NEXT WEEK

THE Schoonovers were a typical American family—father, mother, four daughters. Then something happened to them. One of their daughters, Gloria Jean, leaped from an obscure childhood at the age of eleven to stardom . . . and all that stardom means in Hollywood. What did this mean to this typical and perfectly normal family? How would

Gloria Jean

Gloria react to her new position? What would happen to the other girls? Inferiority complexes and a sense of insufficiency might easily sprout out of the newly created family situation, complexes which would tear the family asunder. But they haven't, and for all this, all of the Schoonovers—Gloria included—can well give thanks to the kindly and wise mother who recognized the dangers inherent with a star in the family and who met them with wisdom and courage and without hesitation. Next week, in "Problems of a Child Star's Mother," we publish the intimate, inside story of Gloria Jean's place in her family's life.

Defying Space

"I am the original radio nut." Thus, in next week's issue, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., scion of a great family, globe-trotter, newspaperman and good-will ambassador, opens an amazing collection of stories about his experiences with radio. Traveling over the world, he meets such famous personalities as Herr Himmler, all-powerful chief of the dread

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr.

Nazi Gestapo; Lord Northcliffe, British press magnate, and former President Hoover, and is able to score journalistic scoops because he carries with him always a portable radio. Fact is, we'll guarantee that after reading Cornelius Vanderbilt's thrilling experiences, you'll be excited enough about portables to secure one for your own use this summer. That's where our comprehensive section on portable radios, offering specifications of dozens of models and brands, appearing in next week's Movie and Radio Guide, will come in handy. Use our special portable section to get the style, size and price of portable which suits your individual need. Use it to select a reliable, scientifically designed portable receiver which will enable you, like Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., to "defy space."

THIS WEEK

EVENT of the radio week without doubt will be the Louis-Godoy fight June 20. Up to the time our U. S. world's heavyweight champ and South America's colorful contender go into the ring on Thursday night, millions of fans will be debating a number of questions. Can Joe Louis come out on top after another session with Godoy's fantastic anthropoid crouch? Has Louis a surprise defense in store for Godoy? How many rounds will Godoy—or Louis—last? Expert opinion on these questions was what we sought when we consulted Marvin McCarthy, and on Page 14 you'll find that, and

The Girl on the Cover

It was the "luck of the Irish" that brought Maureen O'Sullivan to the screen and to Hollywood. Born at Boyle, in the Emerald Isle, Maureen as a student at finishing-school had dreamed of a stage career, but hardly hoped to follow it in real life. She reckoned without director John Borzage and her Irish luck. The year she finished school, Borzage was in Ireland seeking a pretty Irish lass to play opposite John McCormack in his first talking picture. When he met Maureen at a party, he knew that his search was over. A month later, with permission from her father, a major in the Connaught Rangers, Maureen and her mother left for Hollywood, arriving there in September, 1929. She began a long series of screen appearances in such films as "Strange Interlude," "Connecticut Yankee" and the "Tarzan" pictures. Her newest and soon-to-be-released film is M-G-M's "Pride and Prejudice." M-G-M is her contract studio. She was married in 1936 to writer-director John Farrow, and has a son a year old, is considered one of Hollywood's most beautiful women. Natural-color photograph is by Jack Albin.

Hollywood Declares War!

AMID a world aflame, with attacks, counter-attacks and territorial losses and gains uppermost in the public's mind, the film capital lashes forth with the first big motion pictures which concentrate on the human side of Europe's conflict. Two such pictures will be released almost simultaneously this month, M-G-M's "The Mortal Storm" and 20th Century-Fox's "Four Sons." The first deals with the rise of the Nazi movement in Germany and the suffering brought to those whose only crime against civilization is the accident of their birth; the second is set in gallant little Czechoslovakia and tells the story of a mother and her four sons engulfed in the fire of the old world's political madness and brutal disregard of human rights. Neither of these pictures falls in the category of "escape entertainment" but both are dramatically told in such a way that movie-goers will laugh and love and cry and hope with the people whose lives are portrayed. Because these are pointed, dynamic dramas, really Hollywood's declaration of war to help change the "it can't happen here" attitude of many Americans to a "it must not happen here" belief, MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE hereby selects M-G-M's "The Mortal Storm" and 20th Century-Fox's "Four Sons" as co-pictures of the week—and recommends them as motion pictures which everyone should see!

The Duke AND The Duchess

TYRONE POWER, the "Dark Duke" of Hollywood, is Irish and temperamental—and one of the screen's finest actors, born to the theater

This is the second of three articles, each complete in itself, about Tyrone Power and Annabella, revealing how they have found happiness in marriage.—Editor.

ANNABELLA wanted a hot foot. Fresh from France, the elf of Champs Elysees had heard that a person was not an American until he had tried a hot foot and a hot dog. The toast of 50,000,000 Frenchmen, who will always be right when it comes to choosing beautiful women, had just hied herself over on the Normandie, the pride of the French merchant fleet.

It was fitting that she should come to America on the pride of France, for she, too, was the pride of her country. She glanced around at the reporters, who were sizing her up as a judge studies a beautiful filly. Annabella was not embarrassed. She smiled at the boys and asked for a hot dog and a hot foot. One reporter spoke out of the side of his mouth to a colleague, "She's got class. As long as there are Frenchwomen like that, France will always be a high-class place. She'll get what she wants."

Annabella never got the hot foot. Even reporters can be gentlemen and will not go around burning the tootsies of beautiful foreigners. No, she never got the hot foot, but she got something just as exciting—she got Tyrone Power.

Annabella will tell you her name is Anne Charpentier. That's close enough, but really her name is Suzanne Charpentier and she was born in Paris on Bastille Day in 1913. Her father is Pierre Charpentier, who was a French travel editor. She is as French as crepe suzettes and her whole family was so Gallic that they thought there were only two cities in the world—Paris and all the others. She was a movie star in Europe in those strange forgotten days when blitzkrieg sounded like a sneeze instead of a scourge.

She spoke virtually no English. She married Jean Murat, a French star, and bore him a French child; she loved France more than life. Now, I ask you, what chance has any American in a combination like that—what chance has any man to win such a prize? Only an Irishman could do it, and one by the name of Tyrone Power did.

There are those who say if you go back far enough you will find that the Irish and the French are cousins under the skin. Be that as it may, only the movies could have brought together two such completely different persons as Ty Power, the dark duke, and Annabella, the blond duchess.

IF THE fates had been kinder, they might have met in Hollywood years ago when both were failures. Oh, yes, they both flopped. The kicking around that Power got in Hollywood at first is well known, but the studio moguls have managed pretty well to hush-hush the amusing fact that Annabella was not a stranger to America when she came to our fair land on the Normandie and begged for a hot foot. She came over first in 1934 to do some foreign bits, but Hollywood allowed her to cool her charming heels. So she went back to France, where they loved her, and got married. And America forgot all about Annabella-Suzanne Charpentier-Mrs. Jean Murat until a British production gave her to us in Technicolor, and we, the people, went just a little bit nuts over her. She ran back to us on the Normandie.

Sitting in the cool, friendly living-room of the Power home the other day, I did not reveal to Mrs. Power that I was one of the pack of reporters who met her on the Normandie and yapped and barked at her. But she made a profound impression on us, and not one out of a hundred foreign visitors, or one out of a thousand movie stars, makes an impression upon ship-news reporters. The boys chided Annabella a bit that day and she gave out better than she took. At her hotel, a photographer asked her to sit on a radiator and pose. She glanced at the radiator and said pertly, "What do you want to do—make me look like a waffle?"

She was very lonely for a while, and three times a week she telephoned Jean Murat. Charles Boyer, a countryman, had been imported with her, but Annabella had few other friends in

ANNABELLA, the "Duchess," is crazy about flowers, has a large garden. She manages the Power household, watches over Ty's diet

Hollywood. She got a house, a staff of English servants and an English secretary, and determined to master our language. She would not allow French to be spoken in her home. She was doing so-so in the movies and they cast her in "Suez."

Ty Power was in the same picture.

AND now let's go back to 1914. It was in that year that Tyrone Power III was born with a heritage of the theater, a genealogy that reads like dramatis personae, and two strikes on him—puny health and the burden of being the son of a very famous father.

The Power clan came from County Tyrone in Ireland, and Sir William Power was quite a somebody. Tyrone I was the rave of the English theater 110 years ago. He came to America in 1833 and was lost at sea on his way back to Europe. His son, Harold, studied music and wound up in the British diplomatic corps, which is a strange place for an Irishman to be. Harold's son was Tyrone II, and he came to America to grow oranges and lemons and lived to be called "the greatest hope of the American stage." He and Patie Rayome, an actress, were the parents of Tyrone III. Ty was educated in Cincinnati parochial schools and was graduated in 1933 from high school. He was no great shucks as a student.

AT HOME he heard nothing but theater. When he was graduated from high school he determined to begin tramping. He already had made his debut. He was seven then and appeared with his mother at San Gabriel, in the famous Mission Play.

Tyrone wouldn't go to college, but teamed up with his father in "The Merchant of Venice," his first Shakespeare. The pair worked with Fritz Leiber, and during a Chicago performance the career of Ty Power almost ended. He was playing the role of an old man when one of the actors accidentally dropped a knife which just barely missed Tyrone's head. The audience didn't catch on, but Tyrone II whispered out of the side of his mouth, "Great God, son, are you hurt?"

The boy whispered back, "No."

It was one of the best examples of self-control in the history of the theater, and the other actors showered the boy with praise. Only a real actor can miss death so narrowly without his audience knowing it.

The boy's father took him to Hollywood, where Power, Sr., was cast in "The Miracle Man." He wanted young Ty to work with him, but the elder Power died suddenly.

The family was broke. Once, the Powers had had a beautiful home in Canada, and they had had fame and fun, but no money. Ty tried to get into the movies, but he got only rebuffs.

His mother joined him and they began plugging together seeking a job for the duke. A guest came to dinner one night, and after a none too sumptuous meal Mr. Power kicked off his shoes and rubbed his aching dogs. The guest said, "Is that a nice way for a potential star to act?"

The guest was one of the movie moguls. Ty looked at him for several seconds and said, "My feet hurt. The only time they ever hurt more was when I used to walk to your office trying to get a job. I walked because I didn't have the carfare."

The guest was flabbergasted. "But you always looked so nonchalant."

"That was acting," said Mr. Power. "The next time some young man comes to your office, remember that he might have walked there."

With only rebuffs from the movies in his box score, Tyrone Power decided to leave Hollywood. He wasn't embittered but his Irish was up.

It's a shame that he and Annabella didn't meet then. They could have consoled each other.

The black duke smiled. It was more of a grin of triumph, as he recounted his experiences.

HE WAS dispossessed and swore some day he would buy the apartment from which he had been evicted and fire the superintendent who had kicked him out. Ty Power was acting as a juvenile acts when he made that resolution. Ambition is a terrible taskmaster and ambition was driving young Power. As a boy he had worked in a drug store and had vowed that some day he would come back to the drug store and buy all the ice cream he wanted. He had worked as a theater usher and had resolved some day to come back and buy the best seat in the house. And now he was a failure in Hollywood. Or so he thought. That's youth for you. That's the Irish for you, too. Mr. Power was not quite old enough to shave often, but he thought he was a failure. Now he smiles about it.

"I couldn't get a job in pictures for three years," he said. "Oh, I got bit parts, but I couldn't click. In 'Flirtation Walk' I was a West Point cadet for one day at $5.50 a day. So I decided to leave Hollywood. That was 1934."

Annabella was leaving Hollywood at the same time, but their paths didn't cross.

"I traveled by day coach from Los Angeles to Chicago," Mr. Power said, "and landed a job at the Chicago Fair. I worked in a concession that showed how movies are made. For two bits a patron could come in and watch the production of a movie. I guess I was one of the stars, but nobody knew me."

In Chicago he also did radio work on the Sears-Roebuck religious hour, and he was on the same program with Don Ameche, with whom he now works so often. But it still was tough sledding.

"Now I travel in style," Mr. Power said. "I eat what I want when I want it. The newspapers and magazines are nice enough to make a fuss over me, but I postponed many meals when I was trying to catch on. Chicago has always been my favorite city because I always had a job there and always ate regularly."

"SUEZ" was the picture which brought Annabella and Tyrone together, with scenes like this, necessary for the film, speeding their romance along. Tyrone's mother, who saw Annabella act in one of her pictures, told Ty she was a great actress; he agreed—and discovered she was also a charming person. They haven't appeared together since "Suez"

Power might have stayed in Chicago, but he wanted to act, so he went to New York. The name of Power carried no magic in Hollywood, but in New York the name meant something, and when Ty reached the metropolis, Helen Menken told Guthrie McClintic to be sure to talk to Ty when the boy called on him, as he was sure to do. There's something funny about that. Here was a boy whom Hollywood had kicked around but who meant something to the great Menken and to the smart McClintic. Ty called on McClintic and asked for passes to see a Katharine Cornell show, and McClintic not only gave him passes but gave him some parts to study, and the next day he was assigned to understudy in "Flowers of the Forest."

He understudied Burgess Meredith, John Howard and John Emery and got his first real role with Miss Cornell in "Saint Joan." The duke was in. Soon Hollywood talent-scouts were wiring frantic messages back to their bosses that they had found a star. They had come 3,000 miles to discover a man who often had cooled his heels in their offices. In 1936 Fox signed him for sixty bucks a week and cast him first with Alice Faye and Shirley Temple in "Sing, Baby, Sing." A director hounded him off the lot and told him to go back to Broadway and to Shakespeare—that he never would be a movie actor. Miss Faye went to bat for him and he got a teeny part in "Girls' Dormitory." His name did not appear, but scads of letters came in asking who he was. You can't fool America. A heap of folks in Hollywood say they discovered Tyrone Power. Tommyrot! Tyrone Power was born an actor and America discovered him.

AMONG the first things that Power did when he began making money was to buy that apartment from which he had been evicted. Then he went to Cincinnati and bought the ice cream he had promised himself.

Power has a race-horse temperament, but the studio began working him as though he were a mule. In 1937 he starred in five pictures, and in 1938 he was starred in $10,000,000 worth. They have worked him in everything in the world, and he has never flopped. He has had some terrible stories and has saved them. It should be against the law to work a man like Ty Power in a poor story. He was so busy that even the press-agents didn't have time to fake a romance for him.

But in 1938 he was cast in "Suez."

And that's where his life really began, for Mr. Power didn't build that canal for the glory of France and to be the lifeline of England, but he built it for the love of a woman. The movies said so, and for once the movies were right. Annabella was in the same picture, you remember, and by the time the black duke had hopped from "Suez" to Missouri to become Jesse James, he had stolen her heart.

He surprised about 100,000,000 Americans and proved that 50,000,000 Frenchmen could be wrong.

The courtship of Tyrone and Annabella, their honeymoon, what they expect—and get—from marriage, will be told by James Street in the final part of "The Duke and the Duchess," to be published in Movie and Radio Guide next week. An unusually revealing article about two interesting people. Don't miss it!

The Howards of Virginia

... Sublime to Ridiculous

THE versatility of Cary Grant, who moves from light comedy to serious drama with the greatest of ease, is never better utilized than in Columbia's "The Howards of Virginia," made from Elizabeth Page's historical romance, "The Tree of Liberty." A tender love-story set in colonial days, it has Cary moving from such romantic moments as that above, with Martha Scott, who played in "Our Town," to comedy scenes, most hilarious of which is the one (right) in which he takes a bath in a prerevolutionary bathtub. Funny as the scene will be on the screen, the bath-taking was no laughing matter to Cary or the studio. In addition to several thousands of dollars actually spent on the scene, Grant contracted a bad case of laryngitis, and the studio was stuck with extra costs because of a delay the laryngitis caused! It's Cary's first—and probably his last—screen bath!

SAID THE LITTLE HYENA

INTER-DEPARTMENT MEMO

From: Loren Ryder, sound department.
To: E. H. Griffith, producer-director.

We have the hyena noises you wanted for "Safari." Sorry to have been so long on this, but the attached memoranda will explain our difficulties. They are in order, as written, starting with your initial request.

INTER-DEPARTMENT MEMO

From: E. H. Griffith.
To: Loren Ryder, sound department.

You will note, in sequence C-16 of "Safari," we have Madeleine Carroll and Douglas Fairbanks camping overnight in an African jungle. They hear hyenas offscreen. We will need, from the sound library, material for this effect.

INTER-OFFICE MEMO

From: Loren Ryder.
To: Tommy Middleton, sound library.

Please note attached communication from Griffith, and supply him with the material he needs.

INTER-OFFICE MEMO

From: Loren Ryder.
To: Howard Joslin, sound effects.

You will note from the attached correspondence we have no hyena sounds in our film library. Please secure these noises, shooting enough footage to supply Griffith, and additional footage that we can store in Paramount's film library for future use.

INTER-OFFICE MEMO

From: Howard Joslin.
To: Loren Ryder.

Some day I am going to go up to the gunroom here at the studio, get me an elephant gun and pop over a covey of authors. All those guys got to do is sit up in their big office and dictate screwy ideas to their stenographers, and we got to go out and do the work.

I know we've been on this hyena thing for two weeks, Boss, and maybe what we got will satisfy you and Griffith and the great American public, which probably doesn't know what a hyena sounds like anyway. I hope so. If you don't think what we got represents a full two weeks of work, let me explain.

Soon as I got your batch of literary effort, I went right to work. I called up a few zoos and animal men and so on, and located some hyenas. So we got a sound crew and some generators and the usual stuff and went to work.

Boss, did you ever work with a hyena? Well let me tell you—
We set up a microphone out there at the zoo over the hyena cage and awaited developments. Nothing happened. So I asked a trainer what to do about it. He said hyenas only made noises at night. Well, that was all right. You know me, Boss. I don't care how long I stay on a job, if there's a job to do. All for dear old Paramount. And then there's that overtime, too, thanks to our union.

