again, many profiting by yesterday's mistakes, some of us blindly repeating our stumbles. Today is here, and with it another chance. The past is forgotten. The present is what counts. Always, following the dark night, the birds have sung with the bright sun's first rays, and another new day offers us life anew.

Miller, a Chicago boy, moved to Havana when 12 years old and has spent many years there. His firm employs about 75 Filipino workmen; small, wiry fellows who handle 100 pound loads easily. Our visitor told us many Americans in business in Florida, lived in Havana and commuted by boat or plane to their businesses. Living is not so high in Cuba, he says, the climate is fine and they have practically all of the home comforts and accommodations of Chicago—and many fine features we don't have here. Fish and fruit, nuts and excellent fresh vegetable are on the native markets at low prices, according to Mr. Miller.

He also said that throughout the large and thriving American quarter, the old National Barn Dance was the Saturday night favorite. His short wave set brings in the hayloft gang's music with excellent reception, with the exception of an occasional interference from battleship stations. Mr. Miller, although a salesman of native made twine and shipping bags, also sold us on Havana, and we really would like to visit his town. Wide boulevards, flowers, palms and famed old Morro Castle are among the sights. We learned much of the good influence Americans have had there, when Mr. Miller spoke of the fine wide streets (where once were narrow lanes) and of the excellent public buildings, parks and public gardens, all directly brought about through American business spirit and methods.

Smile-A-While time friends to pay us a welcome visit last week were the Wells twins, Barbara and Maurine, charming blonde singers over Tuscola, Illinois, station WZD. The sisters, nearing their 18th birthday, and Paris, Illinois, residents, have been with the popular Douglas county station for two years.

A visiting artist, Florence Webb of Auburn, Indiana, inspected our studios. A talented organist, she recently gave a series of concerts over station WOWO, Ft. Wayne, Indiana. Our visitor also played for the Court Theatre at Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. French, former Illinois residents, who moved to Texarkana, Texas, visited us this week. They told us crops were fine in their section of the Lone Star state. Cotton and watermelons, main crops in their neighborhood, are of good prospects. Peaches, also a big item there, are cut in yield, however, owing to the extreme winter and the late spring freezes. Mr. French also told us of one farmer who cashed in on the scarcity and high prices paid for potatoes some weeks ago, when he sold his five-acre crop of spuds for $3.25 per hundred pounds at the farm, the yield netting him $1,100. Not bad. With the Frenches was a sister, Miss Sue French of Pekin, Illinois, who spoke of the need of rain then, in her community.

Ern Landers, Ogle county, Illinois, editor and philosopher, says he believes most of this talk about saving money is bunk. He tells of how an old fellow out in Missouri was shaved for the first time in over 50 years on July 4th, and the Ozark resident stated he had saved over $800 by growing a beard and keeping it for half a century. Later it was found he didn't have the money, so did he really save it? Mr. Landers also says a Mrs. Glump was heard to say she saved over $2.00 by going to Slickville to trade, her home town grocer being too high. But this lady failed to show the two dollars. How many of us have the money to show for the alleged savings we make. Maybe the Republican's editor is right. Do we save or just think we save?

The Life and Works of Pat Buttram

World Wide Broadcast

ALL the world's major broadcasting systems will be linked for a single program of American folk music on Sunday, September 20, according to arrangements of NBC, CBS, and the International Broadcasting Union.

The program, to originate in both NBC and CBS studios, is the first of a series which was proposed by NBC delegates at the recent Intercontinental Broadcasting Conference in Paris. Later programs will include a broadcast of the annual Tango Carnival at Buenos Aires, and native music from the Belgian Congo and the Dutch East Indies, the last probably to come from the famed annual Harvest Festival at the palace of the Sultan of Djokja.

Four Types of Music

The inaugural program of September 20 will present American folk music in four broad categories—Indian music, cowboy music, Negro spirituals and Anglo-American ballads. The program will go on the air at 2:00 p. m., CST, and will be heard in America over the coast-to-coast NBC-RD network and CBS.

