In Part 1 of this series, (The Old Radio Times, Winter 2019) a brief profile of Murder at Midnight was presented which included executives of the producing firm, Louis G. Cowan, Inc. and also principal crew members of the series. Additionally, a timeline of the program's tenure on the etherwaves was delineated with highlights of radio station and sponsor involvement along with selected comments from the critics.

This concluding part cites key features of all fifty-two episodes which was compiled by research of extant audio (thirty-four episodes) and analysis of scripts of all fifty-two dramas. A complete collection of these scripts was examined at the Manuscript Division, Library of Congress. Additionally, several scripts were also scrutinized that were held in the Robert Newman Papers, Howard Gotlieb Archival Research Center, Boston University. The information as outlined for each episode is as follows: episode number, title, author, recording date, copyright details, audio status, plot, and cast. The chronicling of transcribed, syndicated programs often presents problems for the radio historian. As such series may be offered to broadcasters over a period of years and thus aired by stations at various times and days, the use of a specific broadcast date for each episode should be discouraged. For Murder at Midnight, Harry Wilson has instituted a log based on copyright dates, see link: https://archive.org/details/murderatmidnight-bycopyrightdate

The current study takes this classification much farther as all available audio and each
The recording of Murder at Midnight episodes commenced April 19, 1946 and concluded in December of the same year. The April date has been misinterpreted by many chroniclers as the initial broadcast of the series. Coupled with the program's history, specifically on station KFI (see Part 1), this error has now been corrected. Scripts were submitted for copyright claim either singly or in batches and note that a given episode may have been recorded before or after the copyright date.

Many scripts contained a title page which included cast and production crew. Additional cast members were identified via press releases and also by voice recognition conducted by this author. It is a tribute to the production staff that many radioites were utilized throughout the series including stalwarts Ann Shepherd and Eric Dressler who were joined by newcomers to the medium, Don Hirst and Gen Phillips. Anton M. Leader and Raymond Morgan were director and narrator respectively for all fifty-two episodes. Albert Buhrman was at the organ console subbing for Charles Paul in Episodes #16 through #19. Though animal imitators Brad Barker and Don Bain were included in cast sheets or press releases, the identity of the sound effects artists remain unknown. It is most probable that these individuals were employees of the World Broadcasting System in a similar capacity as the program's studio booth engineer Alvin Butow.

Though distinctly a "Blood and Thunder" series, Murder at Midnight did have its moments of inside humor. For example, in "Terror Out of Space" (Episode #10), two of the main character names were John Larkin and Roy Shields (a tribute to Chicagoans, radio actor Larkin and musical composer/conductor Shields). Many of the scripts were utilized not only for other radio programs, but also for television. This aspect of the program warrants additional study along with the search for audio of the remaining "lost" installments. As noted by Bill Nadel in the program guide of the 2011 Radio Spirits release, Murder at Midnight, two episodes "The Dark Chamber" (#37) and "Death Is No End" (#38) were previously uncirculated. Moreover, the literary foundation of selected episodes needs to be explored (a Walt Whitman poem was the basis for "We Who Are About To Die" [Episode #27]). It is anticipated that the material presented in this two-part narrative will inspire additional studies of this series.

Smiley Burnette: From the Panhandle to Petticoat Junction

Trav S.D.
(Originally published March 18, 2019, and is reprinted with permission)

Smiley Burnette (Lester Alvin Burnett) was born in rural Summum, Illinois, not far from the Illinois River, and raised in Ravenwood, Missouri. He was only a teenager when he began entertaining people with his music in vaudeville and on WDZ radio. He is said to have gotten his nickname from Mark Twain’s The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County, which he read aloud on a local children’s program.

Burnette could play several different musical instruments. In 1933 he got a job backing Gene Autry on a WLS (Chicago) show called the National Barn Dance. The following year, they were hired to perform in the Ken Maynard western In Old Santa Fe, which led to film careers for both of them. Smiley was sidekick to Autry in 62 westerns, to Charles Starrett in 56, and to Roy Rogers in 10. Others he was paired with included Jock Mahoney, Bob Livingston, Eddie Dew, and Sunset Carson. He also wrote and recorded some 400 songs, many of which he performed in his films. His last western film was Last of the Pony Riders, with Autry in 1953.

When B movie westerns passed from the scene, Burnett turned for a time to performing music on radio and local television. In 1963 he was cast in the role of Charlie Pratt in Petticoat Junction, a role which he also played from time to time on Green Acres. He was on Petticoat Junction for five seasons, 110 episodes, until he passed away in 1967.