So we all sat around and waited for night to fall. Finally the moon comes up, and nothing happens. We poke the hyenas a couple of times, and all they do is growl. We figure and figure, and nothing comes out, so we adjourn for a cup of coffee. So right away we hear a lot of funny noises. It's those hyenas.

We dash back and swing into action. The hyenas are going good, laughing like anything. We get up to speed and ing recording stage "A."

We set up them hyenas on this stage and got all ready for them to do their stuff. But they didn't. They didn't for two weeks. We stood on our hands. We threw pies at each other. We showed 'em a W. C. Fields picture and tuned in on a Jack Benny broadcast. Boss, they didn't even snicker.

Finally, last night I decide we'll get this thing or die for dear old Paramount. Armed only with a handful of goose feathers, I crawl into the hyenas' cage. Well, I tickle 'em in the ribs, and a few other places, and things happened fast. I don't know whether you'll think those noises we got are laughs or not, but they really are noises. Those hyenas were pretty much annoyed at me. I had to slap a couple of them in the teeth a time or two to keep from being annihilated, but I finally crawled out of the cage, not too damaged.

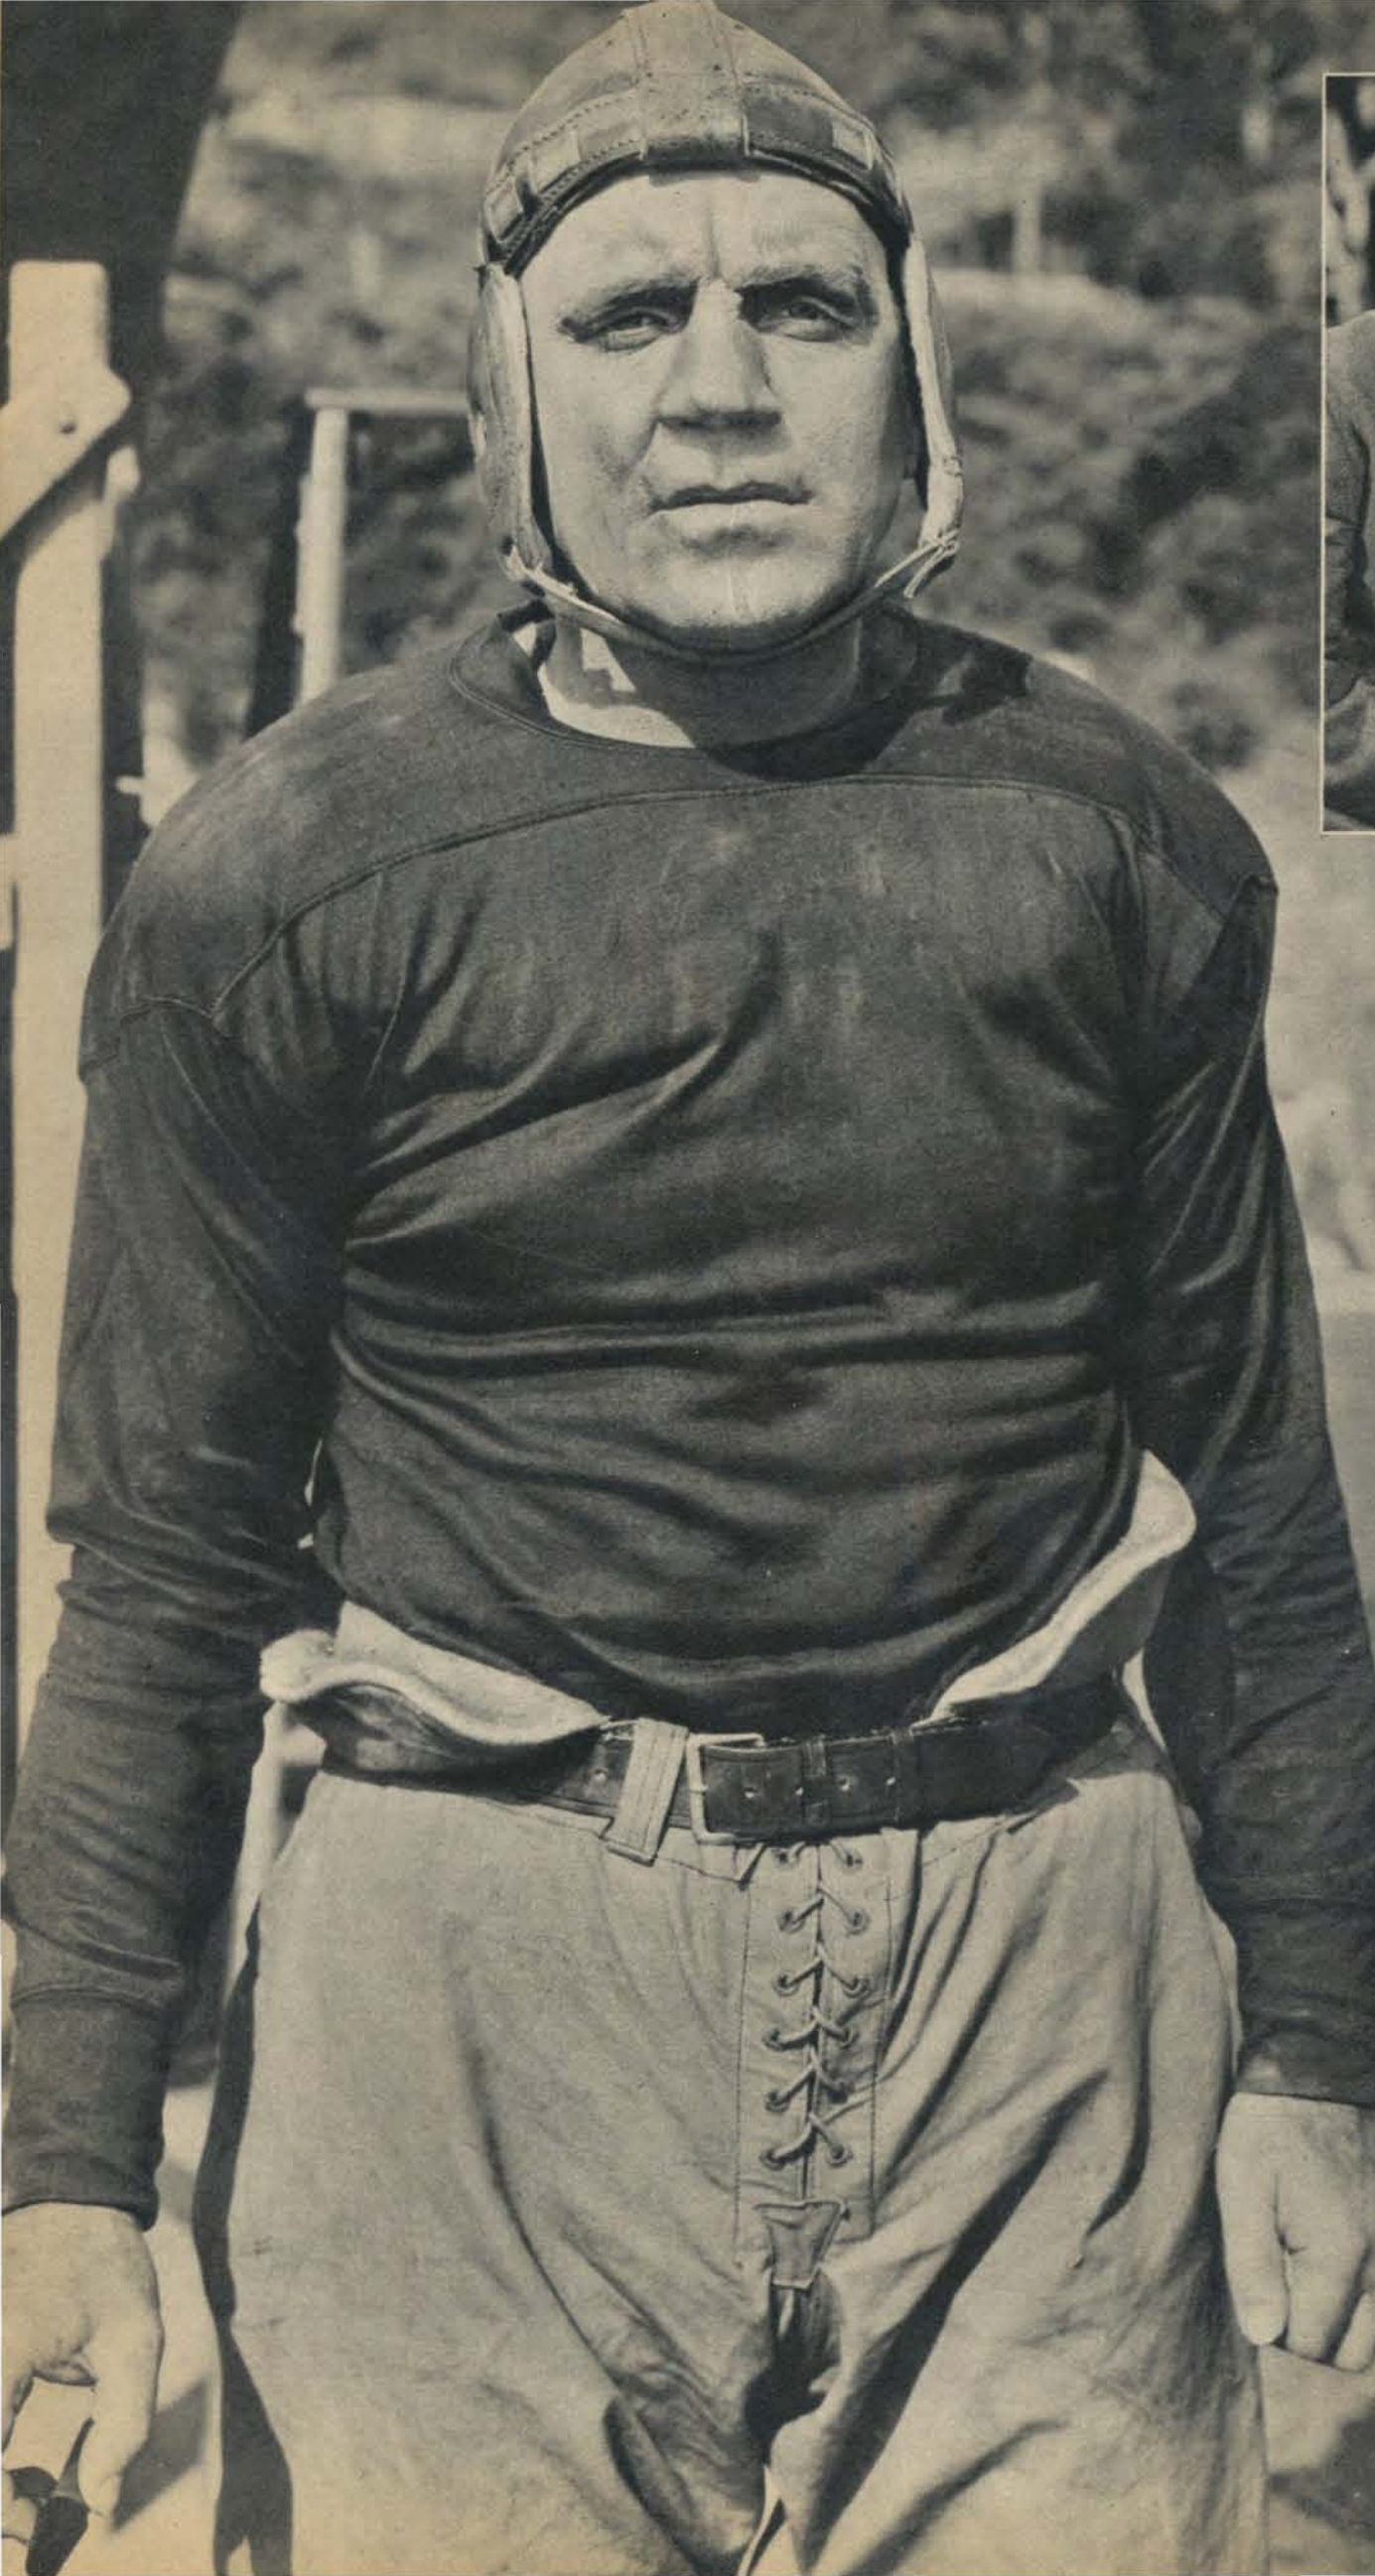

I am in a Turkish bath right now. I have been here three days and I still smell like a hyena, but I have hopes. I am attaching a claim for a new suit, complete with trimmings, which I think I have coming to me. Anyway, I can't get out of this here Turkish bath till I get it, so if you want me to come back to work, you'd better put it through in a hurry.

are ready to record when the whole zoo breaks into an uproar. Some foxes start yapping, some coyotes start howling, some elephants start trumpeting, some tigers start yowling, and finally the lions begin roaring. Of course we can't pick up a hyena's laugh out of that uproar, and anyway, when the lions start in, everybody else shuts up. And there is no more out of the hyenas that night.

Well, the next day I go into a huddle with some animal men, and finally I rent four hyenas and bring 'em to the studio. I get two adults and a couple of pups, or whatever baby hyenas are. They smell awful, too, and you'll find a bill attached for fumigat-

like a glove*

AN ADDED thrill for the millions of fans who this fall will be jamming stadiums throughout the country in their search for football action will be Warner Bros.' forthcoming production "The Life of Knute Rockne." No effort has been spared in the making of this screen biography of America's greatest football coach. Much of the film is being made in South Bend, where Notre Dame University is situated and where Rockne originated his gridiron "blitzkrieg" technique. Mrs. Rockne, acting as technical adviser of the film, approved of Gale Page as "Mrs. Knute Rockne." Pat O'Brien's selection for the part of Knute Rockne also will be approved of. As a varsity star at Marquette University, Pat once ran sixty-seven yards through a Rockne-coached Notre Dame team to score the winning touchdown!

This Week IN HOLLYWOOD

Headlines: Joan Crawford adopts a baby; Barrymore to play Barrymore!

JOAN CRAWFORD has become a foster-mother! In New York last week, Joan announced that the adoption papers for the child—the same blond, blue-eyed baby girl which has been at the Crawford home in Hollywood for some time—had finally gone through. Hold-up: Joan had planned to adopt the baby months ago, but papers could not become final until her divorce, still in the interlocutory decree stage, had become final, too.

JOHN BARRYMORE and Elaine Barrie flew into Hollywood, settled in the Barrymore Bel Air castle and prepared to explain to everyone that Miss Barrie will not play the wife in 20th Century-Fox's "The Great Profile," which her husband will start immediately, but will be included in all Barrymore's theatrical plans. Miss Barrie's raven locks are now red, a concession made to stage lighting in the legit play "My Dear Children," which she resumes in the fall. The Barrymores have applied for U. S. passports to go to London and entertain the war-weary. Said John when queried about his wife's acting ability, "Elaine is a great actress!"

ENGAGEMENT OF HAL ROACH, JR., AND DOLLY HUNT was to have been announced by Dolly's parents at a party. It was to have been a surprise party to their friends. But the young couple made it a surprise all around: they eloped to Yuma a day before the party and were wed.

THE "JODY" SEARCH for M-G-M's

production of "The Yearling" is drawing to a close after over 30,000 interviews and 600 tests. To be brought to Hollywood for further elimination tests are five southern boys: John Kelton of Tampa, Fla., Joe Armstrong of Knoxville, Tenn., Gene Eckman of Atlanta, Ga., Harold Stucker of Louisville, Ky., and Joseph La Cue of New Orleans, La.

EDGAR BERGEN is going to produce his own films. He has had a great deal of story trouble in former pictures and feels that he wants to have the entire say about future screen work with Charlie McCarthy. He will do one feature a year with Charlie. If he finds talent that he wants to present to the public, he will make a second film. Said Bergen: "I like the technical end of picture-making. Although I can't do a great deal in films while I am on radio, I am more fascinated with the producing than with the acting side of the industry."

MARTHA SCOTT, despite her publicized romance with Owen Davis, Jr., is pleased that she may now acknowledge who has been sending her flowers daily. Perc Westmore, whom Gloria Dickson recently divorced, is the real heartbeats behind the scenes. Curious: In Hollywood the make-up boys seem to have more glamour than the glamour boys.

BILL GARGAN gets the coveted role of the other man opposite Carole Lombard in her new RKO picture, which is called, for want of a title, the Lombard-Laughton feature. (Carole, at home with a bad case of poison oak, at this writing had already delayed the picture a week.) This is really a break for Bill, who has been in more pictures than he can remember. Twelve men originally were announced as possibilities for the part.

LORETTA YOUNG will give the Hays office severe headaches with a gown that she wears in "He Stayed for Breakfast." Of black lace, sheer to the hips, where black chiffon begins, the transparent bodice is breathtaking, so unnoticeable is the flesh-colored underlining. The back, open and scalloped, looks as though it were plastered on and defies explanation as to how it stays up, until the slender thread holding the dress together is shown. And still, Miss Young is so well covered that the Hays morals will be unable to be offended. In Hollywood: Illusion brings delusion.

BILL HOLDEN was mightily embarrassed when a University of Arizona coed rode into the lobby of Tucson's most swank hotel and dramatically pleaded, "Will you be my leap-year groom?" The collegienne had drawn the long straw when seven of the girls at a gabfest had decided Bill was their dream man. Explanation for Bill's firm refusal: He is also Brenda Marshall's dream man . . . or, at least, constant escort.

JUDY GARLAND celebrated her eighteenth birthday and her graduation from high school simultaneously on June 10 with the decision that she will forego her planned college entrance next fall. Given her schooling on the lot at M-G-M by private tutors for the past five years, Judy reasoned: "I wanted to go to college and be a real coed, but I guess it wouldn't work. I couldn't join a sorority and enter the school activities because of picture work taking up so much time, and so it wouldn't be much fun."

