BOB'S GAG BAG

While I was island-hopping in the Pacific, visiting our troops stationed in the Pacific last Christmas, I came across a lieutenant who was 50 years old. "I'm the oldest officer in the whole Air Force," he said, "and if you want to know why, here's the reason."

"Our colonel seems to get a big kick out of getting us out of bed in the middle of the night for an alert. After he did it about a couple dozen times, I got an idea. I got hold of a tame orangutan that used to come around the mess hall for food, put an officer's uniform on him, and trained him to run to my plane whenever there was an alert. He would climb aboard, pull the plexiglass cover over his head, lower his goggles, switch on the engine, turn over the prop, and put his hand on the throttle, ready to take off until the 'all-clear' was sounded."

"It worked beautifully for a month. I soaked in a lot of sleep. But one night 'the all-clear' never came. I ran out and reached the field just as the last plane took off. That orangutan had taken my place in the squadron formation. Only two people were left standing on that field, the colonel and me. He glared at me, then marched off without uttering a single word."

"Now you know, Mr. Hope, why I'm the oldest lieutenant in the Air Force. Maybe I wouldn't mind it so much—except that orangutan is now a major!"

* * *

It was during that trip, too, that I came across two G.I.'s, who were staggering under the weight of a steaming kettle they were carrying out of the kitchen. A general, who was visiting the camp on an inspection tour, stopped them.

"Fetch me a ladle!" he ordered.

One of the K.P.'s rushed off to get one and returned on the run. The general dipped it into the vat, downed a mouthful, made a wry face, then roared: "Do you call that soup?"

"No, sir," one of the soldiers managed to reply in a small voice. "That's the water we were washing the dishes in!"

* * *

That reminds me of the infantry G.I. who visited his buddy in the Air Force and persuaded him to take him up for the first time. When the plane came down, the foot soldier climbed out gingerly and said, "Thanks for both of those rides!"

"Both?" asked the pilot. "There was only one."

"No, there were two, corrected the G.I. "My first and my last!"

Albert Dorne—probably the greatest money-maker in the history of commercial art. At the height of his career, he began a full-time search for people who like to draw.

He's Looking for People Who Like to Draw

TODAY HUNDREDS of men and women who never thought they could be artists are working happily at easels and drawing boards, making pictures and getting well paid for it. They all can thank Albert Dorne, a famous artist who devotes almost his full time to helping other people become artists.

Some of the People Dorne Has Helped

Herb Smith was a payroll clerk. Soon after he started studying with us, he landed an art job with a large printing firm. This was four years ago; today he's head artist for the same firm.

Don Golemba of Detroit is another. He stepped up from railroad worker to the styling department of a big automobile company—by showing his work with the School. Now he helps design new-car models.

Pat Browning wanted to escape from her dull typing job to something creative. Soon after studying with us, she was promoted to full-time artist with the same firm—at much more money.

With the right training, Wanda Pickulski gave up her typing job to become fashion artist for a local department store.

Eric Ericson worked in a garage while he studied art at night. Today he is a successful artist, earns seven times as much, and is building a new home for his family.

Long before Albert Dorne started looking for people who like to draw, they came to him for advice and help. Since he alone could help only a few of these people, he called together America's most successful artists—men like Norman Rockwell, Jon Whitcomb, Stevan Dohanos and Al Parker.

A Plan to Help Others

He said: "All over America, there are people who like to draw, who could be turned into good artists. Why can't we give these people the training they need—including all the trade secrets and know-how we've learned over the years? I'm suggesting a new kind of school—a home-study art school that would give talented people the best professional art training, no matter where they live."

The famous artists agreed. Taking time from their busy careers, they spent several years creating a remarkable series of art lessons covering every aspect of drawing and painting. They illustrated their lessons with over 5,000 "here's-how" illustrations. The lessons start from scratch and cover every skill a top artist needs. Finally, the famous artists developed a wonderful way to give each student personal correction and advice all through his training.

Albert Dorne is not surprised by the success of his students. "The art field is growing. We keep getting calls from all over the country, asking us for practical, well-trained students who can step into full-time or part-time art jobs."

Famous Artists Talent Test

To find others with art talent worth developing, the Famous Artists created a 12-page talent test. Thousands paid to take this test, but now the School offers it free and grades it free. Men and women who do well on the test—or can offer other evidence of art talent—may enroll in the School. But there's no obligation. Simply mail the coupon below.
