JUDY'S SCOREBOARD

Here are ten situations, each with three possible solutions. Decide which is right—then check with the answer box below. A score of 9 or 10 right—and you're a social smoothie! 7 or 8—pretty good, but a little rough around the edges! 6 or less—get back into that cave—you're not ready to come out yet!

1. When finished with your soup, the proper thing to do with your soup-spoon is

- Bang it loudly on your waterglass as a signal for the next course.
- Leave it sticking up inside the soup-bowl.
- Place it flat along edge of plate on which soup-bowl rests.

2. When calling for his date, a boy should

- Stay in his car and honk the horn loud and clear.
- Go up to the door and ring the bell.
- Stand outside and whistle for her.

3. When a lady enters a crowded room where all seats are taken, a boy should

- Get up and offer her his seat.
- Hang onto his chair because he may never get another.
- Move his feet so as to make room for her on the floor.

4. When a lad and his lady fair leave a bus, the boy should

- Let the girl get off first.
- Get off first and help her off.
- Be a good sport—whichever gets to the door first, leaves first.

5. If a friend is late for an appointment with you, listen quietly to his excuse and then

- Bawl him out to a finish anyway.
- Pay him back by being late yourself at your next appointment.
- Accept his explanation with grace and a minimum of fuss.

6. When a steady twosome decide to break up, it's fair in the game of love to

- Say the most uncomplimentary things possible about each other.
- Mope around and play the injured party.
- Say only the best or say nothing at all about the other.

7. When you're feeling blue, it's acceptable behavior as well as good psychology to

- Spread your gloom around to others—you'll feel better if you have company.
- Use your mood to get special treatment from family and friends.
- Try to snap out of it by doing something constructive and cheering.

8. Friends should be chosen on the basis of

- How much they add to you as a person—and vice versa.
- How much teasing and good-natured horseplay they will put up with.
- How much money they will lend you.

9. If you have fine and fancy ancestors, do them justice by

- Bragging about them at every opportunity.
- Concentrating less on them and more on making yourself a worthy descendant.
- Associating only with people who have equally illustrious ancestors.

10. When going to a party, you should

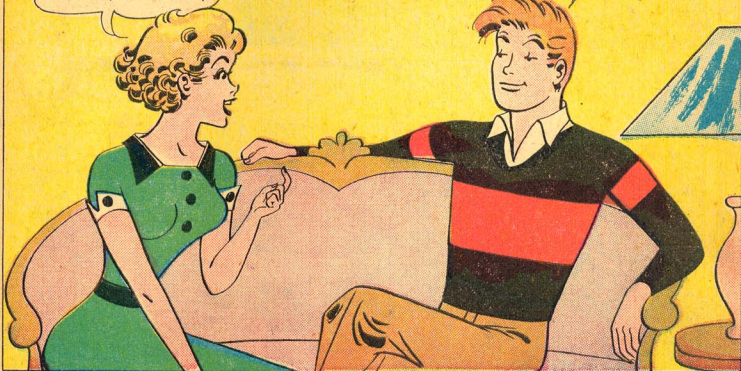

- Dress attractively, as a compliment to your hostess.
- Wear any old thing, to prove you're relaxed and friendly.
- Attract attention by wearing something nobody else would dream of wearing.