BETTE DAVIS will have Herbert Marshall for a husband in her new picture, "The Letter." George Brent was announced for the part a month ago by Warners. But George didn't want to be the husband. He wanted to be the lawyer, a role which goes to James Stevenson. It looked for a few days as though George might be suspended for balking over the assignment, but at the present writing all is peaceful and he will probably appear in "The House on the Hill" with Miriam Hopkins. Comment: It is interesting that Brent preferred a character role to that of just another handsome leading man.

ARTHUR TREACHER, the tall Englishman who is famous for his butler roles on the screen, settled rumors about his being secretly married to former theater-ticket-agency owner, Virginia Taylor, by marrying her in Las Vegas, Nevada. The wedding caught local Hollywood friends unawares, for it was arranged quietly and competently by none other than author Lloyd Douglas. Mr. Douglas wrote to his daughter, Mrs. J. W. Wilson, in Las Vegas. Mrs. Wilson procured the marriage license and arranged for the wedding at her house. The Treachers, who met in 1934 when Mrs. Treacher was a stand-in for Alison Skipworth in "The Captain Hates the Sea," leave in July for Dennis, Massachusetts. Treacher will be the star of "The Hot-tentot," which tours the summer-stock route for ten weeks. Oddity: When Treacher came to pay for the marriage license, he discovered he had only a one-dollar bill and some other large bills that no one could change. So he borrowed a buck from his bride!

GARY COOPER will portray a baseball player in Frank Capra's "The Life of John Doe," according to Warners, but Gary claims he hasn't talked over much of the story with Capra. Now that he has finished "North West Mounted Police" for Cecil B. De Mille, he gets a few days' vacation and is going fishing. Amusing: Big-time star Cooper, who will soon portray the life of an ordinary citizen, actually leads a normal, every-day life—even to goin' fishin' on his days off.

LUISE RAINER, in a white-crepe gown bordered with mink, the famous Rainer bangs, an orchid clutched in her little fist, went to Paul Muni's opening night of "Key Largo" at the Biltmore Theater with wonder-boy-director

JEAN PARKER and her constant escort, Douglas Dawson, attended the Greta Keller opening at Cafe LaMaze. Also present: Sonja Henie and Dan Topping, Bill Lundigan and Margaret Lindsay, and others. Absent: Marlene Dietrich, who was one of Miss Keller's sponsors. (For other sponsors, see picture, page 9.)

Garson Kanin. They sat in the very front row to catch every Muni word, and afterward went to Ciro's to discuss it all. Miss Rainer still has no picture plans, but now that her divorce from Clifford Odets is all taken care of, she probably will devote all her time to looking for a job. Oddity: Miss Rainer has two Oscars for high acting achievement which have so far gathered only . . . dust!

CARY GRANT, RANDOLPH SCOTT and Reggie Gardiner snagged the social laurels of the other week-end by being invited to the Countess Dorothy Di Frasso's Saturday night party for Barbara Hutton. These three young men are perfectly at home in either social or Hollywood circles. The Jack Warners and Elsa Maxwell were other cosmopolites present at the Countess' home.

STYLE OF THE WEEK:

Sonja Henie at the opening of "Lillian Russell" at the Chinese Theater. The striking tropical print which comprised the full skirt of her evening gown was in shades of rust, Van Gogh yellow and cerulean blue. The bodice, with its amusing basque effect, was chalk-white crepe. Accessories: White crepe slippers, a white crepe handbag with an emerald-and-diamond clasp, matching bracelets, white-fox coat erman Pirates' Den to the gunwales, with Rudy Vallee flying the skull and crossbones for the co-owners of the club: Bob Hope, in the East; Tony Martin, in the East; Bing Crosby, on leave-of-absence; the very-much-present-in-pirate-boots Jimmie Fidler and Ken Murray. Vallee, who arrived in costume, changed to a tux before his master-of-ceremonies stint . . . Gary Cooper laughed and laughed at Peter Lind Hayes' imitation of Gary Cooper . . . Fred MacMurray threw bottles at the pirates with Ray Milland, and fought a duel (for the newsreels) with Rudy Vallee over Mrs. Fred MacMurray . . . Dorothy Lamour, with her agent, did a rumba with Ken Murray, who was with Pat Dane . . . Nancy Kelly without Irving Cummings, Jr., wasn't having much fun denying rumors their engagement is off . . . Jack Benny with the Fred MacMurrays and the Gary Coopers (Benny's wife, Mary Livingstone, was in the hospital getting a new nose) . . . Pay-off: The $7.50-a-plate dinner was for charity; all proceeds went to Ann Lehr's Hollywood Guild.

BEBE DANIELS and Ben Lyon, in London doing a play, became alarmed when war threatened and sent their four-year-old adopted son, Dickie Lyon, to Bebe's mother in Hollywood. Mrs. Daniels, remembering Bebe once said that she didn't want Dickie in pictures but if he should ever be in one it would have to be with Frank Lloyd, agreed when the producer asked to be allowed to use the youngster in "The Howards of Virginia." Dickie is playing the son of Cary Grant, whom he follows every place and thinks a hero, and is getting coaching from the star, no less. Added to the thrill of working with his idol is the fun of making pictures, just like his mother and father. Dickie's one worry: That his mother will not like the surprise of seeing him in pictures.

RITA HAYWORTH, thrilled over her first big dramatic role with Brian Aherne in "Gribovitch," in which she plays a girl on trial for her life, was enthusiastic about her opportunity to show her dramatic prowess. "The

LUM AND ABNER, who have had the same organist play their radio theme song for the past four years, have rewarded the young lady with a role in their first RKO picture, "Dreaming Out Loud." Her name is Sybil Chism (in private life she is the wife of Hollywood's NBC publicity director, Hal Bock). Sybil provides the organ background for film sequences and plays a small part as a native of Pine Ridge. Oddity: Sybil, who is an accomplished organist, has never played any song but "Eleanor"—the Lum and Abner theme song—over the air.

KAY FRANCIS plays Jo in RKO's "Little Men." (It is the same Jo that Katharine Hepburn portrayed in "Little Women," only considerably grown up.) Social note: Miss Francis' friends are now calling her "Little Jo!"

meat to it. And I'm not on display for clothes. Just think, my whole wardrobe costs less than $50 for everything throughout the picture!" Significant were Rita's raves over a scene done by Fern Emmett, whose work until this film has been limited to extra parts. So terrifically did Miss Emmett do a hysterical witness that she was given the accolade reserved for the genuinely great performances—spontaneous applause by the cast and crew. Prediction: That there will be as much of a furor about Fern Emmett's characterization as Granville Bates aroused as the Judge in "His Favorite Wife."

BEST STUDIO PARTY in weeks, from the standpoint of fun for the Hollywood press, was the shindig Republic threw after the preview of "Women in War," which heralded the return to the entertainment field of Elsie Janis. A set turned into a huge ballroom, a beautifully catered table, and no "how did you like the picture?" backslaps made this an affair dedicated to a good time. Elsie Janis was the belle of the ball, surrounded by admirers, with Wendy Barrie, who played a difficult role amazingly well, bubbling over with all the compliments handed her. Conspicuous, however, was the absence of the cowboys, Indians and other Republic stand-by actors who usually are present at parties given by this studio. Query: Is the entrance into the ranks of major studios causing Republic to grow out of its boots?

HOLLYWOOD SOUND-TRACK: Lloyd Nolan discussing his foreign-correspondent role in 20th Century-Fox's "I Married a Nazi": "This is the only good-boy part I've had in a long time. But I can't win. I have two lines of German dialog and the audience will hiss me anyway" . . . Claire Trevor, returning to the screen in "The Silver Queen": "I turned down three roles at Warners after I recovered from my illness because I felt too lazy to work. That almost made me a forgotten woman" . . . Lee Tracy, between the acts of "Key Largo," when caught in a yawn: "Don't blame it all on the play. I really was sleepy when I came" . . . Jackie Cooper, who vacations soon on a ranch near Palm cowboys. They make their living off those $150 prizes they win" . . . Maria Ouspenskaya, when queried about her acceptance of a role in "I Married a Nazi": "This is no time to talk politics" . . . Mike Levee, Joan Crawford's agent: "Joan is playing with the idea of appearing in a legitimate show on Broadway, but I really don't think that when she is actually faced with signing on the dotted line she will take the risk" . . . Norman McLeod, director of RKO's "Little Men": "I am testing Pamela Caveness, Bette Davis' protegee, for a part in the film. She has a wonderful voice" . . . Lucille Ball, asked how she broke her fingernail: "I didn't break it. I chewed it off at the preview of my last picture."

MAUREEN O'HARA is one of Hollywood's victims of nerve sabotage. Her war problem is that her mother is in this country and wanting to return to Ireland; her father, with six of Maureen's brothers and sisters, is reluctant to leave Ireland and his business even if he were able to; a husband, with whom she lived only a few days before sailing for America, is in England. Maureen, meantime, is trying to finish her role in RKO's "Dance Girl Dance," in which she plays the part of a ballet-dancer. To be hoped: That Miss O'Hara finds some solution to her problems before she worries herself into exhaustion.

BOB BURNS, of the Bazooka Burns, took time out from making his particular brand of love to Una Merkel in a scene from "Comin' Round the Mountain" to discuss everything from casting-worries to the history of his "musical" instrument. Frankly admitting he had been miscast in some of his films, he was hopeful of showing 'em all in his current starrer. In any event, radio is Bob's first love. He said: "Radio is my hub. I can do picture work and go as far away as I want to, but I will always get pulled back to my chief concern, radio. As long as I am on the air, and there are listeners who tune in on me, I can make pictures if I wish." Proof: Bob, costarring with another victim of miscasting, Martha Raye, is set to make a film for Universal which has been tailored to their particular talents.

This Week on The Screen

Pictures you'll soon be seeing—here's what they're all about!

"Lillian Russell" (A Review)

Cast: Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Henry Fonda, Edward Arnold, Warren William, Leo Carrillo, Helen Westley, et al. A 20th Century-Fox picture, with novelties by Weber and Fields and Eddie Foy, Jr.; produced by Darryl Zanuck; directed by Irving Cummings, who also directed "Girls' Dormitory"; screen play by William Anthony McGuire.

ONE never thinks of the Gay Nineties without thinking, too, of Lillian Russell, most colorful character of the American stage in graphical film which Hollywood has learned to do so well, Lillian Russell comes alive in a fine portrayal by Alice Faye—perhaps the best piece of Faye acting to date.

To bring the amazing life and loves of Lillian Russell to the screen, 20th Century-Fox spent two years in research, ten months in production, and a generous fortune in recreating historic landmarks of the New York of yesterday. Among these were Tony Pastor's Theater, the Weber and Fields Music Hall, Rector's famous restaurant. Incidentally, Weber and Fields, playing themselves in the film, earned liberal applause from the preview audience.

The whole picture is studded with characters drawn from life, from the obscure musician she first married, Edward Solomon, played by Don Ameche, to shrewd, gigantic and genial Diamond Jim Brady, who once offered Miss Russell a million dollars to marry him. It is not alone the story of a famous actress. It is also the story of an era, and Lillian Russell, who never knew a failure except in love from the day she was first discovered by Tony Pastor, is simply a part of an amazing era faithfully recaptured.

Epic in its sweep and the sheer magnificence of its production, only regret of those who see it is that it is not in Technicolor.

To have seen the wardrobe of Miss Russell, as copied by Travis Banton in the twenty-seven gowns designed for Miss Faye, together with the ostrich-plumed hats of that day, the glittering jewels, the regal fittings of Rector's in actual color would have been something to remember. Even so, audiences will leave the theater remembering the reverberating laugh of Diamond Jim, played by Edward Arnold, and the stormy emotional scene in which Alice Faye really is Lillian Russell following her rejection of Brady's proposal.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Los Angeles Times: ". . . 'Lillian Russell' compares with 'Alexander's Ragtime Band' . . ." Hedda Hopper: ". . . A fascinating story . . ." Hollywood Reporter: ". . . By all standards, great entertainment . . ."

"Down Went McGinty" (A Review)

Cast: Brian Donlevy, Muriel Angelus, Akim Tamiroff, William Demarest, Allyn Joslyn, et al. A Paramount picture, produced by Paul Jones; directed by Preston Sturges from his own screen play.

THE Republicans stage their political powwow June 24 in Philadelphia; the Democrats stage theirs in Chicago July 15, and Paramount launches its campaign in Hollywood July 19 with the release of "Down Went McGinty." For sheer entertainment value, it three, be a toss-up between the three, after seeing "Down Went McGinty," one of the best political stories to come to the screen in many a moon, MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE readers can bet on Paramount.

McGinty (Brian Donlevy) is first seen as a bartender in a tropical hideaway for fugitives from the U. S. He is consoling a down-and-outer. "Things can't be so bad," he says. "Take a look at me. Once I was governor of a state."

From that point, the story is told in retrospect, and for sheer authenticity which approaches the documentary in revealing how graft is levied and collected in American cities, the picture is unsurpassed. At the same time, it possesses a fine humor and a gripping story. McGinty tells how, a few years back, he stood in a breadline awaiting a handout. Attached to the free meal was the stipulation that the diners must vote for a certain candidate in a mayoralty election.

McGinty, broke and hungry, votes thirty-seven times during the day and so impresses the Boss (Akim Tamiroff) that he is given a permanent job collecting graft. From this job, he is elected alderman, then mayor. While campaigning for mayor, the Boss decides that McGinty should have a wife, and the Boss' secretary, Catherine (Muriel Angelus), agrees to marry him as a matter of campaign convenience. The marriage of convenience turns into a marriage of love, which eventually leads to McGinty's resolve to go straight.

By this time, however, McGinty is in the governor's seat, and when he turns upon the politicians, he breaks the Boss. The Boss, in his turn, manages to break McGinty by exposing his earlier record. At this point, the film cleverly reverts back to the present and to bartender McGinty with a subtle—if bitter—concluding touch.

Because "Down Went McGinty" was reviewed by Movie and Radio Guide before the regular press preview, the "What They Thought of It" feature is necessarily omitted.

"SANDY IS A LADY" definitely settles the question of Sandy's sex, but her antics in this hilarious picture are anything but ladylike

"Sandy Is a Lady"

Cast: Sandy, Butch and Buddy, Eugene Pallette, Nan Grey, Tom Brown, Mischa Auer, Billy Gilbert, Edgar Kennedy, Fritz Feld, et al. A Universal picture, produced by Burt Kelly, directed by Charles Lamont, who also directed "Shadows Over Shanghai" and "Pride of the Navy."

DESPITE the fact that you will encounter here all the time-honored gags and thriller-diller complications which once were reserved for Harold Lloyd productions, "Sandy Is a Lady" leaves no sense of "I saw all this before" but settles right down to the business of keeping audiences pre-occupied and wholly amused throughout.

As cute as ever, Baby Sandy is left in the hands of neighbor Billy Gilbert and his two dead-pan sons, Buddy and Butch, while Mother Nan Grey goes off on a clam-buying expedition. The clams are very important because Daddy Tom Brown's boss, Eugene Pallette, is coming to dinner and clams are his favorite food. Also, Nan and Tom plan to hit the boss for a raise for Tom right after dinner.

Escaping the two boys with whom she is left, Sandy becomes the buddy of inventor Mischa Auer, gets lost, hauled away in an ash-can, is rediscovered on a narrow girder atop a sixteen-story building under construction. Even so, she manages to wind up safely at home to greet her mother when she returns from her clam-hunt. But of course a lot of other things have been happening, too. Sandy, for example, has saved a big job for the boss and insured her Daddy's raise, wangled an acceptance of a Mischa Auer invention and spread sunshine wherever she appeared.

This sounds terribly complicated—and it is. But as it unreels at its breathless pace, it is fresh and new and manages to grip its audience, varying thrills with chuckles in nice proportion. Definitely, it is reminiscent of the Harold Lloyd technique of comedy, with never a dull moment, chills, spills and thrills at a mile-a-minute pace which Sandy takes in a calm, unemotional stride with an occasional grin of enjoyment. Definitely, too, it is a welcome relief from the sophisticated comedy with which we have been deluged of late.

This is Baby Sandy's fourth picture. Definitely it establishes Sandy as a lady and, even more definitely, it establishes her as one of Universal's brightest stars. Dead-pan Butch and Buddy, who panicked audiences in the "Underpup," follow through with outstanding performances here, as do Eugene Pallette, Edgar Kennedy, and Mischa Auer as a lovable, half-mad, half-brilliant Russian inventor.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Los Angeles Times: "... Strictly comedy..." Variety: "... Hilarious thrill-slapstick..." Hollywood Reporter: "... Spills, thrills and chills..."

"Sandy Is a Lady" is amusing; Tamiroff scores in "The Way of All Flesh"

"Women in War"

Cast: Elsie Janis, Wendy Barrie, Patric Knowles, Mae Clarke, Dennis Moore, Dorothy Peterson, Billy Gilbert, et al. A Republic picture, produced by Sol C. Siegal; directed by John H. Auer, who also directed "Orphans of the Street."

TWENTY-THREE years ago, when the American expeditionary forces were first sent to France, Elsie Janis—then one of Broadway's brightest stars—left New York for the war zone to take charge of A. E. F. overseas entertainment, and became known, very shortly, as "The Sweetheart of the A. E. F."

Today Elsie Janis has the leading role in a film as timely as a newsreel and set in this, the current, world war. Miss Janis plays the part of a mother whose daughter, unwittingly injuring a British officer, is involved in a military trial. Her mother manages to extricate her and sends her to France as a nurse. Recalcitrant and bitter, the girl hates her existence, but in the end comes through with flying colors, thanks to her mother's aid.

