6	LANE:	(FILTER) I beg your pardon?
7	DICK:	Sorry, it's much too wordy to go over again.
8	LANE:	(CLEARS THROAT) Uhyes. Mr. Diamond, this is Fred
9		Lane speaking. You once did a job for a friend of mine.
10	DICK:	If your friend wants his money back, tell him I've
11		already spent it.
12	LANE:	Oh no, nothing like that. He recommended you.
13	DICK:	Well. Will wonders never cease.
14	LANE:	I'd like to hire you, Mr. Diamond. May I inquire as
15		to your fee?
16	DICK:	You may. A hundred dollars a day and expenses.
17	LANE: 20	Well, that is rather steep, but I think I can
18		manage.
19	DICK:	Spoken like a true millionaire, Mr. Lane.
20	LANE:	I live at 1482 Riverside Deire. Please get here as
21		soon as possible.
22	DICK:	Well, I'm pretty busy, but I'll try to
23	LANE:	Please, Mr. Diamond. I'll have a check waiting for you.
24	DICK:	Hmmm. Mr. Lane, go open your front door, I'm there.

3	DICK:	I owe it all to my boy scout training.
4	LANE:	Well, hereas I promiseda check.
5	DICK: 33	Sood. Now that we're both men of our word let's make
6		with some more words. Why do you want to hire me, Mr.
7		Lane?
8	LANE:	It's about my wife, Mary. She's being blackmailed,
9		Mr. Diamond.
10	DICK: O	I see.
11	IANE:	It's been going on for a month, new, Finally, last
12		night, she broke down and told me she was being
13		bleckmetied.
14	DICK:	You speak as if you know who the disckmatter was,
15		Mr. Hane.
16	LANE:	F-do. Perhaps I should clarify that a bit, nowever.
17		I don't know the man personally, but Mary tolls me he
18		wes a classmate of hers during her sellege days.
19	DICK:	Do you know why she's being blackmailed, Mr: Tane?
20	LANE:	Yes, but there is no reason to go into that new She
21		told me this blackmailer a name was louis Dixon and
22		that he was staying at the Brewster Hotel on Whinty
23		Fifth Twent there this maning to have it out with
24		háma
25	DICK:	And?"

1	LANE:	It's been going on for a month, now. Finally, last
2		night, she broke down and told me all about it.
3	DICK:	All about what, Mr. Lane? Why is she being
4		blackmailed?
5	LANE:	She made a few mistakes before I met her. No reason
6		to go into that now but the blackmailer knows, about
7		those mistakes.
8	DICK:	You speak as if you knew who the blackmailer was, Mr.
9		Lane.
10	LANE:	I do. Perhaps I should clarify that a bit, however.
11	40	don't know the man personally, but Mary tells me
12		he was a classmate of hers during her college days.
13		She told me his name was Louis Dixon and that he was

1	DICK:	Uh-huh. Mr. Lane, I still don't see why you hired me.
2		Now that your wife's told you about the blackmail, you
3		could just report it to the police. The next time this
4		Dixon guy calls, they'd nab him.
5	LANE:	Yes, but who knows when he'll call again? And until
6		he does, poor Mary will be under a terrible strain.
7		I'd rather have the matter wrapped up as soon as
8	ζ	possible.
9	DICK:	Suit yourself. As long as you pay my fee, I won't
10		argue.
11	LANE:	Good. Now, when Dixon first contacted my wife a month
12		ago, he told her he'd been living here in New York for
13		several years. If held stoop to blackmail, chances
14	(are he's been mixed up in other underworld activities.
15		You might trace him through a record.
16	DICK:	If he has a necord.
17	LANE:	t'm almost certain he will have.
18	DICK:	Dh-huh. All right, Mr. Lane, suppose I find Dixon.
19		Do you think you have enough evidence against him to
20		turn him over to the police?
21	LANE:	I'm not interested in turning him over to the police,
22		Mr. Diamond.
23	DICK:	I don't quite follow you.
24	LANE:	I'm only interested in seeing that he doesn't bother
25		Mary anymore. When you locate Dixon, let me know.
26		I intend to give him a thrashing he'll never forget.
27	DICK:	That's letting a blackmailer off pretty easy, Lane.

17	WALT:	Who is it you're looking for this time?
18	DICK:	Guy by the name of Louis Dixon. Ever hear of him?
19	WALT:	Dixon. Knew a Ralph Dixon, pickpocket. Herbie Dixon,
20		con man. Can't place a Louis Dixon off hand, though.
21		What's his racket?
22	DICK:	Blackmail, lately.
23	WALT:	Oh. Why haven't we been called in on the case?
24	DICK:	My client doesn't want publicity. Besides, he just
25	655	wants to poke the guy in the snoot a few times and

5	DICK:	Helen, it only rings once or twice a day. I think I
6		have enough strength to pick up the receiver that often.
7	HELEN:	It's strictly for appearances.
8	DICK: 23	Oh I see. Uhanyone in mind for the job?
9	HELEN:	3 Wall I have a lot of free time.
10	σ	Fine, dear. Glad it's free. I should be able to afford

12	PHELEN:	And then, after we build up the business, weRick.
13	3	Are you listening?
14	DICK:	Huh? Oh, sure, baby, sure.
15	5 HELEN:	You are not. You're just waiting for me to take a
16	5	pause so you can sneak in a song.
17	7 DICK:	Honey, how can you be so suspicious. (BEAT) But since
18	3	you did bring up the matter
19) HELEN:	I should have known better.
20	DICK:	Live and learn, dear. Live and learn.
