JERRY LEWIS

FEB.

NO. 110

Go ahead, spoil him. It's Christmas.

He's too old to write Santa, but you know he'd flip if you give him a home race set this year.

So while you're about it, get him the best. Revell. You'll find exciting features like big, easy-to-read lap counters that record 50 laps, and a high-speed banked track. Cars accelerate through the steep banked curve, then roar out in a blaze of speed. Lanes in the bank widen so cars can pass in the curve!

Revell's strong track is made to flex, not break. All sets include crash fence for curves. Different types of track sections make possible endless variations to the track layout.

Revell's swift new cars have indestructible bodies and chassis. Self-adjusting gears stay in perfect mesh indefinitely. New "cheater slick" rear tires improve pick-up and traction. The heavy-duty power pack has power to spare for that extra surge of speed, plus a built-in circuit breaker for safety. Hand controllers have built-in brakes and precise control.

So go ahead, spoil him a little with a Revell Home Race Set. He's been an angel all year, right?

Cutty Sark

The clipper Cutty Sark could outrun them all. She carried almost three quarters of an acre of sail, and moved at an incredible 17 knots. She was the most famous of the China Clippers. These "greyhounds of the sea" ran the Great Annual Tea Race from China to England, with the first of the season's new tea. The winner could demand top dollar for his cargo. Revell's new model kit of the Cutty Sark looks just as fast as the original. The kit is designed for easier-than-usual assembly. You can build it in a weekend. Less than $6.00, and you'll be proud of the result.

"BY HOOK OR BY CROOK" (RENFREW, THAT IS)!

A LETTER FROM JERRY

Hi Fans!

This isn't the first time we've gone to visit Uncle Yahoo. While we were driving there not too long ago, Renfrew and I passed six gas stations in a row near the desert. That owner of the first station was a right smart cookie. He'd put up a sign that read:

"Last Chance to Buy Gas. The Next Five Stations are Mirages."

We stopped overnight at a motel in Oklahoma. An Indian was signing the registration book on the desk. The clerk watched him write, "XX" then he asked him in surprise what they stood for.

"The first X is for my name, Sitting Bull, Jr."

"And the second?"

"That stands for Ph. D."

The clerk noticed he didn't have any luggage but about a dozen bottles of cough syrup. "Don't you feel well?" he asked.

"I feel good."

"Then what's all that cough syrup for?"

"I likeum on pancakes!"

Later, he tried to sell me some blankets. "They are genuine hand-woven Indian blankets," he said. "They run on DC or AC current."

Outside, I saw a sad-looking oldtimer. "Everything looks all dried up. When did it rain last?" I said.

"About four years ago, I reckon," he answered.

"That should make it rough on all the ranchers in these parts."

"Shore does, sonny," he said. "I don't know what's gonna become of all of us. Every year, we spend thousands of dollars drillin' for water, and you know what comes up? Gosh-darned oil!"

You know that story about the little Texas kid who walked up to Santa Claus and asked, "What can I get for YOU?"

Well, that gives you an idea how rich they are! I remember that time me and Uncle Yahoo strolled into a Rolls-Royce showroom. I asked the salesman how much one of the models cost.

"Sixteen thousand dollars," he replied.

Pretty expensive, I thought, but I could afford it on my movie income. I began to write a check when Uncle Yahoo whipped a roll of thousand-dollar bills out of his pocket and began to peel them off.

"No you don't, Jerry!" he yelled. "This is on me! After all, you bought lunch!"

Those westerners do everything big. He told me about his neighbor who'd just bought his son a cowboy outfit — a 10,000-acre ranch, 2,000 head of cattle and 100 horses!

That reminds me the first time Renfrew tried to ride one of Uncle Yahoo's broncs in the corral. It took less than a minute for him to be sent sprawling in the dirt.

"Gee whiz, but that's a wild one," said Renfrew. "He bucks something fierce."

"Bucked!" shrieked Yahoo. "My boy, he only coughed!"

I suppose I should include some boxing anecdotes because the other story in this issue is about the manly art of self-defense. Some time ago, I was sitting at ringside at our local stadium when the two scrappers entered the ring. The one nearer to me seemed to hang back.

"Come on, you wanna be the champ, don'tcha," his manager said. "All you gotta do is keep sayin' to yourself, 'I'm gonna beat him,' and you'll win."