Most interesting thing about the film is the part Miss Janis plays. As a nurse back of the lines, she manages to relieve, for the brief period of the film, a part she wrote herself in the trying days of World War I. Oldsters will love it for just that reason. Youngsters will enjoy it for the timely drama it is, a tense and melodramatic picturization of the truth that more than soldiers and arms enter into winning wars. Not the least of these are the nurses.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Hollywood Reporter: "... A thorough job of scripting drama, romance, comedy..." Variety: "... Miss Janis... in restrained but impassioned performance..."

"La Conga Nights"

Cast: Hugh Herbert, Dennis O'Keefe, Constance Moore, Ferike Boros, Frank Orth, Eddie Quillan, Armida, Joe Brown, Jr., et al. A Universal picture, produced by Ken Goldsmith; directed by Lew Landers, who also directed "Law of the Underworld."

IN "LA CONGA NIGHTS," Hugh Herbert plays the part of Henry I. Dibble, Jr., eccentric, rumba-loving multimillionaire. Mr. Herbert, moreover, plays the parts of his four eccentric sisters as well as his eccentric mother to make this a virtual field day for the man who made Woo-Woo famous.

The story is a ridiculous piece which has Dibble taking time off to visit one of his numerous properties upon the insistence of Mom and the sisters. It happens to be a rooming-house where the roomers run around doing queer things throughout the day and play in a rumba band at night. Dibble is fascinated and strangely drawn to the house, eventually moves in. A little later, when the rooming-house operator is about to be dispossessed, the lawyer who comes to serve the papers recognizes Dibble and the dispossession is off, so everyone is happy.

Four cameras, a special camera crew, extra wardrobe helpers and two valets were used in filming this all-time high in multiple characterizations, highlight of which is a scene in which the Dibble family has dinner and family talk. Two stop-watches helped Herbert get his timing for this remarkable scene, in which six Hugh Herberts eat and talk with each other.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Hollywood Reporter: "... Rolls along at a nonsensical pace, hitting top form when Herbert appears..." Variety: "... Those who like Hugh Herbert will get full measure..."

"THE WAY OF ALL FLESH" finds versatile Akim Tamiroff in the tragic father role which Emil Jannings used as a springboard to fame

"The Way of All Flesh"

Cast: Akim Tamiroff, Gladys George, William Henry, Muriel Angelus, Berton Churchill, Roger Imhoff, James Seay, et al. A Paramount picture, produced by Eugene Zukor; directed by Louis King, who also directed "Persons In Hiding"; from a story by Lajos Biro and Jules Furthman.

BACK in the early days of sound, Emil Jannings, the noted German actor, made a silent film synchronized to music which, for its deeply moving theme and magnificent character portrayal on the part of Jannings, left an ineradicable impression upon movie-goers of the day. Now that film, "The Way of All Flesh," has been made over with Akim Tamiroff in the part played by Jannings. To say simply that it is far and away the best thing Tamiroff has yet done is to say that the new version of the picture is as effective—if not more so—than the original.

Here is the tragic, heavy portrait of a father who, because of a sin committed in a moment of weakness, pays throughout his living days. Tamiroff is the father, and while he is adequately supported, his part naturally overshadows all others. In the beginning, he is seen as the cashier of a small-town bank, the father of a fine family, a respected member of the community. Sent to the city with bank funds to be deposited there, he succumbs to the lure of a siren (Muriel Angelus), and when he awakens, the funds entrusted to him have disappeared. Rather than return and bring with him disgrace for his family, he disappears, planning circumstances to make it seem that he died an honorable death. All the while, he sinks lower and lower until he is little more than a tramp.

Particularly poignant are the two scenes in which he encounters his family, unknown to them. One is when he sits in a balcony as his son, now a famous violinist, plays a concert. The other is on the occasion of his son's marriage. Here the father hovers outside the home, watches as his son goes to leave flowers on what he supposes is his father's grave before the ceremony. Later as he looks in at his family through the window from the snowy night outside, longing to go in and make himself known and yet knowing that he cannot, the tender, restrained performance of Tamiroff is a thing long to be remembered.

This must be listed as purely a personal achievement on the part of Tamiroff. Other characters—Gladys George, for example, has the part which Ruth Chatterton played opposite Jannings—are submerged in the tense story of the father's drift away from his family down into the dregs of humanity.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Hollywood Reporter: "... There is no gainsaying Akim Tamiroff's talents as a character performer... distinctly a personal achievement..." Variety: "... Rises to moving levels of emotional power..."

Joe Louis THE MILLION-DOLLAR KID

Can "Croucho" Godoy make a chump out of the champ again? Read here about his chances and tune in Thursday

BY MARVIN McCARTHY

Jolting Joe Louis means to prove once again that no man can fool him twice

Louis (left) and Godoy fight for keeps, even if they do seem to be necking instead of clinching here

JOE LOUIS has one of the most impressive collections of nicknames in all sport. He is called, among other things, Brown Bomber, Dark Destroyer, Amber Assassin, Butcher Boy, and Sticker of Human Pigs.

He is pictured as a "killer" whose one ominous assignment in life is the destruction of those Lilliputian larrupers unfortunate enough to get in the way of his tank-like strides and machine-gun blows.

In this conception, Joe Louis is in no way a bargain for the lesser lights that flicker and blink (mainly blink) in heavyweight pugilism. But please do not be unduly depressed by it. This deliciously lurid chapter in the world's horror literature is greatly overwritten.

Truth of the matter is that Louis, all terror tales notwithstanding, is a heaven-sent angel of palookadom! He is the pugugly's dream come true—good fairy, one of the Magi and Santa Claus rolled into one. He is the Midas of Maul who makes them big money.

Louis strokes his opponents on the chin, as Aladdin rubbed his lamp, and treasures of gold pour into their laps. In three years, Louis' fists have earned close to $1,000,000 for the fighters who have opposed him. In the course of this "maltreatment" he has made wealthy young men of some of those chosen to participate with him in ringdom's melon-cuttings, and he has inflated earnings of all far beyond their own purse-drawing capacities.

IF SOME of these beneficiaries had not had Louis, they would have had as opponents a posse of butcher, baker, rent, tailor and other bill-collectors. And while on the subject of monsters, now we're really getting hot!

On Thursday night, June 20, an unhandsome and in some ways uncouth youth from South America, Senor Arturo Godoy, will oppose Louis in New York's Yankee Stadium ring. They will fight fifteen rounds or less for the world's heavyweight championship, and via this medium Godoy will collect the second installment of a fortune that has come to him jackpot style.

Four months ago Godoy was a fistic nobody. He had been around for a number of years, engaging in unimportant bouts, sharing in minor purses. Then destiny singled him out. An opponent was needed for Louis, and Godoy was as eligible as anybody else in view of the dearth of worthy title challengers. So on February 10 Arturo was dispatched to the slaughter. Box score of the "slaughter":

1. Godoy sprang a brainstorm style, featuring an anthropoid crouch that completely befuddled Louis. The champion hardly landed a punishing blow, Godoy wasn't the least bit hurt and the bout went the full fifteen-round limit.

2. Godoy pocketed $9,250 earnings for the evening and hurried forth to do some real cashing-in. Through picturesque speech on the radio and aided on the stage by a beauteous dancing wife, Godoy captured the public fancy. In a veritable box-office "blitzkrieg," he has cleaned up several times the amount of his fight wage.

3. Now Godoy is all set to face Louis' punches again and counter with another neat tapping of the old cash-register. Brisk ticket sales are reported by promoter Mike Jacobs, and Godoy's share of what may be a surprisingly large gate will set him up for life.

Admittedly, the Louis touch on a young man's chin has its inconveniencing aspects, but there certainly is no complaint with his helpful touch to the opponent's bankroll. Since he knocked out James J. Braddock in eight rounds on June 22, 1937, to win the championship, Louis has engaged in ten defenses. Each time he proved a box-office angel for somebody. Braddock himself, so low not long before then that he had been on relief, profited from the Brown Bomber's magnetic draw to the extent of $200,000. Including Braddock, Louis' eleven title opponents have been enriched to the extent of $775,734, an average of $70,000 per man.

THE accompanying table shows just whom Louis has fought since hitting championship stride, and the approximate amount he helped each man earn. Note that Max Schmeling, who gave the worst account of himself, collected the most—$349,228—from his return match with Louis. So valiant in their first encounter when he kayoed Joe in twelve rounds, Schmeling proved to be a complete washout in the encore. He went down screaming from the first punch, a whack across the flanks, and failed to last out the opening round. Herr Schmeling took a bitter drubbing, but that $349,228 sugar was plenty sweet.

Name your own palookas on the list and then note just what the angel has done for them. Imagine two-bits-an-hour laborers like some of those guys getting that kind of dough! Call it "butchery" if you will, but the line of those eager to have a taste of it still forms at the left and right.

Lest a suspicion be born that we are trying to build up the Louis lad for a philanthropy award, or something, let it be said here and now that he also has done a bit of all right by himself. As usual, the lion's share of the booty has been seized by the champ. In his five-year career, Louis has collected $1,699,322 as his end of the purses. He has had forty-two fights, winning thirty-four by K.O.'s and seven by decisions, losing only the knockout by Schmeling. He has fought a total of 206 rounds—thus has been paid $8,248 per round, or $2,749 per minute of actual performance.

A wolf of Wall Street would have to go some to equal this rate of "take" by the panther of the ring.

And now promoter Jacobs is talking of a $500,000 gate for the next meeting of Louis with the swarthy and sinister-faced gent from Chile. Godoy definitely has registered with the fight fans. The public has been intrigued by his radio talks in thick, broken English and the self-assurance he exudes. The public again. Such a screwy and confusing style has the South American "Croucho" that students of such things doubt Louis ever would be able to solve it, not after fifteen, thirty or even forty-five rounds of intimate study.

Louis knows exactly how to deal with bipeds, but when an adversary comes bounding across the ring in quadruped manner, on knuckles and arms, he smothered all Louis' efforts at in-fighting. The result was a haywire fight which was not at all soothing to the practised ringside eye. Louis looked bad and Godoy looked worse. There were forty-five minutes of it, and many a delicate sniffer was quivering long before they opened the doors to let the crowd out and some fresh air in.

Godoy is fearless of Louis, and that always helps. In the ring he faced the "hardest hitter since Dempsey" without a quail. Two nights later he stood up to him again, only a radio mike between them, and broadcast a taunt:

"Next time, Cho Looney, I beat you."

What Louis said in response caused those who are familiar with Joe's capacity for developing a "hate" to shudder:

"The next time, Arturo Godoy, I knock you out. And you better bring your five brothers along."

Louis freely admits that he is gunning for the man who made a sucker out of him.

"I'M A little bit mad at that Godoy," he says, "and I'm going to put him away if it's the last thing I do. That freak style won't save him this time, because Jack (trainer Blackburn) and I have worked out a way to solve it. You'll see."

Louis is not given to loose talking and he usually proves his own best prophet. Sometimes he has called the exact round in which he would kayo an enemy. When he announces he is even a "little bit mad" at somebody, it's always well to check up on the supply of ammonia.

Such a resentment Louis took into the ring against Schmeling, details of which massacre already have been related. And now he announces the Godoy number is up!

String with the champions and you'll be right most of the time, so we here-with are stringing. Louis says he will get Godoy. Louis doesn't mention the round, but we'll do that for him. Let's take No. 7, a good enough number on the first throw but never on the second.

The Louis-Godoy fight will be broadcast Thursday over an NBC network at:

lic has come to believe that Arturo really must be one heluva fighter, going fifteen rounds with the Butcher Boy and emerging with scarcely a scratch.

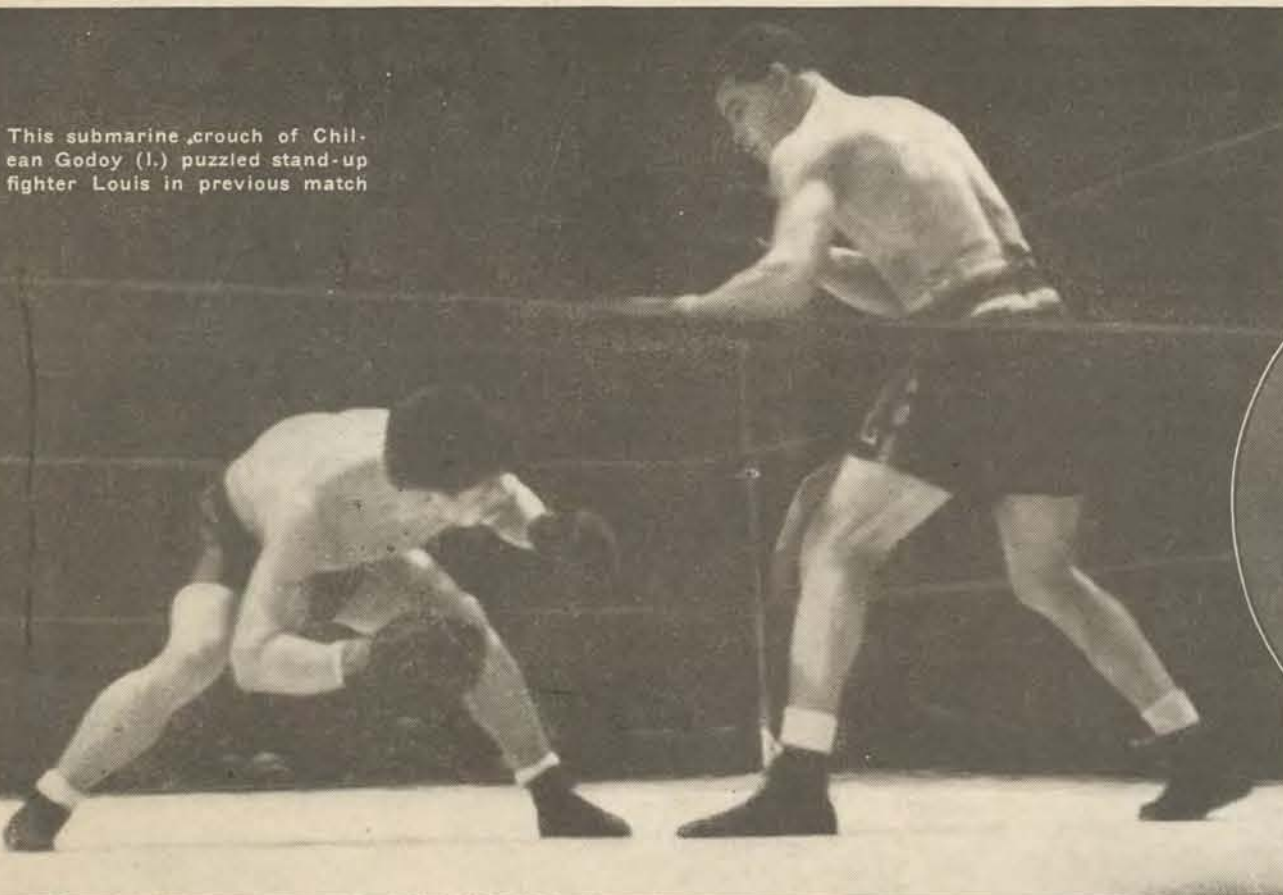

ONE answer is that the overwhelming majority of fans only "heard" the first Louis-Godoy bout. They didn't see it, and the battle sounded much better and closer than it actually looked. Thus, thousands who missed the first match are being encouraged to attend this next time. Many competent boxing critics believe the crowd will see a repetition, with Godoy going the limit toes, even the champion becomes upset. The first Godoy fight proved it. From the moment he ambled out of his corner and forced Louis to reach way down to shake hands with him, Senor Arturo had Joe off balance.

Bobbing, crouching and weaving, Godoy offered Louis no target for telling bombs. Louis couldn't get his punches down that low. Hitting this fellow is comparable to driving railroad spikes, calling for the same kind of stroke.

Godoy's battle plan was to crawl in close and then bury his head on the champion's chest. With his big, strong

I have never heard of either name." Nevertheless he allowed the production, which resulted in one of the most famous of musical failures chiefly because the fashionable Parisians, accustomed to a third-act ballet in most of their operas, objected to Wagner's putting his dancing at the beginning, just after the overture.

With high hopes, Wagner had rewritten and enlarged the short ballet scene of the original version of his "Tannhaeuser" premiered at Dresden in 1845. However, the result was the aforementioned disaster.

The Bacchanale, as it is called, takes place at the Court of Venus, where Tannhaeuser is enjoying the sinful delights that later cost him the pure love of Elizabeth and bring about her death and his own.

Nicolai Berezwosky's third symphony dates from 1936 when he was thirty-six years old and is music of ultra-modern flavor and complexity. The work has been performed by the leading orchestras of Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Minneapolis, Philadelphia and New York where the composer lives.

SUNDAY NIGHT CONCERT, NBC. The NBC Orchestra, Frank Black, conductor; Deems Taylor, guest. First announcement of this year's American Prix de Rome winner, with presentation of the award by Deems Taylor. The winning composer will conduct his own prize-winning composition. Romantic Symphony (Howard Hanson).

The American Prix de Rome (Prize of Rome), established 1921, is a copy of the long famous Paris Conservatoire Prix de Rome inaugurated there in 1803 after Napoleon I had reorganized the school in 1800. Both honors have to be gained through competition of composers, the American winners being selected for three fellowships given by several organizations devoted to the welfare of music in our land. For both Prix winners, free residence is provided in Rome with money for living purposes, extending through several years.

Howard Hanson was the first recipient of the American Prix in 1921, and that is why his symphony (written in 1930) holds place on today's program. Among other Americans who won the prize are Leo Sowerby, Randall Thompson and Robert L. Sanders; a symphony by the last-named was broadcast recently by Howard Barlow.

There is no special "story" connected with Hanson's score and its best explanation is his own: "My Romantic Symphony represents my escape from the rather bitter type of modern musical realism which occupies so large a place in contemporary thought. . . I do not believe that music is primarily a matter of the intellect, but rather a manifestation of the emotions."

Cycle. Variations on a Theme by Handel (Brahms).