Martin Grams

In the Recreational Shakespeare series from Amsterdam University Press, the Bard’s stage plays as presented in all forms of mass media are examined by a variety of authors. Michael P. Jensen’s study of Shakespeare on radio (especially in 1937 when CBS and NBC both competed with a similar series) is as in-depth a treatment as you will find on this subject. While Shakespeare plays were adapted for Radio Guild, Suspense, The Family Theatre and The Chase and Sanborn Hour, to name a few, it was during the summer of 1937 that both CBS and NBC deployed their best resources to appropriate Shakespeare’s prestige and the print media quickly described the two networks attempts with the nomenclature of boxing.

“These fourteen broadcasts are among the more remarkable recreations of Shakespeare of their time,” Jensen writes. His lengthy essay, defending that statement, is clear and concise.

As is often the case, every book about old-time radio comes across my desk at one time or another and I manage to find time to read them – and such books as this become delights to read after I dig into a few pages. Much like sitting in on a slide show presentation at a convention where the subject matter was only casually interesting, the material provided to the masses is extremely fascinating and attention-grabbing. Michael P. Jensen's book accomplishes the same feat.

The first chapter of this book, following an introduction to the history of radio broadcasting, surveys Shakespeare broadcasts in the United States prior to the 1937 competition and why the networks presented heavily abridged adaptations in brief time slots. The second and third chapters introduce the network battle and why the two rivals were so angry that each wanted to lord Shakespeare’s prestige over the other, how they put the series together with top-notch talent, and both critical reception and analysis for each radio broadcast.

NBC’s Streamlined Shakespeare starred John Barrymore and was later recycled for use on a summer 1950 run titled John Barrymore and Shakespeare, often creating confusion among collectors who sought the original network broadcasts. This series was also used for commercial release on records. (Many schools played these recordings for students in the classroom.) CBS’s Columbia Shakespeare Cycle attempted to combat the signing of John Barrymore with NBC by hiring stars from Hollywood – so many stars that newspapers of the time had more press releases than they could use.

Chapters four and five provide closure to the 1937 battle and a fascinating story of how all the hoopla did not bring the prestige the combatants craved. Jensen also digs into other radio adaptations for comparison. As with many books about old-time radio, even if you are not into the 1937 Shakespeare adaptations, the history of the network battle is equally fascinating and kudos for Michael P. Jensen for digging into the story.

My only complaint is the retail price. At a list price of $69 for a book totaling 89 pages (and that includes index), I fear this book will only make the rounds through college and university libraries. You can buy the book at $59 on Amazon through the link below:

Blog Profile

Martin Grams’ self-titled blog is one of the longest-running blogs that I’m aware of that regularly features significant old-time radio content. Grams has been posting a new entry approximately every week going all the way back to 2011.

As massive as Grams’ books are, believe it or not there’s material that gets omitted for various reasons. Fortunately, this history is not just left in the shadows; frequently this information gets crafted into both articles that grace the pages of OTR publications and entries to his blog. So if you’re especially interested in one of his books, check Grams’ blog because there’s very likely related content somewhere on his site.

Wistful Vistas
From the Editor’s Desk
Ryan Ellett

Welcome back, friends. I hope you’ve been listening to some great old-time radio since we last gathered. I’ve been making my way through a batch of new (to me) shows that includes many musical programs such as The Doris Day Show, The Big Time, 10-2-4 Time, and Call for Music. While far from my favorite genre, I’ve enjoyed them nonetheless. What genres have you found yourself pleasantly surprised by?

We’re glad to bring you the second part to Karl Schadow’s research on Murder at Midnight. Work continues on updating the Maintained (formerly Certified) set but is going a bit slower than planned.

There are a handful of blogs with regular OTR content that I hope to feature here and in future issues. We start out with one of the granddaddies in this issue, Martin Grams’ blog. They’re a great supplement to your old-time radio reading.

We’re also including some information on a few purchasing groups. You’ll get an overview of what they do, why they’re important, and how you can get involved with one if you so choose.

Just a reminder that activity on our main Yahoo Group has declined considerably since the transition to Facebook a couple years back. If you are a member, you can still post. We are working on getting approvals for new members. Many OTRR members contribute to the forum threads located at the Cobalt Club, one of the busier OTR sites.

Purchasing Groups

The listening opportunities for today’s enthusiasts of old-time radio are entirely different environment than those of the hobby’s early years in the 1970s and 1980s. OTR accessibility is very different even than when I first entered the hobby in 2000.