"That ain't no good," said the pug, "because I know what a big liar I am." He looked back towards the rear. "Say, isn't it a long distance from my dressing room to this ring?" he asked.

"Yeah, but don't worry, Kayo," his manager answered. "You won't have to walk back!"

As soon as the bell sent both fighters into the center of the ring, my man kept dodging, ducking and darting out of range. The fans began to hoot and jeer, and one voice rang louder than all the rest. It was Renfrew's. He was yelling, "Hit him now, you mugg! You got the wind with you!"

After the first round, the panicky pug was inhaling smelling salts when he asked his second, "Did I do any damage?"

"No, but you keep right on swingin'! The draft might give him a cold."

But I should talk! A few years ago, a friend proposed me for membership in a club. When an elimination boxing tournament was announced, he said I should enter to show I was a good person. Me, I never hit anything in my life except some pesky mosquitoes.

I was scared stiff. Why shouldn't I be? A feller could get hurt, but my pal was so convincing, I didn't know what was happening until they were tying the boxing glove laces on my hands.

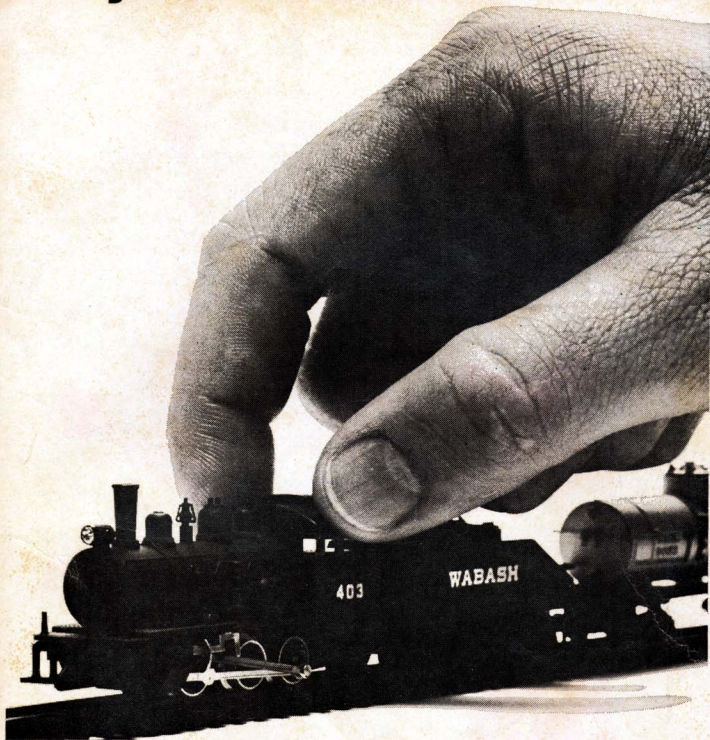

Renfrew said he couldn't bear to go with me. He'd wait at home to receive the body.

When I came back later, he was waiting for me. He took one look at my cuts and bruises, my one black eye and some blood trickling from my nose. "Chee, Unc, how d'ya feel? You look terrible," he said.

"Yeah... sure... I know," I managed to mumble through cracked teeth and swollen gums. "But you don't know the worst of it. They told me I've gotta fight again next week! I won!"

Buy the Wabash Railroad.

Have you ever run a railroad? Here's your chance!

Revell's new N-Gauge train runs in 1/4th the space of the usual train layout...that's the beauty of it. Set it up on a table top or any other convenient place. It's the year-round "apartment" train that's never in the way. It's carefully and expertly built by hand. To last. A real jewel of a gift that does everything an HO layout does.

Every Revell N-Gauge train set comes complete with track and a variable-speed power pack. All the control you need to highball it or crawl it, to drop a full car or reverse into a siding for an empty one.

You can build as large a railroad empire as your table will hold. There's a complete line of Revell accessories: things like steam and diesel locomotives, freight and passenger cars, track, switches, signals, crossing gates, buildings and bridges. You can even get a complete operating roundhouse and turntable. Or a realistic, landscaped layout, complete with trackage, bridge, spurs, siding, hills and a lake.

There are six N-Gauge sets to choose from, including passenger or freight trains and diesel or steam locomotives. Any one will look good on your table top. Revell, Inc., 4283 Glencoe Ave., Venice, Calif. 90291