With all the orchestral one-composer cycles everywhere, it is refreshing to have one devoted to Miss Brodsky to the piano and its giant composer, Brahms.

He was particularly fond of writing variations, the best of his examples in that form being the set based on a violin theme by Paganini and the one heard at this hour, taking as its subject some lovely measures by Handel.

Brahms puts them through all sorts of moods, serious, gay, solemn, pastoral, sentimental, humorous, brilliant, using marvelous resources of harmony, counterpoint and coloring, and ending with a prodigious fugue, piling up chords and climaxes to lead to a highly glorified finale.

Miss Brodsky prefers Brahms and Debussy to all other piano composers, and as she is as gifted a young American pianist as this country possesses, her opinion deserves ripe consideration.

Summer Days in Radio

By Leonard Lieblich

OUR fifth column in South America evidently is to be established partly through music, what with exchange of concerts, conductors, lecturers and composers.

Good news along those lines is the recent announcement that some of the South American concerts of Toscanini and his orchestra (they sailed from New York May 31) will be broadcast to the United States; and also several "preparatory" programs, conducted by H. Leopold Spitalny, are to be aired for us while the group is en route aboard the S. S. Brazil.

It is possible that our dials might bring the very first of the concerts in South America, scheduled to take place the day the orchestra disembarks at Rio de Janeiro, Brazilian capital, where Toscanini made his debut fifty-four years ago as a conductor.

Do you remember the story? He was a cellist at the opera house there when, during a political embroilment, the regular leader fled from the platform just before curtain-time. In desperation the management called on Toscanini—then exactly nineteen years old—to direct the delayed performance of "Aida," which he did without any printed music before him. He scored a success so sensational that then and there he gave up the cello and entered on his glittering career with the baton.

What do musical artists do in summer, and where do they spend their time? Most of them rest and rusticate, and the others keep on making public appearances, occasional or regular.

Heifetz and Hofmann are to be in California (where they have homes) during the hot months, and the same state will harbor Bartlett and Robertson, John Brownlee, Lotte Lehmann, John Carter and Paul Robeson. Vronsky and Babin intend to do some composing in New Mexico. Richard Crooks is to divide his time between a cottage in Pennsylvania and a camp in Canada. Albert Spalding summers in Massachusetts but leaves there for participation in several outdoor concerts. Helen Jepson retires to Wurtzboro, N. Y., to rest and learn new roles. Robert Vrovai listens to what the wild waves say at Nantucket Island, Mass. Vladimir Horowitz sandwiches his leisure at Riverdale, N. Y., with engagements at the Philadelphia Dell, Hollywood Bowl and Ravinia Park. Sviyeti and Piatigorsky are avoiding the turmoil in Europe by spending summer in America for the first time—and your editor will mop his brow in New York City and hunt items to fill "The March of Music."

You've got all summer to read up on your opera librettos, for the Metropolitan—safe now with its million-dollar (and over) guarantee fund—reopens on December 2 for sixteen weeks of lyricizing and the customary broadcasting.

New Books and Records Reviewed

THE CRITICAL COMPOSER. A collection of literary material by Wagner, Schumann, Debussy, Hugo Wolf and other composers. Edited by Irving Kolodin. (Howell, Soskin & Co., New York.)

This volume by one of the music critics of the Sun (New York) will reveal to many who did not know it before that a number of great tonal masters could write articles, essays and criticism as fluently and intelligently as they composed music. In addition to the giants aforementioned, Kolodin quotes too from Gounod, Berlioz, Tchaikowsky, Gluck, Liszt, Mendelssohn. (Also Weber, Spohr and Saint-Saens might have been profitably included in the collection.)

Of course real interest attaches to what such men say about music in general, but positively absorbing are the opinions, favorable and unfavorable, they express of one another. Here is criticism voiced by minds which understand the processes of musical creation from the inside, from actual experience. (Schumann, Wolf, Berlioz and Debussy were professional music critics for a time.)

Highly arresting are the revelations of what Wagner thought of Beethoven and Weber; Schumann of Schubert, Chopin and Liszt; Tchaikowsky and Debussy of Brahms and Wagner; Gounod of Mozart; Wolf of Bruckner; Mendelssohn of Schumann and Liszt; Liszt of Chopin. Not the least important part of Kolodin's fascinating book is his foreword with its thoughtful and suggestive deductions.

O WOULD I BUT EXPRESS IN SONG (Malashkin). TILIM BOM (Stravinsky). THE CAPTIVE (Gretchaninoff). Sung by Alexander Kipnis, basso, with Cellius Dougherty at the piano. Victor 15894.

Alexander Kipnis' recordings for Victor continue to be a delight. This latest record, of three Russian songs in widely different styles, is a triumph of dramatic and exciting singing. Particularly lovely is the lyric Malashkin piece, which contrasts with the acid humor of the little excerpt from Stravinsky's "Story of a Soldier." For lovers of fine singing, Kipnis recordings are a "must."

GOIN' HOME (William Arms Fisher, arranged from the Largo of the "New World Symphony" by Dvorak); THE BAILIFF'S DAUGHTER (Old English Ballad). Sung by Lawrence Tibbett. Victor 15491.

Our own Lawrence Tibbett records the beloved "Goin' Home" and a quaint English ballad in fine style. The ballad has a slight edge on the "Goin' Home," which Tibbett sings with excessive solemnity.

—Willinger

Alexander Kipnis, basso popular with listeners, recently has made choice recordings (see review)

Musician of the Week

James Newill

RADIO has a way of lulling you into listening without protest to the same people week in and week out, and then with no warning suddenly introducing a newcomer who galvanizes you into attention. That's what happened several weeks ago when a smooth, resonant, beautifully trained but totally unfamiliar baritone voice started to sing Vincent Youmans' "Through the Years" on the "Ford Summer Hour." Most of the dialers were tuned in to hear Jessica Dragonette's welcome return to the air and were only mildly interested in the male star of the show. Before the hour was were limited for fear his voice would be injured. Football was strictly taboo. But he must have sneaked up to the corner lot and done a little bit of playing, because he eventually entered the University of Southern California on a football scholarship, in company with Ernie Smith, all-time, all-pro tackle.

Newill quit college to take a job singing on a local radio station, sang small parts with the Los Angeles Opera Company. When he made the big decision to go back to being a baritone, he retired for a year and worked hard under the famous Russian singer, Nina Koshetz. He learned operatic roles,

Attracting much attention on the "Ford Summer Hour" (CBS, Sun.), James Newill, right, started out as a popular tenor, now, as a baritone, sings light classics. Above: With Leith Stevens, Ford hour musical director up, listeners were scrambling for radio listings and asking each other: "James Newill—who's he? Why haven't we heard of him before?"

Residents of California probably know him, as he has been singing on local stations for some years. And Burns and Allen fans may recall a young tenor who sang popular songs on their show for a while. That was James Newill, too, during his tenor period.

"I noticed that tenors seemed to get more breaks and more money," he said. "So I decided to be one. But it didn't work. I had changed to tenoring to sing popular songs. And I realized that popular songs weren't in my line. So I went back to baritoning."

He was making $100 a week at the time, owned a car, and was riding the crest of the wave. But the serious music bug, which had bitten him quite early in life, wouldn't leave him alone. And his mother protested silently that she hadn't raised her boy to be a tenor. She was satisfied with his natural baritone, which she had trained since his childhood. There had never been any question of his being anything but a singer. All his activities were channeled in that direction, and even sports spent a lot of time studying style, languages, diction. That year made him a polished singer, with fine style and technique.

"Then I married. Look!" He pulled out a snapshot of a lovely blond girl, who looks as if she has a sense of humor and who makes an ideal contrast for Newill's tall, dark, broad-shouldered good looks. His looks evidently registered on a film, because Monogram Pictures signed him for a series called "Renfrew of the Mounted," in which he plays a highly moral young man who doesn't smoke or drink, gets the girl, and brings the villain to justice in every picture.

Newill and his wife live near Beverly Hills in California, and he frankly admits that the climate is more suited for loafing than for work. And that's why he likes it. His loafing is pretty strenuous and includes studying, playing a crack game of golf and making amateur movies.

He was never superstitious in his life until he sang on a broadcast with Mario Chamlee, who afterwards presented him with a dime for luck. The next day Newill was signed up for the Sunday "Ford Summer Hour"!

—Viva Lieblich.

DISCARD YOUR OLD AERIAL

It is Most Likely Corroded and Has Poor or Loose Noisy Connections
 No MORE BUZZES, CLICKS and shorts from summer rains and winter snow and sleet when using an F & H Capacity Aerial Eliminator. Anyone can connect it in a moment's time to the radio set—occupies only 1 1/2 inch by 4 inch space behind the set, yet enables your radio to operate without an aerial and tune in stations over the entire broadcast band from long distance and short wave channels.

ELIMINATE THE AERIAL FOR GOOD
 Attach this unit to your radio—make your set complete in itself—forget aerial wires and troubles—move your set anywhere—no more roof climbing, unsightly lead-in or aerial wires.

NOT NEW—VALUE ALREADY PROVED
 On the market five years, 100,000 customers in U.S. and foreign countries.
 In use from the Arctic Region of Norway to the Tropics of Africa. Each factory tested on actual long distance reception. Cannot harm set—Easily connected to any radio, including radios having no ground or radios for doublet aerial. Note: It will not operate on battery or automobile radios.

5 DAYS TRIAL Mail coupon at once. Pay postman $1.00 plus a few pennies postage on delivery. If not entirely satisfied, return within five days and your dollar will be refunded without question.

—JUST MAIL THIS COUPON—
 F & H Radio Laboratories, Dept. 85, Fargo, N. Dak.
 I send F & H Capacity Aerial, will pay postman $1 plus five cents postage. If not pleased will return within 5 days for $1 refund. Check here if sending 61 with order—this saving postage cost—same refund guaranteed. Check here if interested in dealer's proposition.

WHAT USERS SAY
 LaPorte, Ind. After using the Capacity Aerial Eliminator over a year on my 1935 small 7 tube set can say it brings in reception with fine volume and clarity, pulling in stations from Japan, Europe, South America, and broadcast stations from all over the U. S. Efficiency proven, I took down my old outside aerial.
 Signed:.....
 Davenport, Ia. Received your Radio Aerial Eliminator and it sure works fine. Also swears well on short wave band. Wish I had found it long ago. Signed:.....

ALIAS THE DEACON (Universal). Bob Burns plays this straight, and the result is a good remake of an all-time favorite theme of crook turned good.

AND ONE WAS BEAUTIFUL (M-G-M). Laraine Day's first starring vehicle is an adequate, meaty piece without affectation. Almost a "must."

AMAZING MR. WILLIAMS (Columbia). Sprightly murder mystery with Melvyn Douglas and Joan Blondell doing some hilarious sleuthing. For everyone.

ANOTHER THIN MAN (M-G-M). William Powell and Myrna Loy in a not-up-to-par sequel to the "Thin Man." Only occasionally amusing.

BABES IN ARMS (M-G-M). A grand musical with plenty of plot about old vaudevillians and their young, with Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland.

BEYOND TOMORROW (RKO). A story of life after death which doesn't quite come off despite fine performances by Harry Carey, Charles Winninger, C. Aubrey Smith and Maria Ouspenskaya.

THE BISCUIT EATER (Paramount). The simple, beautifully told James Street story of a boy and his dog in hunting country. Good production, good cast and good scripting throughout.

BROADWAY MELODY OF 1940 (M-G-M). Lavishly produced musical that rings the bell, with Fred Astaire, Eleanor Powell and a George Murphy, who nearly steals the show with his dancing.

CASTLE ON THE HUDSON (Warner Bros.). Prison melodrama from Warden Lawes' "20,000 Years in Sing Sing," with John Garfield, Pat O'Brien, Ann Sheridan. Ann is at her acting best in this.

CONGO MAZIE (M-G-M). Sometimes amusing, always melodramatic story of a showgirl stranded in African jungle. Ann Sothorn, John Carroll are in it.

THE COURAGEOUS DR. CHRISTIAN (RKO). Jean Hersholt in a film version of the kindly and benevolent country doctor he popularized on radio.

CURTAIN CALL (Warner Bros.). Light backstage drama of Broadway, with Barbara Read, Alan Mowbray, Helen Vinson.

THE DARK COMMAND (Republic). A stirring drama of guerrilla days in "Bleeding Kansas" of the '60s, with Claire Trevor, John Wayne and Walter Pidgeon. A spine-tingling historic western of near-epic proportions.

DR. CYCLOPS (Paramount). Technically perfect version of the mad scientist who learns secret of reducing humans to miniatures. Brilliantly produced in Technicolor.

DR. KILDARE'S STRANGE CASE (M-G-M). This popular series falls down a notch as emphasis is placed on technical side of medicine to detriment of the human side.

DR. EHRLICH'S MAGIC BULLET (Warner Bros.). Absorbing story of the life of this famous medical researcher after the style of Muni . . . and of the same high quality. Edward G. Robinson excels in title role in this picture.

THE DOCTOR TAKES A WIFE (Columbia). What happens when a man-hating writer of popular novels (Loretta Young) meets a handsome young doctor (Ray Milland) is good comedy and sparkling entertainment.

DOWN WENT McGINTY (Paramount). A better political satire in which a bum becomes governor, neatly contrived, well acted with Brian Donlevy, Akim Tamiroff and Muriel Angelus in key roles.

EDISON, THE MAN (M-G-M). Inspiring sequel to "Young Tom Edison" with Spencer Tracy as the adult Thomas Edison in a screen biography every American should see.

FARMER'S DAUGHTER (Paramount). An amusing comedy of summer theatricals, with Martha Raye and Charles Ruggles. Will bring many giggles.

FIGHTING 69th (Warner Bros.). Somewhat fictionalized and considerably dramatized version of a famous regiment's part in war. Effective, melodramatic and absorbing. Stars James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, George Brent and others.

FLIGHT ANGELS (Warner Bros.) A better aviation film which treats air-stewardesses as human beings, not angels. Virginia Bruce, Dennis Morgan, Wayne Morris are in it.

FORTY LITTLE MOTHERS (M-G-M). Eddie Cantor plays a simple, straightforward role effectively, with a cute baby and forty little Hollywood cuties of seventeen or so supporting him.

GERONIMO (Paramount). Indian fighting in the '80's which will please youngsters, bore adults.

GHOST COMES HOME (M-G-M). A rib-tickling comedy-drama of a ne'er-do-well who comes home after being given up for dead, makes good. Frank Morgan is whole show.

GRAPES OF WRATH (20th Century-Fox). Profoundly moving, accurately translated to the screen is this Steinbeck best-seller of migratory workers and dust-bowl emigres. Has Henry Fonda, Jane Darwell, John Carradine.

GREEN HELL (Universal). A not-too-good melodrama set in the Central American jungles, with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Joan Bennett, John Howard, Alan Hale.

HIGH SCHOOL (20th Century-Fox). Good juvenile comedy, with Jane Withers, Joe Brown, Jr., Lloyd Corrigan and Cliff Edwards.

HIS GIRL FRIDAY (Columbia). A feminized version of the famous play, "The Front Page," with Rosalind Russell as the reporter, Cary Grant as the managing editor, Ralph Bellamy as the weak-kneed fiance. Fast and furious comedy.

HOUSE ACROSS THE BAY (United Artists). Heavy triangle melodrama with an Alcatraz background gives Joan Bennett her best film role to date, stars George Raft as the usual sneering racketeer. The story is not up to talent.

I TAKE THIS WOMAN (M-G-M). A weak story of eternal triangles played against a Park Avenue medical background. Spencer Tracy, as the physician, and lovely-to-look-at Hedy Lamarr save it by good performances.

I WAS AN ADVENTRESS (20th Century-Fox). Intrigue and adventure with a continental flavor and the incomparable dancing of Zorina make this a worth-looking-at film.

INVISIBLE STRIPES (Warner Bros.). A crackling and crisp melodrama above the average for its type—the ex-convict trying to go straight. George Raft, Jane Bryan, Humphrey Bogart, Paul Kelly are in it.

IT ALL CAME TRUE (Warner Bros.). A good comedy-drama which gives Ann Sheridan a chance to act. Humphrey Bogart and Jeffrey Lynn round out the story of an old rooming-house converted into a cafe to lift a mortgage.

IT'S A DATE (Universal). Deanna Durbin is grown up and lovelier in face, figure and voice in this than any yet. A sparkling story with excellent supporting cast including Kay Francis, Walter Pidgeon, Lewis Howard make it top-notch film.

IF I HAD MY WAY (Universal). Bing Crosby and Gloria Jean co-star in a light musical which isn't a "Road to Singapore" by any means.

JOHNNY APOLLO (20th Century-Fox). Exciting, far-above-the-average film of cultured collegian in underworld, with Tyrone Power, Dorothy Lamour, Edward Arnold.

LA CONGA NIGHTS (Universal). A full measure of Hugh (Woo-Woo) Herbert for his fans in this screwy piece in which he plays his mother, his four eccentric sisters and himself in a "Woo-Woo" marathon.

LILLIAN RUSSELL (20th Century-Fox). Alice Faye, Edward Arnold, Don Ameche revive the Gay Nineties in a screen biography of glamorous Lillian Russell. Elaborately produced, beautifully mounted.

LITTLE OLD NEW YORK (20th Century-Fox). A romanticized version of how Fulton built his steamboat, which nicely mingles history with fiction and stars Alice Faye, Fred MacMurray, Richard Greene and Brenda Joyce.

MAN FROM DAKOTA (M-G-M). A melodramatic story of prison break during the Civil War, intrigue and war adventure, with Wally Beery, Dolores del Rio.

MY FAVORITE WIFE (RKO). Another in the cycle of two-husbands-and-a-wife-or-vice-versa films; with Cary Grant and Irene Dunne as amusing principals.

MA! HE'S MAKING EYES AT ME (Universal). Light comedy with songs, starring Tom Brown and Constance Moore.