When I joined the Old-Time Radio Digest (http://lists.oldradio.net/otrdigest/) there were still regular discussions about whether the mp3 medium was going to last; there was still a wider selection of programs available on cassette from various vendors than was available in the now-ubiquitous (and oft derided) digital format.

Now, one could go to sites such as otrlibrary.org or archive.org and, depending on your download speed, have more shows to listen to than is possible in a lifetime (yes, quality will vary widely). The vast majority of OTR fans will be satisfied with these offerings and look no further, and this is fine.

Some readers, however, may be interested not just in upgrading some of their poor-quality shows but in helping to make available brand new shows to the hobby. The easiest way to do this is to join one of the multiple purchasing groups found among hobbyists.

Purchasing groups are not new; fans have been banding together to acquire new material since the very beginning of the hobby. Whether getting shows on original transcription records or buying a selection of reel-to-reel tapes or cassettes from a dealer to copy and share among group members, these groups are a backbone of the hobby.

In decades past, OTR dealers could be counted on to track down and introduce new programming into circulation, knowing they’d make their money back eventually selling to their customers. Of course, this market has collapsed in the last ten to fifteen years as fans increasingly turned to digital copies that could be copied and shared for free in seconds. This model for re-discovering lost shows has all but disappeared except for select outfits such as Radio Archives and Radio Spirits. Even these companies have to be selective in the content they release. As their sets are quickly ripped and uploaded, only the most popular shows entice enough fans to part with their money rather than wait for free digital copies.

The Old Time Radio Researchers for many years has run its own purchasing group. For $5 per month subscribers will get regular distributions of new material. Sometimes these new shows come from the few surviving dealers such as Ted Davenport (http://www.radiomemories.com) or Terry Salmonson (http://www.audioclassics.com) and others come from transcription records and reel-to-reels that are won on ebay or on other auction sites. Contact David Oxford (deojngocharter.net) for info on joining this group.

The aforementioned Ted Davenport has his own purchasing group. For $25 per month you get a total of four hours of high audio quality material, two hours of which is circulating and two hours of which is uncirculating. He adds one additional hour from his own collection. The highlights of the group’s recent shows are brand new and uncirculating Fibber McGee & Molly shows. Contact Ted at tedotr@sbcglobal.net for more information, or find him on Facebook.

Finally, Doug Hopkinson, has started a new group where he distributes fresh material that he locates and digitizes. For $25 per month you get five hours of drama and comedy programming. For $10 per month you get 2.5 hours of musical programming. Or get the total 7.5 hours for $30 per month. Email Doug at audiotorium117@gmail.com to subscribe.

Of course, not everyone can afford to participate in one or more of these groups. But I’d encourage you to at least... considering joining one of them when thinking about how to allocate any disposable income you spend on hobbies. Bringing a single new show into circulation can cost $100, even more for the most popular shows. Plus there is considerable expense for the audio equipment necessary to play, record, and clean these aging transcriptions.

There’s no recognition or glory in supporting a purchasing group, but it’s a concrete way to know you’ve made a contribution to our wonderful hobby!

Jerry Haendiges has tens of thousands of transcription labels scanned and available for viewing at his website http://www.jerrysoldtimeradio.com/tdl-001/.

Below are some examples of transcription records that might be bought and shared among members of an OTR purchasing group. These scans are representative of several dozen available at the Old Time Radio Researchers website (https://otrr.org/4img/categories.php?cat_id=217).
The OTRR’s newest set, My Son Jeep, was released in April. It’s a small set, containing only nine unique episodes. However, the number of original recordings is ten because episode six is available in both the network and AFRS versions. Four of the episodes are available in .flac format as well as .mp3.

My Son Jeep was created and written by Walter Black and William Mondreck. Robert K. Adams and Hudson Faussett produced the show. The directors were Dan Sutter, Greg Lockwood, and Kirk Browning while John Geller composed the music. All of the cast, except for Leona Powers, who played Mrs. Bixby, the Allison’s maid, were played by two different actors/actresses during the run of the show.

Dr. Allison was first played by Donald Cook, followed by Paul McGrath. Martin Huston played Jeep, later followed by Bobby Alford. Joan Lazer and Peggy Lou Keim played Jeep’s sister, Peggy. Barbara Miller, Dr. Allison’s receptionist and low-key love interest, was performed by Lynne Allen and Joyce Gorden.

