Columbia Reprises Legendary
BIX BEIDERBECKE STORY on Records

The Bix Beiderbecke story, the great romantic legend of American jazz, is revised in a Columbia CL-500 three-volume set. A musical reflection of the era of Scott Fitzgerald, John Held drawings, Stutz bearcats and raccoon coats, the Beiderbecke story on discs begins in 1927 and closes in 1929. Two years later the cornet virtuoso was dead, at the age of 28.

First compiled by Columbia in its "Golden Era" record series, and drawn from the company's "Okeh" jazz label releases, these thirty-six recordings retrace Bix's brief recording career, beginning with his free-wheeling riotous sessions with "His Gang." Volume I presents twelve of Beiderbecke's most uninhibited waxings, all in the loose improvisational Dixieland style, all revealing the fertile Beiderbecke imagination.

Volume II juxtaposes Bix and his collaborator and mentor, saxophonist Frank Trumbauer. Recorded while both men were playing with the famous Jean Goldkette and Paul Whiteman orchestras, these selections include three of Beiderbecke's most celebrated solos. Featured with Bix and Tram are Jimmy Dorsey on clarinet, Miff Mole on trombone, Eddie Lang on guitar, also a vocalist named Bing Crosby.

The third volume in the Columbia "Story" covers the final period of Bix's musical life, his months with the Whiteman band. Included is Beiderbecke's own recording of his piano solo, "In a Mist," which editor Avakian describes as "the most concrete example on wax of the musical thinking which dominated Bix during his last years."

The recorded Beiderbecke chronicle was produced by George Avakian, internationally recognized authority on jazz and editor of the company's earlier Louis Armstrong and Bessie Smith Golden Era editions. Mr. Avakian's comprehensive album cover notes present new material and insights into the complex Beiderbecke character.

Columbia's long playing recordings revive the legendary Beiderbecke sound, the warm mellow cornet tone, the attack that editor Avakian describes as "sure as Tris Speaker going after a long fly, with every note brought out as clearly as a padded mallet striking a chime."

Bix always played a cornet, which gave a rounder, more intimate tone as opposed to the more penetrating quality of the trumpet. "There is always a reserved quality to Bix's cornet sound," Avakian notes, "as though he never quite lets himself go all-out emotionally. He was one of the most exciting musicians who ever lived but he did it by the individuality of his tone and the imaginativeness of his improvisations."

The sensitive young musician had "an in-born feeling of chords and all his improvisations made full use of harmonic subtleties," according to Avakian. "An untrained rebel at the start," Bix was quick to sense the "harmonic revolution of the early jazzman." But as he learned, Avakian points out, "his dissatisfaction with jazz grew and towards the end of his life he was in the throes of a musical dilemma."

Bix had begun to indulge his interest in classical music, using his ability to play piano by ear to delve more deeply into improvisation based on expansions of conventional harmony. Contemporary European composers—Debussy, Ravel, Holst, Stravinsky—fascinated him.

While exploring the intricacies of harmony, Bix began to split his musical personality. European form and discipline began to encroach on the freedom of the New Orleans music which had been his first great influence. He eventually composed and recorded "In a Mist," a piano solo in which the Edwin MacDowell influence wins out over jazz.

According to Avakian, Bix was never able to resolve this quest for more profound musical goals.

A NEW SCIENTIFIC TOY!

NUTTY PUTTY

ONLY $1.00

NUTTY PUTTY...

real crazy!!! A liquid solid! Amazing and fun! Roll into a ball, it bounces! Hit with hammer — it shatters! Pull it slowly — it stretches! Press it on a comic book and it steals a perfect impression in color... Leave it alone and it sinks into a tired little puddle. Comes in a leakproof plastic egg... You'll relax with this one — and really have a ball.

It is made of the wonder material your parents have read about in Life, Time, and other magazines. Truly a great new toy. This is the real THING.