NORTHWEST PASSAGE (M-G-M). Spencer Tracy gives vivid portrayal of Major Robert Rogers and trail-blazing in this thrilling adventure drama of the Indian wars. Filmed in Technicolor, its excellent cast includes also Robert Young and Walter Brennan.

OF MICE AND MEN (United Artists). Magnificent study in tragedy in this faithful transfer from Steinbeck's novel to the screen story of an odd friendship between two itinerant workers, Burgess Meredith, Lon Chaney, Jr., are excellently cast, give admirable performances.

OUR TOWN (United Artists). One of the year's most magnificent films, telling the simple story of simple folks who live in everybody's town. A perfect cast, perfect production from the Pulitzer prize play by Thornton Wilder.

PINOCCHIO (RKO-Disney). The classic tale of the little wooden boy who grew up to be a real boy is imaginatively brought to the screen in Technicolor by Walt Disney. Better, perhaps, than "Snow White."

ROAD TO SINGAPORE (Paramount). A hilariously funny farce of the South Seas brings together Bing Crosby, Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour in a laugh-riot musical, with radio's alumni giving good accounts of themselves.

STRANGE CARGO (M-G-M). Joan Crawford and Clark Gable become involved in a seldom dull melodrama of prison and escape, with religious overtones.

SATURDAY'S CHILDREN (Warner Bros.). Touching, down-to-earth filming of the Pulitzer prize play (same title) of youngsters in love and in debt, with John Garfield, Ann Shirley, Claude Rains.

STAR DUST (20th Century-Fox). Starlet Linda Darnell re-enacts her own life in a lighter-hearted sequel to "A Star Is Born."

SANDY IS A LADY (Universal). Melodrama of the Harold Lloyd type, light, amusing and thrilling, with smiling Baby Sandy, Eugene Pallette, Mischa Auer, Nan Grey and Tom Brown.

SEVENTEEN (Paramount). An excellent modernized version of the Booth Tarkington classic about a boy in adolescence, his loves, his life. Jackie Cooper, Betty Field, Otto Kruger are featured.

SHOP AROUND THE CORNER (M-G-M). A light and pleasant picture about a personable little department store in Budapest and its personnel, portrayed by Jimmy Stewart, Frank Morgan, Margaret Sullivan and a good supporting cast.

SWISS FAMILY ROBINSON (RKO). Some exciting moments and interesting shots plus good acting make the screen version of the shipwrecked Robinson family pleasant entertainment. Thomas Mitchell, Edna Best, and Freddie Bartholomew are in it.

SON OF THE NAVY (Monogram). A navy-hating Jean Parker meets Gunner's Mate James Dunn and a homeless waif who needs some parents; a sparkling version of an old theme.

TORRID ZONE (Warner Bros.). Adventure in a banana republic which is lusty and hard-hitting, with Ann Sheridan, James Cagney, Pat O'Brien.

TURNABOUT (Hal Roach). Imaginative—and entertaining—piece in the "Topper" style about wives and husbands who exchange places. Very well done, with Carole Landis, John Hubbard, William Gargan, Adolphe Menjou.

TYPHOON (Paramount). Dorothy Lamour and Robert Preston in a "Hurricane" style film which has breath-taking Technicolor photography of tropics.

20 MULE TEAM (M-G-M). Wallace Beery is tough-skinned, tender-hearted mule-skinner in tale of good women and bad men who live off borax deposits in early Death Valley.

THREE CHEERS FOR THE IRISH (Warner Bros.). Simple, unpretentious comedy which is nicely handled by cast. Tells story of policeman forced to retire, his enmity for son-in-law who takes his place. Featured are Thomas Mitchell, Priscilla Lane, Dennis Morgan.

TOO MANY HUSBANDS (Columbia). A screwballish modernization of the Enoch Arden theme finds Jean Arthur the wife of two husbands, Melvyn Douglas and Fred MacMurray, in a riotous, laugh-provoking comedy-drama.

'TIL WE MEET AGAIN (Warner Bros.). Merle Oberon, George Brent, Pat O'Brien in a remake of "One Way Passage," a love drama of two lost souls and a love that lives after death. Thrilling and touching.

THOSE WERE THE DAYS (Paramount). College days of the early 1900's are faithfully—and humorously—portrayed here in a grand picture based on the "Siwash" tales, with William Holden, Bonita Granville, radio's Ezra Stone (Henry Aldrich).

TWO GIRLS ON BROADWAY (M-G-M). Joan Blondell and Lana Turner are two dancing sisters in love with George Murphy, a triangle which breaks up the vaudeville act, to say nothing of hearts.

VIGIL IN THE NIGHT (RKO). Grim drama of hospitals and heroics, beautifully produced and acted, with Brian Aherne and Carole Lombard.

WATERLOO BRIDGE (M-G-M). A timely remake of one of the best films to come out of the last war—soul-stirring love-story of an officer and a maid parted by cannon. Robert Taylor's best. Vivien Leigh's continuing proof of her artistry.

THE WAY OF ALL FLESH (Paramount). Akim Tamiroff, as the tragic father in a heavy, sordid film, proves his ability as a character actor in the part which Emil Jannings played in the silent films.

WOMEN WITHOUT NAMES (Paramount). A capably produced and acted melodrama of a women's prison, which is grim and unrelieved but deeply absorbing. Ellen Drew, Robert Paige and Judith Barrett are in it.

WOMEN IN WAR (Republic). Elsie Janis, "Sweetheart of the A. E. F.," lived her part in this war story in 1918, acts it now in a story of women and World War II. Melodrama of nurses behind the Allied lines.

YOU CAN'T FOOL YOUR WIFE (RKO-Radio). Light comedy of young married couple's efforts to get out of the rut, with Lucille Ball, James Ellison.

YOUNG TOM EDISON (M-G-M). An excellent dramatization of Edison's boyhood days which is real and homey under the deft handling Mickey Rooney gives it. It is a splendid production, dramatic and gripping.

WAR-TIME TRANSMISSIONS FROM PARIS

WITH mechanized armies swarming like ants along the highways of northern France and dive bombers darting here and there like wasps to deposit their deadly venom, the terrible death-struggle between Allied and Nazi troops continues.

With the whine of air-raid sirens or the dull booming of not too distant heavy artillery fire sometimes audible in the background, the broadcasts from "Paris Mondial," the French government short-wave station, take on a grim reality that fairly chills one's blood.

French short-wave transmissions cannot be silenced with one successful attack, as could those of the British Broadcasting Corporation, for the simple reason that each of the three French transmitters is situated at a different location. The old 8,000-watt, "Radio Coloniale," transmitter still in daily operation, is located at Pontoise; the site of the new 25,000-watt transmitter is Les Essarts; that of the new 100,000-watt transmitter is Allouis. Transmissions of the Pontoise station are identified with the call prefix TPA; those of the Essarts station are identified with the call prefix TPB, and those of the Allouis station with the call prefix TPC.

By means of highly efficient directional aerials, French broadcasts are radiated to various parts of the world daily. Those transmissions beamed on North America are received in the United States with consistent regularity, while transmissions directed to other continents are often audible, depending upon prevailing reception conditions. The latest complete schedule of transmissions from "Paris Mondial" follows. (Clip this schedule out and keep it near your receiver for reference when tuning in short-wave programs.) Time is Central standard.

GENERAL NOTES: All outstanding prize-fights staged by Mike Jacobs and Madison Square Garden during the next year will be short-waved to Latin America over NBC short-wave stations WRCA and WNBI, under sponsorship of Adam's Hats. The return bout between Champion Joe Louis and Arturo Godoy of Chile on Thursday evening, June 20, is the first broadcast in this series. . . . A new Montevideo, Uruguay, station, CXA5 (9.485), is being heard almost every evening up to approximately 7:20 p.m. CST. . . . The broadcast of the Peruvian Automobile Club, for North American listeners, may now be heard over OAX4R (15.15) of Lima Satur-

CINCINNATI, OHIO.—On May 31 L. B. Wilson, president and general manager of station WCKY, Cincinnati, issued this statement with reference to a proposed radio talk by Earl Browder: "We fully sympathize with the position of the Columbia Broadcasting System in the matter of Earl Browder's Sunday night talk (June 2). Columbia believes that the law should be changed so that no broadcaster is compelled to give time to the candidates of any political party if it is proven to be subservient to a foreign power. We agree with this belief and hope that the law will be amended quickly. WCKY also believes that it is not the intent and purpose of the Federal Communications Act to force American radio to give aid and comfort to the enemies of our republic. Earl Browder, now under indictment for alleged violation of a federal law, has publicly admitted taking orders from a foreign power. His party is not legally recognized under the laws of Ohio. The President and the Congress, as well as other patriotic Americans everywhere, recognize our need for tightening defenses on every front. We are certain it is not in the public interest to broadcast pro-Nazi, pro-Communist speeches at this time. No issue of free speech is involved when the flames of the European catastrophe menace our institutions. WCKY will not broadcast the Sunday night speech by the Communist candidate. Instead we shall devote the period to a program of patriotic music."

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The Columbia Broadcasting System broadcast the talk of Earl Browder June 2, upon his being chosen as presidential candidate by the Communist party. Before and after the speech, however, the CBS announcer explained that the law compelled the network to extend facilities to all political parties alike, but that the network had made the official suggestion that the law be changed so as not to compel networks to grant time to parties proved to be subservient to foreign governments.

CHICAGO, ILL.—While changing trains in Chicago, Eddie Cantor revealed that he had sold that magnificent Tudor mansion at Great Neck, L. I., for $40,000, less than ten percent of its original cost of almost a half-million dollars when it was built in 1929. The Cantors had occupied the place only about six months in over ten years. The comedian also disclosed that his fall program for Ipana and Sal Hepatica will originate in New York, not Hollywood.

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.—It is pretty generally rumored that all is not well between Lana Turner, movie glamour girl, and Artie Shaw, stormy petrel of swing, who surprised the public with an elopement a few months ago. Some rumors say Lana will divorce Artie and marry Greg Bautzer, her former fiance.

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.—A commendable step is being taken by Al Pearce with a novel program idea. Recognizing, as do many people, that there is much good professional talent in radio deserving of a broader outlet than is given them by local stations where they perform, Pearce is doing something about it. He is prospecting for outstanding talent throughout the country to give the "hidden light" pros an opportunity on his Coast-to-Coast Camel show. The first lucky artist spotlighted was Bonnie King, of station KMBC, Kansas City, a singer with a fresh style. She was presented June 7.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Bob Hope and troupe broke all records, including Sally Rand's 1933 draw, with his one week's appearance at the Chicago Theater recently, pulling 128,000 persons into the theater, with crowds lining up around the block at each performance.

the rumors that this program was going down hill.

Professor Quiz went to the World's Fair to speak to a group of visitors. Secretarial wires were crossed and he arrived too late. He then went to the Court of Peace to hear a band concert, arriving just as the musicians were leaving because of threatened rain. At the telephone exhibit he placed a call for Gracie Allen and was informed by her brother-in-law that she had gone to Council Bluffs, Iowa. So he thought he'd try the General Motors building. There the public address system, vital to the enjoyment of the Futurama exhibit, failed. So Professor Quiz concluded that his day at the Fair was only fair.

Myrt and Marge were guests of the Fair the other week and had such an exciting time Myrt had to be written out of the script next day—she was that exhausted . . . Betty Jane Rhodes, nineteen-year-old singer, takes Wynn Murray's place with the Fred Allen group to round out the variety hour from Hollywood. Wynn's working at the World's Fair . . . Edwin C. Hill's "Human Side of the News" scripts are being used by the Indiana University School of Journalism for classroom work. It's a case of Hoosiers following Hoosier, for Hill was born in Aurora, Indiana.

The Fall of Henry Aldrich

Henry Aldrich has his troubles. On the last "Aldrich Family" broadcast, before Henry, played by Ezra Stone, left for his vacation, he was supposed to be running in a cross-country race and talking to his friend, Dizzy, who accompanied him on a bicycle. Soundmen placed a board on the floor and a microphone near it. This picked up the sound of Stone's feet as he jogged up and down as though he were racing. Stone is a bit on the clumsy side, and he slipped off the board, landing on his you-know-what. If he had scrambled to his feet there would have been that much more confusion, so he continued speaking from his prone position, using the microphone on the floor alongside the board.

Ray Heatherton now leads a band. He's getting his start in New York's swankiest spot, the Rainbow Room . . . CBS executives are trying to arrange for a return to New York of the families of their European commentators . . . Announcers have received instructions to give the Anglicized pronunciations of foreign cities wherever possible . . . Peggy Conklin has replaced Haila Stoddard as "Sue" in "Big Sister." Few seasons ago, Haila (wife of Jack Kirkland, author of "Tobacco Road") followed Peggy in the Broadway play "Yes, My Darling Daughter."

Question of a Title

"It Happened in Hollywood" might originate in the East a few weeks this summer. And that raises a question and brings to mind the "Luncheon at the Waldorf" program. When the latter show moved to Boston for a couple of broadcasts, the title was changed to "Luncheon at the Copley-Plaza." Should "It Happened in Hollywood" move to New York, the title might be changed appropriately.

Andre Kostelanetz and Lily Pons will give four or five concerts this summer after "Tune-Up Time" quits the air June 24 . . . Agnes Moorehead had too many forced landings on her trip from Milwaukee to New York after playing in a "Cavalcade of America" drama in the former city. So Rosaline Greene had to substitute for Miss Moorehead in "Big Sister" . . . Ted Steele, actor-novachordist, is not only on all three networks but is heard fourteen times weekly—and he's still a newcomer to the air.

Johnson Family Sticks Together

Jimmy Scribner of the "Johnson

Family" Scribners, is causing us no end of trouble. Just recently we reported he was vacationing in Ohio and would return to the air soon. Then came the letters: "Will the other characters be back, too?" "Suppose Scribner did go on vacation, couldn't the other twenty-one characters carry on?" To all those queries we reply, Scribner and the other twenty-one characters are all on vacation—because they are all one and the same person.

Richard Coogan (Robbie in "Young Dr. Malone") will be married to Gay Adams, legitimate-theater actress, on June 15 . . . Del Sharbutt, already on a flock of big programs, takes over Harry von Zell's announcing commitments on "We, the People" and "The Aldrich Family" this summer while Harry is in Hollywood.

Raymond Gram Swing starts broadcasting over seventy-eight Mutual stations July 1. He'll be heard Mondays and Fridays on that web. On June 16 Swing goes to Olivet College in Michigan to deliver the commencement address. Because of that, his June 17 broadcast will come from Chicago . . . Peter Stern, weighing seven pounds seven ounces, made his appearance on May 24. Papa is Bill Stern, NBC's ace sports commentator.

Gracie Wins Ham

Burns and Allen won't be sponsorless long after June ends; before this ink is dry their deal to switch from jarred beauty to canned ham may be completed. And if so, they'll carry on for the summer . . . Warming, too, is a new dicker between Maxwell House Coffee ("Good News" angel) and the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer movie lot for a renewed program, with that lot's top talent as its stars. M-G-M quit radio thinking it had hurt screen box-office; is now contemplating returning to the air because tests have proved radio aided instead of hurt! . . . Plummer quiz: Who and what was Frank Morgan? . . . Another summer show looming is one under consideration by Coca-Cola which would feature Frances Langford's and John Conte's singing to Dave Broekman's music . . . War note: The Old Gold-Don Ameche show has taken cognizance of furrowed brows on war-news-weary Americans and lightened its weekly dramas to provide more satisfying escape.

Benny to Guest for Allen

Jackson Benny has postponed his planned vacation trip to Honolulu a few days in order to heckle Fred Allen on that worthy's June 19 show from Hollywood. And even then Jack may not take in Hawaii, because he's still worried about the war and stuff. But if he does go, all-wave set owners are advised to tune in the amateur phone bands during his stay there. Reason is: Benny hopes to chat occasionally from the Islands with Murray Bolen, his Jell-O show producer, who operates amateur short-wave station W6ABR in Hollywood, from Paul Christian's Honolulu station K8OQN . . . Yeah, and that laughing, crackling sound you hear will not be static—but Fred Allen wisecracking.

Bing Cements Americas

Hawaiian vacations are well enough for the stars who find themselves necessarily seeing America first because of the war, but for the purposes of cementing friendships and good will with the South American nations Bing Crosby is setting a better example. Bing now plans to make his August 8 broadcast his last for fifteen weeks. Follows an interim as proprietor of his racetrack at Del Mar, and then a cruise to Argentina to reunion with old friends there and do a spot of horse-swapping . . . Incidentally, wonder how this country's radio favorites rank with our southern neighbors. The movies know the answer: Charles Boyer and Deanna Durbin are the South Americans' pet screen fare.

Sad because Bill Conzelman, writer of Kay's first and next planned motion pictures, had died suddenly; happy because it was Ginny Simms' birthday. A subdued birthday dinner was staged in the St. Catherine's dining-room with Ginny's family and Kay's mother at the table, and Ginny blew out sixteen candles on her birthday cake. A single red rose was Ginny's gift from Kay . . . Which reminds, did all the newshawks miss reporting the birth a month ago of daughter Pamela Arene Bogue to Mrs. Mervyn Bogue, wife of alias Ish Kabibble of the Kyser band?

Rudy's Bon Voyage

Prior to Rudy Vallee's departure, with the cast and Vick Knight, producer, to the New York studios for the summer, he hosted most graciously your reporter and his editor to dinner at his Hollywood home. On the record goes this report that every detail of the dinner was perfect; every minute was filled with carefully planned entertainment. But Rudy erred in one detail: he recommended his pet brand of pink champagne as harmless and hangover-proof. It wasn't either . . . Vallee's friends gathered en masse at the new "Pirates Den" cafe May 30 to say farewell to the lad from Maine who has taught southern California to evaluate him highly. Between Vallee's ten eastern broadcasts, Rudy will commute to his famous lodge at Lake Kezar, Maine.