According to On the Air: The Encyclopedia of Old-Time Radio by John Dunning, the 30-minute episodes of My Son Jeep aired on Sunday evenings between January 25 and June 14, 1953. These dates seem unlikely since it would mean that 35 episodes aired in just 21 weeks. Digital Deli (http://digitaldeliftp.com) says the episodes ran through September 30, probably a more accurate assessment. According to the same source, the daily version ran from October 3, 1955 until November 2, 1956. The only sponsor of the program was Beacon Wax.

The show was specifically created for Fredrick DeWilde and his then nine-year-old son, Brandon. However, Brandon got rave notices for his part in the movie Shane, and chose to pursue a career in movies, rather than radio. This sent the creators on a hunt for replacements for the two major characters. Donald Cook was their first choice for the role of Dr. Allison, but a large audition was held for the role of Jeep. Martin Huston, 11-years old, won the role. My Son Jeep was selected by the Veterans of Foreign Wars as "The Best American Situation Comedy On The Air." The old-time radio show and its star character, Jeep, were supporters of the Boy Scouts of America. The Boy Scouts declared it to be "The Television Program Which Depicts Boyhood In The Best American Family Tradition" (Digital Deli).

My Son Jeep can be downloaded from Archive.org.

Remembering Doris Day
Claire Nava

Doris Day was born in Cincinnati, Ohio on April 3, 1922 as Doris Mary Kappelhoff. She came from a musical family; her father is listed in the 1930 Federal Census as a Church Organist. Her trademark blonde hair was natural; it was the product of her Dutch and German ancestry.

As a child, she loved to dance, and as a young teenager, she and a friend formed a dance duo that performed in the Cincinnati area. When she was fifteen, she was in a car accident that damaged her right leg severely and ended her dream of dancing professionally. It took a long time to heal, so to alleviate the boredom, Day (still known as Doris Kapelhoff) began to sing along with the singers on the radio. Her absolute favorite was Ella Fitzgerald. She told one biographer that “[t]here was a quality to her voice that fascinated me, and I'd sing along with her, trying to catch the subtle ways she shaded her voice, the casual yet clean way she sang the words.”¹

She showed promise very early on, winning spots on shows and series. In 1939, she took the stage name Doris Day. Her first really big hit came in 1945 with “Sentimental Journey.” From 1937-1948, she was strictly a musician and recording artist, but in 1948, she was offered a part in the movie Romance on the High Seas. Despite her lack of experience, she landed the role. It was another turning point in her long and eventful career.

Professionally, Doris Day went from success to success, but her private life was often tumultuous. She was married four times, but only had one son, who predeceased her. Additionally, Day was a lifelong political conservative, a vegetarian, and an animal lover. She founded the Doris Day Animal League in the 1970s to lobby for animal rights.

Day was known for her charming nostalgic movies like Moonlight Bay, and comedies like Calamity Jane and Pillow Talk, but during her long and fruitful career, she also acted in live theater, and had several successful runs on television. When she was 89, she released her final album, My Heart.

Doris Day died of pneumonia on May 13, 2019. She was 97.

ANN MALONE is a woman of independence and spirit. She has always had a nature, calmly reasoning approach to the problems that have come up during the years of her marriage to Jerry. They are deeply in love; their marriage has been, on the whole, a very happy one, but now Jerry's work is taking so much of his attention that Ann feels almost unconsciously resentful. (played by Barbara Weeks)

JERRY MALONE is a physician, qualified for his work by more than technical skill. A deep human sympathy guides his handling of patients, and has aided him to win the confidence of everyone in the sanitarium colony at Three Oaks. In spite of the criticism resulting from a political youngster against him, that at first almost succeeded in discrediting him in the town. (played by Charles Irving)

CBS's popular daytime story about a marriage whose strength was tested by adversity
MRS. MORRISON, the kindly middle-aged neighbor of Dr. Jerry and Aan, is interested in everything that concerns the Malones, particularly in their lively young daughter JILL. Ready at any time to exercise her neighborly privilege of exchanging gossip or whatever else may be wanted, Mrs. Morrison is also fond of baking pies for her young friends, offering selections of homely win, and generally lending a friendly helping hand whenever she can be useful. (played by Ethel Wilson)

