A LETTER FROM JERRY

Hi Fans!

You know what some people call camp? The place where a lot of parents pack up their troubles, and send them off to! I don't understand why some mothers are sad when Junior goes off to summer camp. After all, they're not losing a son. They're gaining two turtles, a frog and a garter snake!

A couple of my neighbors visited their kid during Parents' Weekend. They got real upset when they saw what happened to him.

"How did you get that terrible lump on your head? Were you fighting?" asked his father.

"No, I wasn't fighting," the boy answered.

"Are you sure?" his mother asked.

"Sure I'm sure. It was an accident."

"How did it happen?"

"I was sitting on this kid Freddie, and I forgot to hold his feet!"

During that weekend, one of the kids hurt himself down at the lake, so they called the camp doctor. Mama and Papa were very much worried, naturally, when the doctor told them everything would be all right after he fixed him up with a local anesthetic.

"You go ahead, doc, but I'm rich," said the old man. "Give him the best—something imported!"

All the parents were allowed to eat with their kids. One of the mothers grabbed her 8-year-old daughter and told her to go inside and wash her face first because she had a smudge on it. "Aw gee," said the little girl. "Why can't I just powder it over again like you do?"

When the waitress brought her spinach, the tot pushed it away. "Now, now, dearest, you've got to eat that," said Mama. "It makes strong teeth."

"Oh yeah?" said the snarling little darling. "So when we're back home, why don't you ever feed it to Grandpa?"

One of the kids' grandparents happened to be there. This little-old-kindly Grandma looked down at the dimpled, golden-curved girl. "You precious little honeychild. You're so cute, I could just eat you up!"

"Yeah?" snapped the kid, pulling back. "What'll you use for teeth?"

Then, one of the fathers was shocked to see how his boy behaved at the table. "Billy, I wish you'd stop reaching like that. Haven't you got a tongue?"

"Sure, Dad, but my arm's longer!"

Later, they had the chance to see them working with their counselors. The campers had been doing Nature Study, so this counselor wanted to show off how much she'd taught 'em.

"What pine has the longest and sharpest needles?" she asked.

"A porcupine!" yelled a little guy.

All of a sudden, a cat in a corner of the room began to wail. The counselor ran up and told her little charge, "Naughty, naughty! You mustn't pull the cat's tail."

The little guy looked up at her in surprise. "But I'm only holding it. The cat's pulling!"

There was a big, friendly St. Bernard dog at this camp. While everybody was busy with Nature Study, he roamed around till he found a little feller playing and he began to lick his face. The kid made an awful lot of noise and everybody came running. "He was gonna eat me!" the frightened kid said. The counselor reassured him that the pooch had no intention of eating him.

"I'm sure he was," the kid insisted. "He was already tasting me!"

One of the camps advertised it was run western-style. The parents didn't realize how far that went till they visited it, and during Arts & Crafts, one of the kids had to leave. He didn't raise his hand to get permission from the counselor. All he said was, "I reckon' I got a hankerin' to go a-roamin' out to th' Ol' Corral."

It was nice being with you again. You can write me, National Periodicals, 575 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. And while you're waiting for the next issue of JERRY LEWIS Comics, you can do yourself a favor by buying BOB HOPE Comics!