Dog Out of Groove!

Patricia Ellis, recent vocalist on CBS' "It Happened in Hollywood," brought along to rehearsal her cocker spaniel, "Sir Alfred," and the canine immediately took a fancy to maestro Eddie Dunstedter, playing at his feet while Eddie was practising on the piano, until finally the musician registered a complaint. "You'll have to get that dog out of here," Dunstedter wailed, "he's panting out of tempo!"

"Thunder" Coast to Coast

A popular exotic serial is back on the air on a complete network from Chicago. "Thunder Over Paradise," by Fayette Krum, was originally heard from here, moved to the East on a few stations, now is back here with a sparkling cast. The sketch replaces "Affairs of Anthony," but Henry Hunter moves over into the new lead part. The feminine lead is Fern Persons (also mother of "Bud Barton"). Laurette Fillbrandt again plays the simple, sweet and sensuous native girl, Lolita. Pat Murphy takes on a Mr. Hyde for his Dr. Jekyll as Scoop Curtis in "Girl Alone," playing a wastrel in this story. Billy Idelson, long identified only with the part of Rush in "Vic and Sade," branches out as a Yankee boy in the new cast. Sid Ellstrom is Hansen, Boris Aplon is Bargas, Cliff Soubier is the Padre, and Michael Romano carries over from the original cast as Durango.

Art Kohl New Dr. Bob

Dot-and-dash notes: Art Kohl, versatile actor who does everything from butler to sinister fiend, has taken over the health-and-home duties of Dr. Bob Graham in "Bachelor's Children"—filling the gap left by Hugh Studebaker's health vacation . . . Studebaker's part as Charles Meredith in "Midstream" to Russell "Tom Mix" Thorson . . . Johnnie Johnston quit us sooner than even he expected—the climate (apologies to Everett "Beautiful Chicago" Mitchell) has never been kind to Johnnie's throat, lately had him on the disability sidelines much of the time—going to Hollywood, still under NBC management. His place on "Club Matinee" being filled by Wayne Van Dyne, who used to fly high as an airline pilot, now sings high with a tenor voice many of us have long admired . . . Les Damon died as John Knight and left Betty Winkler a widowed "Girl Alone"—but the popular pair are reunited in "Lone Journey," new midwest NBC serial . . . Lee Childs, five-foot-four, blue-eyed blonde, named "Lady of the Lakes" by Central Marine Chamber of Commerce—is the new NBC fair-haired girl being groomed for dual singing-acting role.

Songstress Dale Evans, organist Dave Bacal and announcer Tommy Bartlett carry on in CBS' "News and Rhythm" summer series . . . Eloise Kummer, Carolyn of "Right to Happiness," recovering from face bruises incurred in auto accident . . . Betty Winkler, Helen Gowan in "Road of Life," literally crackles with electricity in her new heavy silk house coat . . . Radiosyncrasy: Virginia "Helen Trent" Clark doodles on her script—always the same figure, a star and a half-moon . . . Laurette Fillbrandt wearing a special arch-support shoe temporarily—see, Laurette, you shouldn't take those barefoot roles as Lolita and Daisy Mae so seriously!

Among the most recent and most energetic candid cameraddicts—those four vivacious singing Vagabonds—"Click-Click" Robert O'Neal, "Long Shot" Norval Taborn, "Flash Bulb" John Jordan and "Snap-Happy Pappy" Ray Grant, Jr. . . . Jane Webb—Jane of "Tom Mix" (off the air for summer)—copped first prize in declamation contest among a group of high schools with "Minerva Dimwittie in Hawaii" . . . Dick Todd, who has movie prospects and who did a recent telecast at the New York World's Fair RCA exhibit, still trying methods, latest handball, to keep his brawn from becoming bulge.

Lincoln Real to DeWitt McBride

If you heard MBS' "Symphonic Hour" Sunday, June 2, you may have thought DeWitt McBride put plenty of understanding and punch into the role of Abe Lincoln. Tradition was behind the scene as well as good acting. McBride's great-grandfather was General Winget of the Union Army in the Civil War. And DeWitt's grandfather, Dan Winget, was a fourteen-year-old drummer boy. Young Dan hitch-hiked to Washington before the war was over to tell Mr. Lincoln he wanted to go home. A soldier, for a joke, sent the lad to stern Secretary of War Stanton, who in turn sent him to see Lincoln with a note saying the young man should be treated as a deserter. The boy remained in Lincoln's office while the President talked to a pleading woman—and later he wrote in one of his books an authentic story of the famous incident of Lincoln pardoning a sleeping sentry because of the mother's intercession. It was her plea that young Dan Winget witnessed.

One of the hottest "yacker" sessions heard in these parts was dished up impromptu by Alec Templeton, banjoist Eddie Peabody and the Westerners at a party. In Alec's vocabulary Curt Massey is a triple "yacker," because he puts it over the plate waist-high with fiddle, trumpet and voice . . . Memorial Day, Irna Phillips rounded out ten years of serial writing, averaging 2,000,000 words a year . . . Since Joe "Josh Higgins" DuMond started dedicating one program each week to babies, he has been receiving "baby" mail from Juneau, Alaska, to South Africa—showing there's still some sentiment left in the world . . . I still hear from those valiant Borrowed Timers who are living overtime out in Ellensburg, Wash. Their latest letter closes with: "Spring has on her finest dress, and gee, isn't it good to be alive!"

ON THE BANDWAGON

IN THE summer of 1935, at Westchester County's (N. Y.) Glen Island Casino, the freres Dorsey—Tommy and Jimmy—came to a parting of the ways, split their band partnership and embarked upon individual band careers. The brothers had a wealth of experience on trombone and saxophone, respectively, had played with the nation's foremost jazz orchestras. Their musical ideas, as to their own band, just varied. Today in New York both brothers, Tommy at the Astor Roof, Jimmy on the Pennsylvania Roof, are in direct competition. The saga of Jimmy's band we will reserve for next week's Bandwagon. Now we tell you about Tommy's great crew which, in addition to its NBC stints from the Astor and its Victor record session, takes over the Bob Hope commercial time for the summer. Highlighting Tommy's golden trombone tone, the trumpeting of Bunny Berigan and the vocals of Frank Sinatra, the Dorsey band is equally deft at sweet and swing, as witness its arrangements of "Fools Rush In" and "March of the Toys." Its song-title ensemble backgrounds to solo vocals, as typified in "Marie" and "Yearning" among others, immediately identifies the Dorsey band to Mr. Average Radio Listener. The band, theme-singing "I'm Getting Sentimental Over You," lines up with Tommy, Mahanoy Plains, Pa., George Arus, Detroit, Mich., Lowell Martin, Coral Gables, Fla., Les Jenkins, Shawnee, Okla., trombones; Bunny Berigan, Fox Lake, Wis., Jimmy Blake, Medford, Mass., Leon Dobrow, Bloomfield, N. J., Ray Linn, Chicago, Ill., trumpets; Fred Stulce, Dallas, Tex., Johnny Mince, Chicago Heights, Ill., Hymie Shertzer, New York City, Don Lodice, Long Island, N. Y., Paul Mason, Marlinton, W. Va., saxophones; Sid Weiss, Sche-

THE SOUND-MAN

No. 5

by
WALTER SNOW
as told to
KATE HOLLIDAY

This man presides over a library of 12,000 canned sounds. He has the most fantastic job in radio. He's a soundman

Here is the fifth article in a "Men Behind the Dial" series. It is NBC soundman Walter Snow's story of his job, as told to Kate Holliday, and it will be followed in next week's issue by a sixth article, on the musician, presenting Leith Stevens, brilliant young musical director of such shows as "Big Town" and "Ford Summer Hour."—Editor.

CAN you imagine a radio program without sound? It doesn't matter which type it is—dramatic show, comedy show, or even news broadcast—can you conceive of a half-hour of only dialog? If you think of radio without sound, then you realize what a tremendous part auditory effects play in the broadcasting industry.

Radio being one dimensional, being concerned only with the ear, it is naturally handicapped. For that reason, every element which will convey an audible image is highly necessary. The preconceived sound-effect is, of course, one of the most powerful of these elements, in that the mere suggestion of an idea—by the use of sound—will often carry more of an image to the listener than reams of dialog.

You have probably read in the past of the many strange things we soundmen do to get our effects, and it may seem to you a very screwy business. It may seem as if we were only undeveloped boys who were still playing with toys and blocks. But I assure you that our work is by no means simply done. Neither are we simple-minded.

In the first place, our field is divided roughly into three parts: Effects which are on records; effects which are manual and must be done by the soundman himself while the program is in progress; and combinations of the two. When I tell you that there are about twelve thousand sounds on records alone, you will begin to realize that the making of noises is no simple thing.

In the NBC studios in Hollywood, we keep our record collection in a room lined with shelves an inch apart. The records are cataloged much as you would catalog books, and are divided into ten main groupings. These are: Human sounds, which include crowd noises of varying types; natural sounds, which take in wind, surf, thunder, water, etc.; domestic-animal sounds; wild-animal sounds; automobiles, and all the hundreds of noises one associates with a car; trains; aircraft; bells, whistles and sirens; crashes of all kinds; and warfare, both personal and national.

Each of these main classifications is subdivided dozens of times. For instance, the group on aircraft not only includes planes idling, planes taking off, planes diving, spinning, crashing, but also the types of planes, and the noises you hear from different makes and sizes of motors.

These disks are made in the same way as the records you buy, with the exception that there is rarely only one noise to a record. In many cases there are as many as ten to one side of the recording. We tell which is which by a small index which is printed on the label and then counting the bands to find the right cut.

The records themselves are played on a series of turntables on the top of a movable sound-truck which is wheeled into the studio and placed near a separate microphone from the one used by the actors. In rehearsal or on the air, these turntables—usually mounted three to a truck—are all in motion constantly. Thus a record may be played in a minimum of time, and we may use two or three records at once to get a combination of effects.

MANUAL effects include those things which cannot be recorded well and those which must be created by the soundman. There are hundreds of these, of course.

But before we get into the more difficult things, let me surprise you. For telephone and door bells, we have actual instruments which are fixed on portable boxes and run by batteries. This is one time when the sound you hear is really what you think it is! The same is true of door and window noises. In the sound-department, we have dozens of doors and windows of all types which are set into portable frames, and are identical to ordinary doors, except for their height. The soundman opens and closes these as specified by the script.

Manual effects, however, also include sounds which we have to dream up for a difficult program. For instance, when Arch Oboler and James Cagney dramatized "Johnny Got His Gun," we wanted you to hear the vibrations which a basket case feels while lying in bed, caused by footsteps in his room. You can see that this is a very delicate thing to put on the air. It was finally solved by the head of our sound-department, Harry Saz. A crystal microphone, of the type used in airplane factories to test strains in construction, was placed on the top of a box in which were mounted a set of bed-springs. The microphone picked up the vibrations caused by moving the box slightly, and the sound was then amplified. The amplification was played in turn through a small speaker, which gave the desired effect not only of the vibrations of bed-springs but also those vibrations as heard by someone lying in bed. Incidentally, that was the first time that this particular microphone had ever been used on the air.

Do you still think this is a simple business?

From this you can see, I'm sure, one of the prime requisites of a good soundman—he must have imagination. He must be able to "hear" sounds mentally and know what will produce them. The men in my department, you see, ultimately will have invented a good reproduction of practically every sound in the universe. But even though we have devised thousands of them now, we have really only started on the task. The noises that we have not already used must be created whenever they are called for by a script, usually on one or two days' notice.

ANOTHER requisite is that we have manual dexterity. We often use as many as thirty different records on a show, as well as an infinite amount of manual effects. I have wished many times that I had at least three extra pairs of hands!

A soundman should also be what is called in the theater a "quick study." We hardly ever have time to look at a script while the show is in progress, and we must, therefore, often memorize our cues so that no time will be lost. When you have fifty or sixty cues, this is not too easy!

But, besides the requisites mentioned above, the most important single element is an excellent sense of timing. To my work, this is just as important as it is to an actor.

If, for instance, on a comedy show there is a definite laugh-line followed by a sound-effect which starts a new gag or sequence, the soundman must know exactly when to use that sound. If he waits too long he will drag the show. If he comes in too soon he will kill the laugh. Either way, it's bad. And, since the audience laugh is of indeterminate length, in this case there is no actual cue to work from.

A BASEBRAWLER

Bob Elson, the gent who's looking you in the eye at the right, is one of radio's pioneer baseball announcers. He has announced several World's Series for MBS, and regularly announces White Sox and Cub games over station WGN, Chicago. Because he is one of the oldest and best of the broadcasters whom famed ex-ballplayer Guy Bush called "basebawlers" in a MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE article last week, Elson has been invited to answer here the charges Bush made in "Those Basebawlers."—Editor.

MY GOOD friend, Guy Bush, in last week's issue of MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE, took a full wind-up and cut the inside corner with what he figured was a strike in a little satire on my profession, quaintly titled "Those Basebawlers!"

Guy seems to object quite strenuously to a form of sports presentation that daily brings entertainment to millions, among them the sick, the blind, the hopelessly crippled—the latter people who enjoy sports too but are denied actual attendance by physical frailties beyond their control. It is a type of sports presentation that has received the whole-hearted endorsement of progressive major-league magnates, and includes among its staunch advocates P. K. Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs, with which team Bush himself put in the most productive years of his baseball career.

Mr. Bush, in his literary effort, showed the same intense concentration which marked his career out there on the pitching-mound, but from here on the similarity ceased. When the editors of MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE asked me to sit down and tap out a rebuttal for the good Guy's mutterings, I must confess I soon find myself wondering what all the shouting was about. If Guy made any really solid points, I failed to catch them, but since I am this far along, I might as well take this opportunity to present a few observations on baseball broadcasting as drawn from a background of some ten years on the assignment and covering everything up to and including the world series over an exclusive Coast-to-Coast Mutual network.

In the first place—and I wish to emphasize this—baseball announcers have never made any pretense that a baseball broadcast was anything but second best to actual attendance at a game. Secondly, I should like to make it clear that we do not set ourselves up as paragons, but we do feel, quite decidedly, that we have improved from year to year, learning as we go along in what necessarily must stand as a new field, and that today the vast listening audience is getting an accurate, intimate and complete word-picture on what is transpiring on the various baseball fields throughout the nation.

Now, as to the fellows actually working before the microphones from the ball parks, I should like to take the liberty of quoting Guy.

"Is that stuff that comes shrieking

On these pages last week, Guy Bush bawled out the basebawlers. Now a veteran ballcaster replies out of a loudspeaker what they call baseball broadcasting?" Mr. Bush would know. He then goes on to say: "Personally, I like baseball broadcasters (and we like you too, Guy). Everyone I have met is a fine fellow, possessing a degree of talent, else he wouldn't have his job. But the point is, why don't they get those talents together?"

BY BOB ELSON

Mr. Bush invades a delicate field with this pitch—the field of human nature and human capabilities. We might, along the same line of reasoning, ask Guy why Terry Moore's place in the major leagues is founded to a great extent on his remarkable fielding, while a fellow like Rudy York, say, owes his place in a major-league lineup to his ability to hit a baseball often and for prodigious distances. George Case has built his reputation on searing speed, which he last year crystallized into the base-stealing championship of the major leagues.

How many men in Guy Bush's own field do we find able to hit, to field, to run, to throw in the manner of a Tris Speaker or Joe Di Maggio? In other words, how many perfect ballplayers do we find?

In baseball broadcasting, a similar situation prevails. We have announcers who appeal to different groups by following the style to which they are best adapted. Some are highly technical, as is charged, and matter-of-fact, but if there be any doubt that some baseball fans like their broadcasts that way, you have only to remember that the matter-of-fact announcer has a sponsor, and if the appeal wasn't there, he wouldn't be there—make no mistake about that.

The same goes for the others Guy has "typed"—the hysterical type, the slow type, the casual type.

They have styles just as ballplayers have styles. When you get an announcer who combines the various features, the best features, of all of them into a smoothly blended product acceptable to the great majority, then you get a standout, of course, and if one is inclined to press the question, "Why aren't there more of this kind?" we could come right back with the counter-query:

"Why aren't there more Joe Di Maggios in big-league baseball?"

But the basic point in this line of reasoning, the thing to remember, is that all the various types that are broadcasting baseball are selling not only baseball but the products of their sponsors, and when you get into the commercial side of it, you'll discover that a pretty universal truth holds: the man putting his money into a baseball broadcast wants results. And don't think that if he wasn't getting results he would continue to make baseball available to the listening public.

In his attempt to "type" the baseball-announcing field, Guy came up with a couple of points on which I should like to dwell for a few moments.

He classifies one group as the "quick on the trigger" type, and then pulls forth the old chestnut of the announcer who tells of the "long drive towards right field that looks like a homer" which ultimately winds up as a pop fly in the hands of the second baseman. In other words, exaggeration for effect—by Mr. Bush, not the announcer. This is one of the old saws of the profession, and it has been kicked around from one sport to another ever since someone in the infant days of radio possibly became involved in such a situation.

But if you tell me that present-day baseball announcers who are used to looking at 154 ballgames a season can't tell whether a ball is going to be out of the park or into the hands of the second baseman, I'll tell you, quite frankly, that you don't know what you're talking about.

NOW let's consider the second point, namely, that of the broadcaster whom Guy chooses to call "the over-enthusiastic, home-town fan type." Again using Mr. Bush's own words, this fellow "gloats mightily when his pets are in the lead, literally sulks when they're having tough going. In his eye every feat by the homelings is magnificent and heroic, every accomplishment by the other side is lucky, fluky or the result of skulduggery by the umpire."

On this charge, Mr. Bush can rightly be accused of the most violent kind of overstatement.