The Indian music will open the program, following an actual radio pick-up of the roaring of Niagara Falls. Chief Jesse Cornplanter of the Seneca Indians and Nicodemus Bailey, his blood brother, will conduct other Indian singers in tribal chants and war cries, accompanied by native flutes, shell rattles and tom-toms. Howard Barlow will lead a symphony orchestra in Skilton's "War Dance."

The cowboy music will follow, with Carson Robison and his Buckaroos singing and playing "The Streets of Laredo" and "Roll Out, Cowboys." The traditional music of the plains will be contrasted with a modern composition when Hal Kemp's Band plays "I'm an Old Cow Hand."

The Fisk Jubilee Singers, famous Negro chorus, will sing "I Want to Go to Heaven When I Die" and Stephen Foster's "Old Folks at Home." This portion of the broadcast will originate at Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn.

An Anglo-American ballad, "Sourwood Mountain," will be sung from Washington by I. G. Greer of Thomasville, N. C. Mrs. Greer will play the accompaniment on the dulcimer.

The Old Hayloft

By THE HIRED MAN

DOWN in the Hoosier State listening to the Barn Dance through the car radio last Saturday night. . . . Slim Williams, Alaska's ambassador, to the States, being interviewed by Uncle Ezra. If Slim will attend Rosedale's Centennial, the Jumpin' Jenny Wren will visit Alaska, is the promise made. . . . Uncle Ezra really does want to visit that far northwest country as soon as he can. Slim's yarns about fishin' up there were enough to persuade the Sage of Rosedale. . . . Heard day or two ago that Slim Williams was really afflicted with "mike fright" on that broadcast, though it was not noticeable on the air. . . . "A thousand miles from Nowhere, trekking from Alaska to the U. S. A. with a dog team was a cinch compared with that broadcast," declared Slim.

Drove into Warsaw, home of Jolly Joe's Pet Pals sponsor, during the Barn Dance. . . . Hundreds of cars parked and sidewalks crowded with farm and town folks. . . . "Now who in the world stays home Saturday night to hear the Barn Dance?" I asked myself. . . . A WLS director back in 1924 asked a similar question, when it was planned to stage the hayloft show on "bath night." . . . It is quite evident that somebody listens, otherwise how could this famous old-time program have attained such great national popularity? . . . Proving, perhaps, that a program that pleases is more important than the night of broadcast.

Prairie Ramblers sing "Mamma Don't Allow No Music Played in Here." . . . "Bad effect on some children," writes a listener. "They think it's cute to say, 'I don't care what mamma allows,' so we distract the youngsters' attention while the number is being played and sung." . . . We know that Jack, Chick, Tex, Salty and Patsy don't want anyone to take those words seriously. . . . If they'd have said them at home, out would have come the old hickory sticks. . . . And you mothers can do likewise.

Loyal listeners, are these. . . . Mrs. A. H. Wahlen, Kewaskum, Wisconsin, writes, "Since that Saturday night 10 or 12 years ago when we had our first small horn loudspeaker set, we've looked forward to each Saturday night. First song to reach our ears over the air waves was 'Oh Susanna,' played and sung by Chubby Parker. Enjoyed immensely Bradley Kincaid, Walter Peterson, Cecil and Esther Ward and scores of others through the years. Wouldn't miss the Barn Dance for the best show in town." . . . Thanks to Mrs. Wahlen and likewise to Lily Karppinen, Sundell, Mich., who has been listening for five years, and to Violet Ceranek, Chicago, who has this record: "Eighteen years old, living in Downers Grove but at present staying in Chicago. I've listened to WLS and the Barn Dance for 13 years. In the last 18 months, I've collected 921 songs sung by WLS artists. I memorize the tunes. I've collected information on all the artists and others. I've records of almost all their birthdays. I've collected autographs, pictures and enough information concerning WLS to write a book." . . . Some record for an 18-year-old girl!