ROGER DINEEN was the political master of the town of Three Oaks for long enough to build up his fortune by methods that did not stop short of murder. Altogether corrupt, he mismanaged his private life in like manner. His wife, her mind poisoned by hatred of him, died in an insane asylum; his daughter Phyllis, torn between hatred and love for the man who was, after all, her father, was saved from emotional dilemma by the Malones. Roger's last scheme ended in fiasco, and he was forced out of town and power. (played by Racey Thompson)
PHYLLIS DINEEN and CARL WARD are two people who have almost literally had their lives remade by the Malines. Phyllis, the daughter of the swindling politician Roger Dineen, could not make up her mind to leave the father she hated until Dr. Jerry made her realize that she was wasting her life and involving herself in an emotional conflict that might lead to serious consequences. Strengthened by his analysis and by Ann's friendship, Phyllis went to live with Mrs. Maline. There she met Carl, a veteran who was crippled by the loss of a leg. Because the accident was a freak, caused by the overturning of a jeep he was in, Carl became bitter and withdraw, compelled by a rigid code of honesty to refuse the role of hero. But Jerry, understanding the young man's bitterness, helped him to re-establish his confidence by getting him a job on the town's crusading newspaper. Now that Phyllis has admitted she loves Carl, life promises to proceed on a much stronger, healthier foundation for these two people who have so barely skirted tragedy.

(played by Joan Banks and Larry Haines)
MRS. HALE, a neurotic, self-indulgent woman, descends upon Three Oaks in the summertime and makes a nuisance of herself in every possible way. Completely thoughtless and selfish, she spends her time descrying herself and attempting to annex all the unattached males who come into view. She has wasted much of Jerry's professional time by calling him to attend her one child. When Jerry ruthlessly told her that the fault lay not with the child but with herself, she determined to make him change his mind about her. (played by Ethel Everett)

MALCOLM JOHNSTON is precisely the kind of youthful, unattached man who quickly catches the eye of Mrs. Hale. Socially adept, an excellent sparmann, Johnston was at one time engaged to Phyllis Dinnen, whom he jilted for a supposedly richer woman. Now, in an effort to reawaken Phyllis's interest, he is exploiting the admittance Ann Mains feels for him. Oblivious of the fact that Johnston is a thorough bounder, Ann does not realize that this plausible man's only aim is Phyllis's father's money. (played by Lee Dummar)
Ann and Jerry Malone are not novices at the problems of marriage. In the years since they first fell in love with one another, they have managed between them to weather many difficulties that might have proved fatal. In a marriage founded less solidly on mutual regard and understanding, the problem they are facing now is one that cannot be easily disposed of, partly because it cannot be too easily perceived. Since Dr. Jerry has been in These Oaks, his work has taken so much of his vital energy and time that Ann has begun to feel neglected. The feeling is almost subconscious, but it makes her all the more susceptible to the attentions of Malcolm Johnston. The home that the Malones have created around their adored little Jill is in danger, unless Jerry very soon recognizes Ann's budding resentment and takes steps against it.

Listen to Young Dr. Malone daily at 1:45 P.M. EDT, on the CBS network.
Created in 1984, the Metro Washington Old-Time Radio Club is the second largest old-time radio club in the United States. Club members enjoy monthly club meetings, an annual luncheon, and a bi-monthly newsletter. You do not have to live in or near Washington, D.C., to become a member. The newsletter, RADIO RECALL, is mailed to members from all over the country and loaded with fascinating articles, news of what is happening in the hobby, recently-discovered “lost” programs and more. Why not join the hundreds who enjoy the newsletter, which can be sent via email in PDF format, or be mailed to you through the post office?

Radio Playhouse, which made up the entirety of distros 117-120, was one of several 1970s revival programs that attempted to breathe new life into radio drama, a genre that was long past its prime. The Old Time Radio Researchers made this series available to Purchasing Group members in both .mp3 and .flac format.
WOR INTRODUCES THE RADIO PLAYHOUSE

FOUR BRAND NEW PROGRAMS HEARD MONDAY-FRIDAY FROM 3-4 PM

3 - 3:15
THE FACES OF LOVE
Suddenly a young woman is thrust, completely unprepared, into a life of complete freedom. Her traditional background conflicts with her new-found freedom to confront her with difficult decisions at every turn.

3:15 - 3:30
Author's Studio
Dramatizations of famous novels in serialized form, the first of which is William Makepeace Thackeray's classic, Vanity Fair. A romantic story featuring the bright and clever character Becky Sharp, a liberated woman a century ahead of her time.

3:30 - 3:45
The Little Things In Life
A light-hearted and high-spirited program which takes a fond and good-natured look at the trivialities which serve to frustrate us in our daily lives. You'll recognize and identify with the events in the series.

3:45 - 4:00
TO HAVE & TO HOLD
The stresses and demands which face two families of doctors who are daily involved with life and death decisions is the setting for this highly-charged dramatic program. You'll agonize and sympathize as the doctors mix the volatile combination of emotion and intellect in a contemporary society.