Speaking for myself, I can sincerely say that I have never followed any other policy than that of building up the Chicago Cubs and the Chicago White Sox, which happen to be the home teams in so far as our WGN broadcasts are concerned, only in the proportion to which they fit into the general pattern of the game itself, and certainly never to the disparagement of other teams in their respective leagues.

A majority of announcers operate along this theory, and I question whether one of the type mentioned by Bush could survive for long. After all, even the most partisan of baseball crowds generally are quick to applaud superlative effort on the part of a rival, and we always have taken as much pleasure in achievements of other individuals and teams as we have in those of the Cubs and White Sox.

I do not mean by this that an announcer should be completely impartial, because there is a rooting element in all of us and the listener wants this satisfied. But the announcer's enthusiasm for the home-town club should be of a restrained type, the kind that enjoys and hopes for the success of the home team, but certainly not to the extent of moaning and alibing when that success is denied by the superior play of a rival.

Then, too, there's another angle, although not many stations run into it. We do, because the station for which I broadcast, WGN, regularly is heard throughout the Midwest, and that means we go into the locale of other fan followings—those of the Cincinnati Reds, the St. Louis Cardinals and Browns, the Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians. You couldn't expect these listeners to keep tuned to an announcer who belittled the talents of their own heroes while falsely building up the virtues of what, to them, are rivals.

But the main point in this particular discussion is that it is not, in the final analysis, a single team that counts, but rather it is the game of baseball itself which is all-important. The various teams are merely contributing factors, and nearly all broadcasters recognize this and slant their programs accordingly.

The radio booths have, in recent years, absorbed many former players, and even an umpire—fellows like Charlie Grimm, Lew Fonseca, Frank Frisch, Tris Speaker, Jack Graney, Harry Heilmann, Gabby Street, Waite Hoyt and Dolly Stark. Guy finds fault with them on the grounds that—and again I quote—"they speak the language of the diamond, which all of us who have been in the game understand. But I'm wondering if the everyday fan, whose knowledge of inside baseball naturally is limited, gets all the fast pitching of the player-announcers."

I'm glad he brought that up, because it sets up a point which I have long held: Is the so-called "inside baseball" so highly technical that it is beyond the grasp of the average fan? Frankly, I don't think so, and have come to believe that dugout erudition is overemphasized.

BASEBALL is, by structure, a game of sporadic action—its plays leave time for anticipation and retrospection. The squeeze, the hit-and-run, the cut-off—their mechanics are, I believe, as familiar to the baseball fan as they are to the player, for in no game is the fan as keenly alert to what is happening as is the case in baseball. Perhaps he doesn't always know the situations which would call for the use of the different machinations which go to make up "inside baseball," but he quickly spots those machinations once they do go into effect.

I like to think that radio has helped build up the fans' knowledge of this technical side of the game through our field interviews with players and managers and umpires, and our constant reference to this phase of baseball during the course of our play-by-play accounts of games.

No, I don't think anyone is talking over the head of today's baseball fan, and to say that they are is, I believe, to insult the intelligence of the most highly intelligent fan-following now extant in the wide realm of sport.

During the course of Mr. Bush's rambling epistle, he has occasion to refer to the 1932 world series and the celebrated case of Babe Ruth calling his "shot"—the shot being a Gargantuan home run into the center-field bleachers at approximately the spot where the Babe had pointed meaningfully a moment before.

Mr. Bush cites this as an instance in which the inaccuracy of not only the radio but the newspapers as well stands forth in the most naked relief. For, according to the Bush version, Guy himself was the leader of a particularly vicious anti-Ruth campaign, and when the Babe had two strikes on him and majestically waved his finger in the direction of the center-field bleachers in the grandiose manner which only the Babe knew, he did so inadvertently, merely pointing out to the Cub bench, according to Bush, that he still had the big strike left.

The fact that his finger happened to be directed towards the outfield confines became just a coincidence, Mr. Bush hastens to tell us in this exclusive expose, when the next ball arched out of the park along the line of flight designated by the Ruth finger but a moment before.

It seems to have grieved Mr. Bush deeply that the radio and the newspapers painted the incident in such bold and Homeric strokes. I don't know what he expected us to do—dash down from the roof and demand of the Babe, then and there, that he state his intentions like a man. To one gazing down on the scene, Ruth pointed towards the center-field bleachers and then hit into them, and it seems at this late date that Brother Bush is putting quite a delicate shading on an exploit the sports world has seen fit to accept these many years.

But what if the Babe was only indicating that there was still one strike left and his finger just happened to sag along the line of flight of that home run? (Ruth himself said several years later that that had been the case.) What difference does it make? The Babe was mighty and so were his deeds, and if he happened into one here, it's just another tribute to a man who could accidentally make the fans, his fans, believe a story as fabulous as the one of the "called" home run.

It's things like that which put the bright splash of color on the sports scene, and Mr. Bush, and others, had best leave them stand as they are, for even if they don't accept them, the sports fans will—and do . . .

FOR THE SAME REASON that few baseball players hit, run and field equally well, as does Joe Di Maggio (above), few baseball announcers are perfect. They are only human, says Bob Elson, in answer to Guy Bush's criticism of "typed" announcers in these columns last week. Bush also found fault with former players or managers like Charlie Grimm (l.) and Lew Fonseca (r.), who now talk ball. Read Bob Elson's answer

Even before the camera, Gloria Jean's radiant young countenance requires no make-up (though she had hoped to be allowed to use a light touch of lipstick in her new and exciting picture "If I Had My Way!").

Her good looks—and she is good-looking, this winsome young lady with the twinkling eyes and crinkly brown hair!—came right out of nature's rouge-pot and have their origin in sunshine, outdoor activities, plenty of rest—and the right things to eat.

Constance Moore has graduated from the Gloria Jean stage and firmly believes in keeping fit as a foundation for every-day charm. She too requires but little make-up when she goes in front of the camera, because of her natural good looks. I am told by those who know Constance intimately that her hair is the envy of her friends, who can hardly believe that it's nothing more nor less than the old-fashioned one hundred strokes with a hairbrush every night that's the secret of its abundant, shimmering beauty. (Sometimes Constance puts a silk handkerchief over her hair-brush to give her waves a little extra polish.)

Whereas nature gave Constance a rather nice start in the matter of acquiring a petal-tinted complexion, nevertheless this sensible young lady knows the value of regular and adequate skin-cleansing as a means of insuring its clearness and freshness. Cleansing creams should always be chosen according to skin type. (Dry skins need cold-cream with oily base to prevent roughness and chapping and preserve youth. For oily skins there are specially prepared cold-creams to counteract this condition. Constance invariably follows up the nightly cleansing of her skin with ice-cold water or a skin tonic to remove any lurking traces of the cream and keep the tissues in a healthy, firm condition. Sometimes she alternates the cream-cleansing of her complexion with a warm, mild soapsuds scrubbing with a cute little complexion brush that gets into neglected corners where blackheads might otherwise form. No blemishes creep into Connie's pretty skin. She simply won't allow them!

Fifty-Fifty

Dear V. O. L.:

I am the mother of a son twelve years old and a daughter ten. I have always loved good music and been deeply interested in current events. Through my radio I've always been able to enjoy these interests.

Now I am trying to teach my children to appreciate them too. I invite them to listen with me to something I think they should hear. And I listen with them to their children's programs. That way I think we all learn something.

Mrs. W. F. Henry, Wooster, Ohio

He must know instinctively when to hit with his sound.

He must also be completely on cue when the sound is written into the script. For example, we make the noise of a person walking on snow by filling two smallish sacks with cornstarch and twisting these in the rhythm of the steps. If the actor is speaking in a labored manner, if he is acting out the fact that he is having difficulty climbing a snow-covered hill and is panting slightly, we must keep in exact time with his spoken footsteps—if you get what I mean.

On sudden sounds, such as the shooting of a gun, we must again have an instinctive sense of the precise moment when the sound will be most effective. And we must be prepared in advance in our minds so that there is not the slightest break between our thought and the sound as you hear it. That, my friends, is timing!

When a show is going into rehearsal, we get the script a few days ahead of time. As Carlton Morse and Vick Knight told you, the author or the producer writes into the script the effects he wants to hear over the air. But he may not realize that when he says "SOUND: WIND" there are dozens of different types of wind we could use in that spot. We have to figure out which type he wants, whether it is to be a zephyr or a tornado. When he goes over our material at rehearsal, therefore, we present him with several different noises of wind and let him make a choice. The effect he decides upon is rehearsed strenuously so that nothing can go wrong.

The noises on records are particularly rehearsed, since it is often their volume which is most important. For instance, the sound of a car skidding into a crash is recorded as one unit. However, we have to take into consideration whether that car is right in front of the actor, whether it is twenty feet away, or whether it is down a block or two. Also, we have to notice if the car skids as it is going by the actor and crashes away from him, or whether the whole thing takes place away from him. All of these elements enter into the volume of the sound as we take it off the record.

As you can see, the same is true of crowd noises, planes diving, animals howling, and all the other things.

WHEN the sounds are set to the producer's satisfaction, we must arrange them according to the script. This is highly important, since we are probably going to be working so quickly while we are on the air that we will not have a chance to pick out the proper record from the many to be used. Everything must be in order of play, and everything must be close at hand so that we shall not waste time getting it in front of the microphone. Add to the speed element the fact that we are often using both record and manual effects at the same time, and you evolve the reason why soundmen run from guys in little white coats!

As an example of a combination effect, let me cite that of Jack Benny's famous Maxwell. What you hear coming out of your speaker is composed, first, of an old-fashioned oval wash-boiler. Yes, the kind they used to use down in the Kentucky mountings! This is made of copper and is quarter filled with the most ancient of junk—nuts, bolts, tin cans and old motor parts. On the top of this are two boards on which is mounted a small electric motor, the size used in a mechanical cake-beater. When we are on the air, you do not hear the motor, but the vibrations cause the wash-boiler to shake and rattle and make horrible noises such as an old Maxwell might make.

Besides this intricate set-up, we also use both a record and an oral effect. The record is of a comedy automobile, and gives us the sounds of headlights and fenders all clattering like crazy. The oral effect is one of steam, and is done by the soundman, who expels his breath abruptly through a half-closed mouth.

AND that is Jack Benny's Maxwell when you add it all up! But please remember that this is only one effect out of a half-hour program. You can see now why everything must be ready for our hands before we go on the air.

While the show is in progress, we are given our cues by the producer. He, after all, can hear how the show sounds, since he is in the control-room. So we must watch him constantly in order that he may tell us by signals if the volume and the quality of sound are correct.

And, after the show, we collapse! There are many tales, of course, of ingenious things which have been rigged up for special effects. And we soundmen love to tell them. Stop me if you have . . .

Do you remember when a dramatization of the "Telltale Heart" by Poe was done by Boris Karloff a year or so ago? You know the story, I'm sure. It's about a murderer who is trapped by his own imagination that he hears the heart of the person he has killed beating louder and louder in his brain.

That heart had to be beating all through the show, and our soundmen nearly went insane trying to get something that sounded heart-like. They tried tapping on leather, tapping on felt, and everything else they could think of. Finally, in desperation, one of the crew stripped to the waist, held a microphone to his chest, and asked how it sounded. It still wasn't perfect.

So the sound was piped from the microphone into one of our two echo chambers. These are rooms about ten feet square with absolutely nothing in them but a speaker and a microphone. The sound enters the room, bounces around from wall to wall, and the reverberations are picked up by the mike. When this particular heart-sound was run through the echo chamber, amplified and fed into a speaker, it was the telltale heart in person!

I have told you of some of the actual instances of sound-invention because I wanted you to know that some of the easiest sounding things are some of the hardest to produce. And I'm sure that you can see by now that we must have not only the item but the type of the item. If we have the effect of water, we must know what kind of water it is—whether it is from a tap, an ocean, a stream, a shower, a rainstorm, a heavy rainstorm, a cloudburst, or a super-cloudburst! All the various degrees and differences of sound must be duplicated.

It is a fascinating and fantastic business. All over the country there are men who do nothing but invent the sounds you hear so that your audible image may be perfect when you turn on your radio. And if you think their work is not important, just imagine radio without it!

Mr. Fairfax will give personal answers to all readers who send self-addressed stamped envelopes. Remember that he must confine himself exclusively to network personalities and programs. Address Arthur Fairfax, MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill.

Miss Bessie Hammond, Onset, Mass.—WILLARD FARNUM portrays David Meredith in "Midstream." He began his radio career because nature stamped him as a close approach to Harold Teen. Just before Willard graduated from Northwestern University a classmate, struck by the resemblance to the cartoon, advised him to try out for the part of Harold on a local station. The audition occurred in June, 1930, and he was immediately signed up. Willard had never thought of radio as a career until then. In fact, he says that he had decided on a stage career following a post-graduation trip to Europe. Farnum was born in Mankato, Minnesota, November 24, 1907. He attended Marcy School, Minneapolis, Minnesota; Mankato High School; Lake Forest College; and Northwestern University. The only other member of his family connected with the theater is William Farnum, the stage and screen player, who is a distant relative. Willard is five feet eight inches tall, has black hair and green eyes.

Miss Louise Miller, Cedar Rapids, Iowa—MARGARET FULLER was born in Pittsburgh. She is married to Robert Griffin. Margaret has been on the stage since the age of three. She has dark brown hair and dark brown eyes.

Miss Kay Van Sadlers, Hackensack, N. J.—The cast of "BRENTHOUSE" follows: Portia Brent—Georgia Backus; Jane—Florence Baker; Nancy—Lurene Tuttle; Peter—Larry Nunn; Martha Young Dudley—Margaret Brayton; Lance Dudley—Wally Maher; Nora Mawson—Jane Morgan; Gabrielle Faure—Anne Stone; Daphne Royce—Naomi Stevens; Michael—Frederic MacKaye; Steve Dirk—Al Cameron; Dr. Norfolk—Gavin Gordon; Philip West—Ben Alexander; Joe Edwards—Edward Archer; Driz Gump—Grant Bayliss; Jay—Jack Zoller. Ted Sherdeman is the author-director of this serial; John Frazer announces the program; and Paul Carson is organist. The theme of "Brenthouse" is "Third Movement" from Debussy's "String Quartet in G."

Miss Joyce Ern, Chicago, Ill.—HAROLD STOKES was born in Nokomis, Illinois, the home town also of Jimmy Bottomley, the baseball player. He began studying music when he was five years old. He went to high school in St. Louis, and attended the University of Missouri and musical conservatories in Missouri. He made his start in radio with Paul Whiteman's Collegians at the Congress Hotel in 1923. He played in Del Lampe's orchestra with Wayne King—in fact, the two were roommates when King was learning to play the saxophone. At the same time, Harold was mastering the accordion. Stokes is an enthusiastic outdoorsman. He does a lot of motoring and more boating. He also flies, plays tennis and is a competent photographer, having a great collection of movies made during his travels about the country.

Mr. W. R. Sinclair, Utica, N. Y.—DON MCNEILL wrote the script for "Avalon Time."

"I Talked with God"

(Yes, I Did—Actually and Literally)

and, as a result of that little talk with God some ten years ago, a strange new Power came into my life. After 43 years of horrible, sickening, dismal failure, this strange Power brought to me a sense of overwhelming victory, and I have been overcoming every undesirable condition of my life ever since. What a change it was. Now—I have credit at more than one bank, I own a beautiful home, drive a lovely car, own a newspaper and a large office building, and my wife and family are amply provided for after I leave for shores unknown. In addition to these material benefits, I have a sweet peace in my life. I am happy as happy can be. No circumstance ever upsets me, for I have learned how to draw upon the invisible God-Law, under any and all circumstances. You, too, may find and use the same staggering Power of the God-Law that I use. It can bring to you, too, whatever things are right and proper for you to have. Do you believe this? It won't cost much to find out—just a penny postcard or a letter, addressed to Dr. Frank B. Robinson, Dept. 393, Moscow, Idaho, will bring you the story of the most fascinating success of the century. And the same Power I use is here for your use, too. I'll be glad to tell you about it. Dear Sirs,

I would appreciate a page of the male vocalists of the various dance orchestras. Will you please run one?
B., Perth, Ont.

AMONG KAY KYSER'S plentiful and very choice supply of vocalists is Harry James Babbitt, who is seen above with Ginny Simms, singing one of the novelty duets which are a popular feature of the Wednesday night (NBC) "College of Musical Knowledge." Mr. Babbitt has been one of Kay's star singers since 1937, came from St. Louis, where he had been a radio singer-announcer. Before that he had appeared in night clubs from Coast to Coast, had even led his own orchestra. Although he sings popular tunes exclusively, and is the voice of little Audrey on Kyser broadcasts, Harry likes classical music, is a Toscanini admirer

JACK LEONARD, whose name most dance fans associate with the Three Esquires and Tommy Dorsey, parted with Tommy late last year. In February, he joined Raymond Scott's "Concert in Rhythm," was featured vocalist until it went off the air recently

LARRY COTTON, Horace Heidt's six-foot tenor, has held a popular berth on Heidt broadcasts since 1937, is heard now on "Pot o' Gold" (NBC, Thurs.). Larry worked his way through the University of Oklahoma by singing in stores, studied voice, law

TOMMY RYAN is the fellow who sings titles of songs to introduce Sammy Kaye's "Swing and Sway" numbers (NBC, Mon.). Brown-eyed Tommy is six foot one, weighs 165 pounds. Besides singing song titles he's the orchestra's guitarist. He was born in Newport, Ky.

BOB EBERLE is the dreamy-voiced vocalist of Jimmy Dorsey's band (heard frequently on NBC night spots). He and his brother Ray look so much alike that Glenn Miller hired Ray, thinking he was Bob. The Eberle brothers' home is in Hoosick Falls, N. Y.

BOB ALLEN has been an important unit of the Hal Kemp orchestra ever since 1933, when he tried out with Hal at the suggestion of Ben Bernie. A Cincinnati boy, Bob is modest, unassuming, but his smooth voice is always charming. He collects Indian relics