Tom Corwine just dropped in to tell me he met a real old-time fiddler at Griggsville, Ill., in the person of S. W. Peak, Winchester, who will be 97 next February. . . . And with Mr. Peak was Edward McCallstry, Griggsville, a pioneer Illinoisan, also 96. . . . They were out to hear the Barn Dance crew in a personal appearance and how these fine old men enjoyed it!

and other equipment; he is taught life saving and resuscitation; he is taught methods of fire fighting which will prevent insofar as possible unnecessary damage by water and smoke. Yes, he is even taught public speaking. That is an important part of fire prevention education, "Smoky" believes, because any fire department is likely to be called upon to send a man to a school or club, to talk about how to prevent fires. The average fireman is not a born public speaker, and so an effort is made to train some of them to be able to speak in public, to tell the story of fire prevention without having the audience feel too sorry for the speaker and for themselves.

"Many people seem to go around inviting a fire to start in their homes," "Smoky" says. He lists a few of the common ways in which fires start, which may be attributed to thoughtlessness:

Cleaning garments with naphtha or any other volatile cleaner.

Starting fires with kerosene.

Being careless with matches or cigarettes.

Neglecting flues until they become dirty or defective.

Leaving oily rags or mops in closets or hallways on the floor. (A tin container on the back porch is the place for an oil mop.)

Around the farm, the drouth this summer is making fire even more serious than usual. Dry grass lighted by a carelessly tossed match or cigarette can start a fire that may burn down the barn. Plowing a few furrows around each building may keep the fire from becoming serious.

Makeshift wiring in the home or in farm buildings is always dangerous. An expert electrician should do all wiring.

"The number of fires and the value of property damaged by fire is increasing," "Smoky" says. "I hate to think, though, how much faster the damage would increase without our efforts to teach fire prevention. As it is, we have to gain a little consolation from the fact that the fire damage in proportion to the total value of property has been steadily reduced."

Baker Returns

Phil Baker has been signed to star in a new half-hour series over the WABC-Columbia network beginning Sunday, September 27, at 6:30, p. m., CST.

Bottle and Beetle, deans of radio stogedom, will again be heard making Phil's life hilariously miserable. Bottle is played by Harry MacNaughton, former English stage star who has been with Baker for years. Beetle, as usual, will be portrayed by the famous network character actor whose identity remains in obscurity.

Title Tennis Aired

The National Doubles Championships have been added to the list of tennis matches of national and international interest to be covered by NBC during late August and early September. Arrangements to broadcast the men's and women's National Singles Tournament already have been announced.

The doubles championships will be played August 24 to 29 at the Longwood Cricket Club, Chestnut Hill, Mass. The broadcasts, including summaries and expert comment, will be heard over the NBC-Blue network at 4:15 p. m., CST, daily up to the date of the finals. The time for the comment and play-by-play description on August 29 will be announced later.

Ellsworth Vines, Jr., world professional champion; John Tunis, noted tennis authority, and Nelson Case and Jack Fraser, NBC announcers, will alternate at the microphone in the broadcasts of the men's and women's National Tennis Championships, September 3 to 12, at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hill, Long Island.

Tommy Mills on Air

Tommy Mills, veteran college football coach and for four years one of the late Knute Rockne's most valued assistants, has been signed by NBC as a football commentator and will make his microphone debut in that role in September.

Although Mills has had no previous radio experience, he has throughout his coaching career acted as instructor in speech at the colleges with which he has been associated, and is himself a highly effective speaker.

Mills played football at Beloit College, where he has been named half-back on the school's mythical all-time 11. His coaching career began at Omaha, Nebraska, Central High School in 1912. In 1915 he became football coach and teacher of speech at Creighton University. He remained there for four successful years and then returned to Beloit, where he coached for six years.

In 1926 Rockne asked him to come to Notre Dame as his assistant, and Mills remained there four years, also coaching wrestling, boxing and baseball. For the following three years he was athletic director and head football coach at Georgetown University.
